THOMAS MULVEY,

Under-Secretary of State.

IN ANSWERING ADVERTISEMENTS, PLEASE MENTION THE "CANADIAN COURIER."

fired a volley! We'd have heard that, if it hadn't been for the noise we're making ourselves. No harm to waste a little ammunition! Well, good-by, gentlemen! Or shall we say au revoir?"

He laid down the glass beside him. "We're all very well out of that, Plamenac," he said after a pause. "But tell me what we're up against now. No more petrol stations ahead of us. And we've only got three hours' flight in us!"

"That's a good hundred and fifteen miles," answered Count Sergius, "even holding back as we do to keep from running away from Andrews and Gregory. But I calculated that something less than ninety miles' flying will take us over the border into Servia. This day, this weather—they seem to have been made for us."

"I don't know much about your Balkan weather," said Carver, "but if I were in Buffalo, I'd say this was most too good to last. This heat and this calm and this time o' year, taken all together, would be a weather-breeder. I'd be on the lookout for a thunder-squall."

"We'll pray it may keep off for three hours, anyhow!" replied the Count.

Now, at a height of about five hundred feet, Count Sergius slackened the dragon-fly's darting speed and gave the Farman a chance to creep gradually nearer. In the course of an hour the two machines were flying abreast. They were soaring over fertile plains, dotted with villages and interspersed with wide areas of woodland. Down on the earth, men and beasts, at this hour, were sweating under a sultry and ominous heat. But up here in the sky the voyagers were cooled by the wind of their winged rushing.

The Law of the Land

(From the Toronto Star.)

"I SUBMIT," said Father Bernard Vaughan in his sermon yesterday at the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, "that those who criticize the Ne Temere decree might do worse than study the new edition of the Book of Common Prayer, especially the edition 'printed for the new reign.' There they will find that marriage with a deceased wife's sister is declared to be invalid. On the other hand, the law of England has made all such unions perfectly lawful."

And with logic which cannot be disputed, the distinguished member of the Society of Jesus next asked: "What legal right, then, had the State Church, which was the creation of an Act of Parliament, which might end it as it had made it, to proclaim that such marriages were unlawful?"

Strictly speaking, none whatever. Nevertheless, the tolerant good sense of England is quite content to permit the Church of England or the Church of Rome to make any regulation for the governance of its own members which may appear right and fit to the authorities of either ecclesiastical body, provided always that these regulations are not forced upon citizens as being superior to the law of the land.

But if the Church of England (whether created by Act of Parliament or not) has no right to attempt to rise superior to the law of the land, neither has the Roman Catholic Church in the Province of Quebec the right to expect that the law of the land shall enforce its decrees to the detriment of the members of other religious organisations who should live under the protection of British law.

To most fair-minded Protestants, the illustration used by the learned Jesuit will appear to have been singularly ill-chosen.

It is to be remembered that the law of Canada expressly legalises marriage with a deceased wife's sister, and thus asserts the supremacy of the State over the Church of England or any other Church which denies the validity of such marriages.
