WHITE SLAVE TRADE IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Rev. D. Hutchinson Makes Charge That Emissaries of Vile Traffic Operate in Province.

In a striking sermon delivered before a large congregation in the Main street Baptist church last evening, Rev. David Hutchinson declared that the stories told of the White Slave traffic were something more than newspaper sensations, and that the agents of this vile traffic were operating in the province of New Brunswick, and trying to lure young girls to the big cities and induce them to enter a life of shame.

He also dealt with various other evils which afflict society today, with great frankness, and declared that there was grave danger in the fact that men accept with such complacency the stories of graft, corruption and dishonesty in politics and business which are continually revealed.

Continuing, the speaker described the conditions which prevailed in Sodom.

White Slave Trade.

In connection with the immorality of the ancient city, he referred to the White Slave traffic, declaring that agents of the traffic were proselytizing in this province, and that the extent to which it was carried on was a disgrace to Christendom.

Continuing, he spoke of the dishonesty which prevailed in politics, and in connection with management of banks, insurance companies, etc. The same dishonesty which brought down the wrath of God upon the people of Sodom prevailed in politics and business today.

HALIFAX BLOCK BURNED SATURDAY

Grave Warning.

The Observer concludes its analysis of the "extraordinary argument of the Daily Mail with the proposition that Imperial preference can be perfectly well combined with Anglo-American reciprocity and declares that in the present state of Canada has given its grave warning, adding, however, that if the Unionists adhere to preference keeping their hands off to negotiate with Canada and the United States alike, the Empire may still be saved.

ENJOY EVENING WITH GREAT HYMNS

Innovation at Germain Street Church Proves Very Acceptable—Sketches of Well Known Hymns and Their Authors.

A unique and enjoyable service was held for the occasion, in the Baptist church last evening. It was called "Evening with Great Hymns," and instead of the usual form of service the hour was devoted to the singing of a number of well known hymns, such as Jesus Lover of My Soul, Rock of Ages, Abide With Me, and Others.

The Pastor, Rev. F. S. Porter, gave an interesting address on the ministry of music. He said music was of Divine origin, and an essential feature of all true religion, as through it men were able to give finer expression to the emotions of the soul than they could in words.

Probably the most interesting incident related was that of "Ninety and Nine," which was beautifully rendered as a solo, written by Mrs. R. C. Clephane on her death bed in 1888, and printed in a local Scottish paper as a poem. This hymn was first set to music by Ira D. Sankey quite extemporaneously while facing an audience of a thousand people at Glasgow.

Under her maiden name, Jean Wright, she has just published a volume entitled "A Fool on a Roof." Henry Watkinson hailed Mrs. Swope as a new genius to the extent of two columns in the Louisville Courier Journal. Mrs. Swope is a Louisville native.

The supreme court poetess has a fascinating gift of rhyme and a refreshing novelty of ideas. She writes poetry about just common things which all of us know.

A "Fool on a Roof" is the epic of the humble New Yorker who can mount to the roof of his apartment house, and there, where the stars seem close, and the glooming bulk of Henry Watkinson hauled Mrs. Swope as a new genius to the extent of two columns in the Louisville Courier Journal.

The speaker gave an account of the rise and fall of a number of ancient empires, including Greece, and described various institutions of Athens, such as the Acropolis, the Stadium, etc. He referred to ancient Pompeii and spoke of the glories of old Rome, and dealt with several features of the life of Rome today, mentioning the fact that a church dedicated to St. Patrick would be consecrated in Rome in a short time.

The speaker drew a contrast between Paganism and Christianity and showed how Ireland had maintained its vitality through its fidelity to the Christian church. He said that Athens erected a statue to Gladstone, and expressed the hope that Dublin would also erect a monument to the great English statesman who had raised the banner of home rule.

He also referred to the enmity to the Vatican manifested by certain bodies in Rome which were about to celebrate the 59th anniversary of the spoliation of the papacy of its temporal power, and said that if it were offered the Vatican millions of people in America and Canada would want to know why.

He also referred to the enmity to the Vatican in British countries, and expressed the hope that Canada would build up its western empire on the principles of Christianity and temperance. A God fearing and sober people was Canada's best defence against foreign invasion.

Mr. Funk explained that climatic conditions were particularly necessary in the barley industry, and that Ontario would at once capture the barley market.

The contention at once appealed to Chairman Payne, of the committee, who had made a vain fight when the tariff bill was up two years ago to secure free barley to aid the malting interests of New York.

"Will free barley mean a larger class of beer?" asked Chairman Payne.

"No, it will not," said Mr. Funk. "The price of a glass of beer will remain at 5 cents whether barley malt pay a duty or not."

The malting interests claimed that the peculiar conditions of the trade were such that if barley is admitted from eastern Ontario would supply the product and western New York the malting houses, so as practically to control the market.

Representative George R. Malby of New York attacked the reciprocity agreement because of its agricultural items and its lowering of duties on lumber and woodpulp and paper. He declared that the tariff board had spent months accumulating all facts bearing on the paper making business but that paper was put on the free list by this treaty without any reference to what the tariff board had found out.

"This treaty with Canada is but the entering wedge," said Mr. Malby. "It must be followed by treaties with other countries and it threatens the whole policy of protection."

Former Partner Of J. Pierpont Morgan Explains New Economic Scheme To Ottawa Canadian Club.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 5.—George W. Perkins, formerly partner of J. Pierpont Morgan, and corporation organizer explained his new economic scheme to the Canadian Club on Saturday.

He said in part:—"The day has gone with people living apart from one another without inter-communication; gone is the day when they were told by the church and state how they were to think, to go, never to return, inter-communication and education have, with their monstrous strides, brought us face to face with problems just as great as have been the causes which created them."

"The individual owner and manager becomes eliminated. Something must be found that will take the place of one directing mind, and the only thing that will do it is a large number of directing minds, by which, of course is meant, co-partnership corporations, reciprocity, profit-sharing, co-operative methods, wherein are all different names for the one central thought, that is 'people-izing modern industry.'"

"Some of us down in the United States, have felt that there were only two ways out of the present situation; first, the adoption by business men of a broad co-partnership method of doing business, or second a rapid drifting toward government ownership of many branches of business; or third, socialism."

Co-partnership Solution.

"No thoughtful man, having the real interests of his country at heart, can doubt for a moment, that the choice of these three methods should be the latter, the most vigorous, determined attempt at co-partnership."

Mr. Perkins went on to say that experiments along this line is some of the larger industrial concerns in the United States, but he was most gratifying, but that while they had been carried on it had become very clear that co-partnership must be practised with a reduction in the duties on British manufactures within the Empire, as likely to appeal strongly to the Canadian and British peoples and initiate Imperial free trade.

In this opinion, the question of wages was not so much whether a man should have so many shillings per day, as whether or not his pay, whatever it might be, was the proper proportion that was his due out of the earnings of the business in which he was engaged.

Unless the spirit of co-partnership is such as to make the manager of a business honestly weigh, and settle this question, co-partnership as between capital and labor will not work out in practise in this connection.
