CHICAGO, June 3.—That the heart is independent of the central nervous system and can be made to pump blood through an artificial circulation even when removed from the body has been demonstrated to students of the University of Chicago by a striking experiment performed by Prof. Elias P. Lyon of the department of physiology.

Prof. Lyon has been able not merely to make pleces of heart pulsate in salt solutions and in the air as was done by Prof. Jacques Loeb and Prof. Lingle, but by the arrangement of suitable apparatus he has caused the heart of a dog to pump blood through itself, a pair of lungs, and a loop of tubing over four feet high.

Dr. Lyon disclaims the distinction of discovering the method of causing an apparently dead heart to beat, as he says that the experiment has been performed before by certain investigators. Previous experiments having shown that the heat was independent of the central nervous system, it was found that the only condition necessary for causing the heart to beat was that it should be able to circulate blood through itself. If this condition be met and the blood prevented from coaguiating in the compartments of the heart, it was found that orculation could be kept up.

(T. P. McGrath in McClure's)

The most important headland in the world is Cape Race, the southeastern extremity of Newfoundland. It has also has a most unenvisible notoriety. Some of the most terrible tragedies in marine annals have occurred on this rugged, dangerous foreshore. An official chart shows the disasters there during the past forty years. Together with some not inscribed thereon they are presented a total of ninety-four complete wrecks of ocean-going vessels and sallers—involving a loss of about two thousand lives, and $30,000,000 in hulls and cargoes. Ships which stranded and afterwards escaped are not included. Last year alone eight steam and two sailing vessels came to grief there, thirty-five persons perished, and a property loss of $2,000,000.

UP GOES BREAD.

(Toronto Globe, Monday.)
Today the price of bread will go up a cent a loaf. Twenty-three or twenty-four of the leading bakers have agreed upon that course, and in consequence, for a three-pound loaf, consumers will now pay nine, instead of eight cents. The bakers argue that the price of bread for the last few years has a steadily fallen; that it used to be ten and twelve cents a loaf; that the cost of flour has advanced in the last three years twenty per cent, and labor forty-five per cent. There has been two advances in wages, making an increase of twenty per cent, and labor forty-five per cent. There has been two advances in the cost of labor to them of about twenty-five per cent. They say the bours, which will mean an advance in the cost of labor to them of about twenty-five per cent. They say the price should be ten cents, but they are content with nine cents for the present.

In the Irish house of lords, now the bosses are agreeing to a further advance and a reduction in the hours, which will mean an advance in the cost of labor to them of about twenty-five per cent. They say the price should be ten cents, but they are content with nine cents for the present.

In the Irish house of lords, now the board room of the directors of the Bank of Ireland, are at present on view two great wooden cheats, strongly bound in iron, which are believed to have contained the money with which King William III, paid his troops after the battle of the Boyne. The chests were discovered in one of the bank vaults some time ago, and after having been cleared of the dust and dirt of two centuries are now decided objects of 'pterstrest to visitors.
