FATHER ACCUSED BY SON OF THEFT

Samuel O'Donnell Locked Up Son Charges Him With Stealing Suit—A Pitiful Scene

Samuel O'Donnell of Sheriff street entered the house of his son last night and, it is alleged, stole a suit of clothes which he afterwards sold for a few dollars. Early in the evening Mrs. O'Donnell called at the North End police station and told P. O. Conroy that the clothes were missing and that she suspected her husband of having taken them. O'Donnell was arrested later. He denied having taken the clothes, declaring that he knew nothing about them. Several people had seen O'Donnell with the suit over his arm, however, and the police were sure the drunken man was telling falsehoods. Mrs. O'Donnell brought her son to the station, who said that there were papers in the pocket of his coat which were valuable. He asked his father to tell what he had done with the clothes, but O'Donnell refused to own up that he had taken them. Finally, however, he produced the papers from his pocket and handed them over to the son, who promised not to prosecute. The man also admitted he had taken the suit and had pawned it on Main street.

It was a sorrowful scene in the police station to witness—the mother and son pleading to a drunken husband and father to admit being guilty of theft and to disclose the whereabouts of a suit of clothes. O'Donnell will appear before Judge Ritchie today, charged with being drunk and taking a suit of clothes which were not his own.

SCOTTISH PICNIC JULY 1.

The Scottish gathering at Watter's Landing on July 1, should be patronized to the extent of a ticket at least by every one of Scotch sentiments in this vicinity, as the object is a good one to help provide funds to build a hall. That a city the size of St. John should be without some memorial of the idol of the Scottish race, Burns, is considered by all loyal Scots a scandal, and Clan MacKenzie hopes to wipe out the disgrace by erecting a Burns Memorial Hall. The proceeds of the gathering are for that object.
