C. M. B. A. NOTES.

Amherstburg, March 12, 1881.-S. R. BROWN, Esq., Grand Recorder, C. M. B. A. BROWN, Esq., Grand Recorder, C. M. B. A. Dominion of Canada. My dear Sir and Bro.-I regret that our brethren in the C. M. B. A. are so reluctant to appear in print, and discuss in a free and friendly print, and discuss in a free and friendly manner the general interests of the or-ganization, so that its aims and objects may be heard of more frequently; and that the readers of the London RECORD who are not members may at least learn to think well of an association which was originated, and is now intended to band Catholics together in a closer union of mutual inter-ests than any society that exists with the sanction of the clergy. The recent Grand Council Convention was a meeting of Catholic gentlemen whose deliberations will undoubtedly bring forth good fruit in due time. It was certainly an honor to have been a member or representative of that Convention. The address of the Rt. Rev. Bishop to the Convention was one of great promise for the future of the C. M. B. A. in Ontario. The Priests who were present, and who are members of the Association, were enthusiastic in laying out the labor to be undertaken in order to extend its usefulness. None ought to know better than they the miseries that are sometimes entailed by the sudden or unexpected death of some member of their parish in impoverished circumstances, leaving a wife and a family more or less numerous and without means of support. They know better than any that too often the poor orphan children are placed around in such families as are willing to receive them, and not unfrequently in families of an opposite belief, or else of such weak faith or practice that the poor orphan is brought up to work, but not to pray, and souls are fre quently lost by such unfortunate occur-rences. It ought to be vastly different where the deceased was a member of the C. M. B. A. in good standing. The $2000 judiciously managed is a good safeguard against such a misfortune as leaving a fam y in destitution, and liable to be obliged submit to a dispersion injurious to their faith. I will not now intrude at greater length upon your space. The Supreme convention will, no doubt, discuss, and perhaps adopt amendments to the constitu-tion similar to some of those recently acted upon by the Gr nd Council Conven-tions lately in session, all tending to ad-vance the general interests of the C. M. B.

When the work of this body shall become known, I hope to see a general dis-cussion of Canadian C. M. B. A. matters cussion of Canadian O. H. W. yours, in your columns. Fraternally yours, H. W. DEARE.

Let me set on foot an inquiry that has frequently presented itself to my mind, and that is, Why are Catholic Societies so and that is, why are Catholic Societies so slow to propagate and so difficult to main-tain? I have asked myself since I be-came a member of Branch No. 3, why did the C. M. B. A. take such root in and around Buffalo, but has not extended far-ther East than Rochester ? Why has not New York City with her fifty or more parishes not embraced this association ? Why has not Philadelphia with her thousands of Catholics and numerous parishes organized a single Branch? The same question may be asked of Cincinnati, Boston, Albany, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Willwarks, Torons, M. M.

THE MASS MEETING IN HYDE PARK.

At the recent mass meeting held in At the recent mass meeting held in Hyde Park, for the purpose of protesting against the coercion act, Mr. Justin McCarthy was rejoiced to address that great meeting, for it brought the English and Irish population together, for they should remember that the cause of the Irish poor was the same as that of the English poor. It was only by a thorough union of the English and Irish democracy that the great cause which they all had that the great cause which they all had alike at heart would be carried to a suc-cessful issue (cheers). The Liberal Minis-try, which they had applauded a few months ago, wanted to pass a Coercion Bill for Ireland, because her representa-tives compained of the wrong and suffice tion. tives complained of the wrongs and suffer-ings under which she laboured, and they desired to pass a gagging act because the Irish members would not allow that bill to pass unopposed. The Government to pass unopposed interference to container, had suspended and expelled thirty-six Irish members, who refused to sit in sil-ence while this measure was being forced through, and they had now come to ap-peal from the English Parliament to the English people, and to ask them whether they approved of the men to whom they intrusted the conduct of the affairs of th nation (cheers). That meeting showed him that Irishmen had the sympathy, the voices, and the encouragement of the Eng lish people (cheers). He asked the Eng Eng-

In concluding, the lecturer eloquently referred to the genius of St. Thomas, and traced in glowing language the range of this model philosopher.

The next subject, "Evolution," by Mr. os. F. Quinn and Mr. Francis R. Latchford, was perhaps more lively than the others, being treated in dialogue form. The subject included the cycle of sciences ned an interview with Joubert. The laist studied in the college course, and was ren-dered pleasing by the language and de-livery of the debaters. The subject was divided into the following topics :--True origin of theory ; difference between the origin of theory ; difference between physical and vital principle; spontaneous generation; structure and the moral generation; structure and the moral effects. Mr. Quinn, as an advocate of evolution, adduced the strongest argu-ments of its most learned defenders, and forced Mr. Latchford to some of the strongest proofs of the scholastics. The claim of the evolutionists that their theory is the result of the advance of scientif tory. servation of our century was proved by Mr. Latchford to be false, and h e showed onclusively that the principal was taught 4,000 years ago, and was known by the Grecian atomists, and even by Confucius. Mr. Quinn in his atomic theories went as far as the keen eye of the physicists could, and while the scholastics found but little to fear from simple observation, he went beyond the atom and clearly explained what appeared to be the hidden principle which
