

3. There are, however, certain special cases for which provision must be made as indicated in the following appendices, and in addition to these cases the agreement should doubtless contain a general provision that the transfer shall not extend to any parcels of land now in occupation by officers of the Dominion Government for Dominion purposes. It might be advisable for greater certainty, but not so as to affect the generality of such a clause, to append to the agreement a schedule or to refer in it to a list of the parcels of land intended to be covered by such a general clause. Such a schedule or list would include the lands now used by the Post Office Department, by the Department of National Defence, by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and by such other departments of the Dominion Government as may be using Crown lands in the Province for departmental purposes.
