Fine Tailored Overcoats

Millets "Angelus" is painted in oil colors. So is your front fence. The difference between them is sometimes the difference between makes of clothing.

We are sole agents of 20th Century Brand clothing for St. John. 20th Century people make Overcoats as few firms know how to make them. They crowd in all they possibly can of style and quality, and in selling them we keep prices on a healthy active basis.

Take away any of these Overcoats and get any where you can get the best look and judgment on them. If anything isn't right, or doesn't seem right, come back and get your money.

We're building for future trade as well as the present.

Overcoat prices, $10, $12, $18.50, $15, $16 to $22.

NOVEMBER CANADIAN MAGAZINE.

Like a breath of peace and tranquillity is the November Canadian Magazine which shows no evidence of the political turmoil that is disturbing the country. The first article deals with the Argentine Gaucha, a peculiar character who lives on the ranches and prairies of our great South American competitor in wheat-growing. The illustrations for this article are exceptionally fine. A. Theodore Waters, a Canadian who has been a self-supporting missionary in British Tongaland, tells how he worked his way to South Africa, via London, how he studied the Zulu language and how he fared there in war-time. There are some rare photographs in this article. The editor gives his impressions of Canada's display at St. Louis, and they certainly are not in harmony with the average opinion of other writers. This, too, is illustrated profusely. There is a short history of the Grandmaster of the Guards, the oldest regiment in the British Army, with some more excellent illustrations. The Canadian Celebrity of the month is Robert McInerney, said by a high authority to be the most inevitable as a temptation to crush the Russian naval power after such provocation could scarcely have been refused by Great Britain. It is pointed out that it is greatly to France's interest to preserve peace, and her efforts in that direction ought to be strengthened by not committing herself except at the last moment. So long as Great Britain is in the war, France will help Russia, she will not be likely to engage in war with Russia, with France neutral, would it be thought at next of the embassies here, scarcely invite defeat. The most probable solution of the rumors regarding France's thought to be that she has given both disputants to understand that she does not desire to become involved, but has reserved her final decision.

BRITAIN IS ANGRY

And Has Sent a Big Fleet After the Baltic Squadron.

The Russian Admiral's Explanation is Looked Upon as Nonsense and Merely a Pretense to Gain Time.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Notwithstanding the diplomatic check in consequence of Admiral Rojestvensky's report, it is evident that Great Britain is preparing for the possibility of war. Tremendous activity is reported from all dockyards where vessels under repair are being made ready for sea under urgent orders from the admiralty. At Cardiff it is stated that admiralty agents are securing great quantities of coal for Gibraltar, Portsmouth, Malta and other ports and paying high freight. The Mediterranean fleet is hastening in the direction of Gibraltar, and it is announced that the Channel squadron, with decks cleared, will leave Gibraltar early this morning, its alleged object being a "demon attack on the rock." The home fleet, likewise, is concentrating. In fact, almost the entire British navy is pointing in the direction of the Baltic fleet, a portion of which is expected to sail from Vigo during today.

It might be said that yesterday was the first time that any real excitement was exhibited on the part of the public. Early editions of the afternoon papers, calculated to arouse the most intense national feeling, positively announced that as merely an adroit counter in order to gain time. The text of the admiral's report, received at a late hour last night, is said to have been instead of alleging the resentment of the British public. His statement that he "endeavored to calm the passions and ceased to fire as soon as the torpedo boats were out of sight," together with the virtual accusation that the possibility that there is a strong side to the case calling for investigation.

"How much longer" is the burden of the newspaper editorial articles this morning. Commenting upon the continued delay of the admiralty in making what is characterized as the amazing story Admiral Rojestvensky presents, the papers are full of a moment seriously to the admiral's story. Some St. Petersburg special correspondents even go so far as to suggest the explanation "home manufactured." The most serious of the morning newspapers confess that the country is under the shadow of war and that the word is now with Russia.

The Standard editorially describes Rojestvensky's whole story as the creation of a disorderly imagination, bearing its refutation on its face, and says: "For Russia to enter a controversy with England on the basis of such a tissue of misstatements can only lead to trouble."

The Daily Telegraph says: "If the admiral believes his own story, all that can be said is that the sooner he returns home the better. The fact that the second Pacific squadron appears to have fired on vessels of the Russian fleet, and is looked upon as proving that its officers were in a condition of nervous panic, rendering the squadron a danger to the world's commerce."

LONDON, Oct. 28.—In the present temper of the British nation it is not at all likely that preparations for hostilities will be relaxed or that the popular outcry will be diminished by Admiral Rojestvensky's report, but it is understood that Great Britain will run the risk of forfeiting in some degree the good will of France, and certainly that of Germany, if she proceeded to substitute warlike for diplomatic steps of which intention, so it is stated, is the Russian embassy tonight, there is no indication in Lord Lansdowne's communication.

The attitude of France is held to be of the highest importance. It was said today by the representative of an other great power that if France had given definite assurance that she would not support Russia in the event of war growing out of the North Sea incident, a hostile fleet would be almost inevitable as a temptation to crush the Russian naval power after such provocation could scarcely have been refused by Great Britain. It is pointed out that it is greatly to France's interest to preserve peace, and her efforts in that direction ought to be strengthened by not committing herself except at the last moment. So long as Great Britain is in the war, France will help Russia, she will not be likely to engage in war with Russia, with France neutral, would it be thought at next of the embassies here, scarcely invite defeat.

MAN CARRIED OFF ON MOOSE'S HORNS

Across Lake Animal Swamp, While Victim, Caught by Trappers Leg, Was Nearly Drowned.

SAVOIR, Me, Oct. 27.—The most remarkable adventure of the season in the Maine woods is that which befell Abbott Nelson, of Skowhegan, last Saturday, in the woods near the forks of the Kennebec. Nelson was carried three miles through the woods on the horns of an infuriated bull moose, nearly drowned in a lake which the moose swam and then swung on the animal's horns while it battled with another moose. Yet Nelson lived to tell the story.

Nelson started from camp on Saturday afternoon to shoot partridges, being armed only with a shotgun. On his way back a big moose barred the way. Nelson fired two barrels of his shotgun into the moose and then ran for the nearest tree. The moose rushed upon the hunter with a bellow of rage that echoed through the forest. The limb upon which Nelson had perched was only ten feet from the ground and the moose, by rearing up on his hind legs, could reach him and struck at him with a pair of antlers heavy enough to knock over a tree. Seeing that he would be killed if he remained there, Nelson moved out on the limb, which was higher from the ground at its outer end, but his weight was too much and the limb broke, letting him down directly upon the moose's nose. To make things worse his trousers became caught in the limb so that he could move neither one way nor the other, and while he was thus entangled the moose charged.

The moose missed the man, but his horns became entangled in the limb. With a mighty effort he wrenched the limb free and a larger moose, full of horns, carrying man and limb upon his horns. By this time Nelson had lost consciousness, and he was suddenly revived by being plunged into the lake which the moose was swimming. By holding against trees and bushes Nelson was able to keep his seat and lift his head above water. Death seemed near, for the lake was two miles across, and the moose was swimming the widest part.

But the worst was to come. Scarcely had the moose, with his burden of man and branch, reached the opposite shore of the lake, when there appeared another and a larger moose, full of fight. The second moose barred the way, and at once a battle began, says Nelson, beggared description. The unfortunate hunter, held fast by his clothing, was banged from side to side, dashed against trees and mangled by the clashing horns, until finally the cloth gave way and he was pitched out of his landing in the bushes twenty-five feet away. There, bruised, cut and bleeding, he lay, unable to rise, and for an hour watched the combat between the rival kings of the forest.

At last one of the moose, the challenger, appeared to have received his death thrust, but as he fell he made a last rush at his antagonist, and last seen he was lying on the ground, his horns impaled in the trees.

Central and Southern India will be by no means devoid of troops, but the post of Lieutenant general of the Madras army will be abolished.

YORK THEATRE.

Never in the history of Vaudeville has such a company assembled under the title in St. John as the one at present appearing at York Theatre. It is artistic, and each act is put on in a finished manner. The act of the Great Lynch is a proof of what can be accomplished with due care and long practice. The Rice Family are the best musical number in Vaudeville. Such a tramp as Chas. Edwards represents would truly be a character. His work is cut out for laughing purposes only, and that it is a success is only mildly expressing it. Harr and Evans have few to fear as their work is of the best. Miss Helen Austin spins tamborines as though it was play. Ed Armstrong is good in many ways; he does not have to exert himself to be entertaining. Tonight is the last night performance of this company. To-morrow a matinee concludes their engagement.

On and after Oct. 19 the Steamer May Queen will leave May Queen's Wharf, Indian town, on Wednesdays and Saturdays at 7 a. m. for Chipman and intermediate landings, returning will leave Chipman at 8 a. m. on Mondays and Thursdays for St. John.
