

A white pine log cut in Ontario 23 years ago and left in the woods as "defective," according to the standards of that time.

The log harvest that draws $40,000,000 a year for Ontario's lumber production alone. Note size of logs to-day compared with the top picture.