

THE WIFE.

So near to Thee 'Tis but a veil that parts us, A veil of breath and light and let us in, And yet we breathe not, say thy name, and I have crossed the gulf that lies between?

So near to Thee! We almost catch the echo Of voices chanting some celestial hymn; We long in vain to sweep away the shadows That cloud our way, and shut Thy glory in.

So near to Thee! Once when the veil was lifted To let death's angel bear our loved one in, We wept and wept, with every nerve a-tremble, Eager to follow and escape from sin.

So near to Thee! Thou blessed, loving Saviour, Oh, lift the veil that hides Thee from our sight, Reach down, dear Lord, in pity and forgiveness, And raise us out of darkness into light.

The Present Mode of Life the Origin of Much Suffering and Woe.

Overwork is an American disease, and women are the sufferers therefrom. Much of this suffering is occasioned for wholly unnecessary. Many women have become druggies to the prevailing humor of the day, and give the best energies to fancy work and the ornamentation of their homes.

Wrinkles used to indicate age, but now they indicate worry. We have our school girls with wrinkled foreheads and harassed expression, already being trained to live under the "no time" pressure.

Looking at life from this standpoint, one is led to feel that St. Paul was the most available of men, for he had learned contentment in the present tense. Discontent is at the bottom of nine-tenths of the overwork and hurry among women; they must make just as good appearance as their neighbor whose income is far more, or whose necessary expenses far less than their own.

The agricultural statistics of Great Britain for 1885, which have recently been issued, show a very serious decrease from the yield of 1884 in some of the most important food products.

Perhaps the way to high civilization is to be found in the study of the habits of the Japanese. They will look alike to his surroundings, and impediments, and have more leisure for his own cultivation and enjoyment.

Mr. Winthrop, she interrupted, "yes, I would have been willing for an opportunity to exercise self-denial. Will you ever have a better one than this? Sign a pledge and keep it."

James Parton says: "The best man or woman is the one who can raise the best child." If this be true, what matters it sisters, that the clothes are faded away rough-dry, and the stove looks its lustre so long as the time we have gained is spent in behalf of our children?

the value of the stock will be increased, and large profits secured. To make a mare own her colt, take some milk from the mare and rub it on the colt's nose; then let the mare smell it, and she will own her colt at once.

A good hint for growing cucumbers, squashes, or similar plants, is to put old rags or straw about them. Those who have never tried cucumbers on strong, bushy stakes like pea sticks, will be surprised to note how they enjoy it.

Three ways of telling when plants in pots need water are thus recommended by a Dublin gardener: (1) By the appearance of the soil, or feeling it with the finger.

Now is a good time to sow the later peas, which are larger and finer flavored than the earlier. The first crop is coming forward rapidly, and with the present early season will soon be coming into bearing.

To make five gallon of brilliant stucco whitewash for buildings, inside and out, take six quarts of clean lumps of white stone lime; slack with hot water in a covered tub to keep in the steam.

TEMPERANCE. A Double Danger. BY MRS. A. C. MORROW. They had been much together—Douglas Winthrop and Lillian Lovell—and were growing fond of each other, as young folks will.

"You have saved my life," she said, and her voice was low and tremulous, "you have saved my life, and there is no way in which I can show my gratitude."

"I should not have the slightest confidence in myself under similar circumstances. I would not care to trifle with wine as you admit you are doing. It has even become with you, at times, a necessity."

"I cannot see how his action affected your responsibility." "Why, he was a regular hypocrite!" "Perhaps not. He may have been a reformed drunkard who was trying to save others. He may have stumbled and fallen. But, even allowing that he was a hypocrite, your pledge was just as binding, and should never have been broken. If you should have a house and sign a lease to keep it in repair for a year, and afterward should refuse to fulfill the conditions of the lease because the man of whom you rented the house had broken a similar contract, would any law of any State in the land uphold you?"

might still have been firm, but only a projecting fragment showed itself now on the white crest of the dangerous place. Would the horse turn the corner, or would he dash over the dangerous declivity?

"Not at all, but you are," noticing that his hands were wounded and bleeding. "That is nothing. It was well I ran to the right of the sleigh."

"A sleigh in motion will overturn much more readily to the left than to the right." "Mr. Winthrop, you have lost your horse!"

"I have saved you." His voice trembled. "Poor Dick! Do you suppose he is dead? Can we not do something for him?"

When Winthrop had removed the girl's wraps, and seated her in the great easy chair he asked: "Were you afraid of death, Lillian?"

"I was not the fear of death, Lillian, but the horrorfulness of it that paralyzed me, and I wondered—I thought—I—she hesitated."

"I understood her. He knew she had not meant grief for her loss because he loved her, but the bitter regret that in any way he had been powerless to prevent such a fearful accident from befalling a human being."

be a miserable, cowardly teacher, preaching one thing and practicing another, or failing to preach because I am unwilling to practice."

"The highest form of Christian life is self-denial for the benefit of others. What self-sacrifice should be counted too great if it enables us to save the weak and the sinful. Have I succeeded?"

"Like a thief at night it steals in upon us unawares. Many persons have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish colored expectoration. The afflicted one feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable, gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become constive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow, the urine is scanty and high-colored, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart; the vision becomes dimmed with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All of these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. It has been found that medical men have mistaken the nature of this disease. Some have treated it for a liver complaint, others for kidney disease, etc., etc., but none of the various kinds of treatment have been attended with success, because the remedy should be such as to act harmoniously upon each organ, and upon the stomach as well; for in Dyspepsia (for this is really what the disease is) all of these organs partake of this disease and require a remedy that will act upon all at the same time. Seigel's Urative Syrup acts like a charm in this class of complaints, giving almost immediate relief. The following letters from chemists of standing in the community where they live show in what estimation the article is held."

"I have always great pleasure in recommending the Urative Syrup, for I have never known a case in which it has not relieved or cured, and I have sold many gross."

"Great age carries with it a certain respectability which is just what to a person or thing. This is seen particularly in the case of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, which is the most marvelous internal and external remedy ever discovered. It ought to be kept in every house."

READ THIS! BUDS AND BLOSSOMS.

"BUDS AND BLOSSOMS," published at Halifax, N. S., is not only one of the cheapest, but also the best and best published for young people that has come under our observation. Pure and sprightly, interesting, intelligent and instructive, it cannot fail to do good in every family which receives its monthly visits. Its short graphic stories, its wealth of anecdotes and incidents, its striking illustrations, and its interesting manner of presenting the lives of the day, make it particularly charming to the young. And over and under and through it all breathes the pure and loving spirit of the Gospel of Christ, make it a benediction wherever it goes. We commend it to the readers of the Christian at Work as worthy of place in their home circles, and as a publication in promoting the circulation of which they will be promoting a genuine missionary work. It is just the publication the lives of the day, make it particularly charming to the young, and over and under and through it all breathes the pure and loving spirit of the Gospel of Christ, make it a benediction wherever it goes.
