HUMOROUS.
 "Mike, did you ever catch frogs?" "Yes, sorr." "What did you bait with?" "Bate 'em wid a stick, sorr."
 "Heaven lies about us in our infancy," says the poet. Yes, and our neighbors lie about us when we grow up.

It is not strange that writers get puzzled in their choice between "that," "which," and "who." Relatives are always more or less troublesome.
 Here is a bit of brightness from one of the little folks which deserves passing on. The teacher had been telling the story of David, and said in ending, "All this happened more than three thousand years ago." Whereupon one little which looked up and said: "Oh dear, ma'am, what a memory you have got!"

An old lady recently visiting a prison asked one of the attendants why the prisoners received such coarse food. He told her to keep her blood pure. And when asked what they would do if their blood became impure, he calmly responded, "Break out."

A little boy, watching the burning of the schoolhouse until the novelty of the thing had ceased, started down the street, saying: "I'm glad the old thing's burned down; I didn't have my jogy lesson, now."

When you see the mother of a ten year old boy making rapid progress in the direction of the river, with a good stout bean pole in her hand, you will not be far out of the way should you conclude she is going fishing. She is going on a "whaling" voyage—provided she can find the boy.

"Do you believe in second love, Mr. McDonald?" "Do I believe in second love? Humph! If a man buys a pound of sugar isn't it sweet? and when it's gone, don't he want another pound? and isn't that pound sweet too? Troth, Murphy, I believe in second love."

"Sara, this going out incessantly I cannot have; next Sunday you must stay at home all day." "But ma'am, I have promised my aunt to spend the afternoon with her." "Senny, interceding: "Do let her go, ma'am; her aunt has been made a sergeant, and has got a new coat with stripes on it, and a great, long sword."

"Dear Old Pa" was There.
 It was dark in the depot one day last week when the evening train came in. An elderly farmer was backed up against the partition, watching in open-mouth wonder the big pulling engine and the yellow-covered cars as they discharged the passengers, when a handsome young girl in a seal-skin cloak dashed forward, and throwing herself upon the honest granger's manly breast, imprinted a kiss upon his sunburned cheek, and exclaimed:

"You dear old pa, I knew you would be waiting for me! And how's mother and how's Jennie and how's John—and oh! I'm so glad to get back—and where's my trunk—and oh! pa, you take the check and let's hurry."

The granger was old and kind of dried up, and he had never known what it was to have a wife, much less a daughter. He mistook the young lady in the seal-skin for a young girl, but instead of stammering and hemming and hawing, he came gallantly up to the scratch, and throwing both arms around the fair creature, he made up his mind to be a father to her or die in the attempt. Imprinting a kiss like the report of a pistol on her cheek he enthusiastically exclaimed:

"Oh, yer mother's well, an' John an' Henry an' (smack) an' Jane an' Susan (smack, smack) an' Horace an' Belinda an' Calvin (smack) an' Peter (smack, smack), oh, they'er all smart an' hearty an'—"

By the time the young lady's friends could get to her she had slid into a stony faint, and they had to lug her home in a hack, while the aged granger as he finished the third round with his outraged young man and sauntered out of the depot, leaving him with a bad eye and a ruptured coat, chucked to himself:

"The old man's gettin' old an' stiff an' careless like, but when any young females wants to play any games o' copenhang, they'll find him right to time, an' I shouldn't be surprised if it rained 'fore nine o'clock. Glang, Kate."

He Paid in Advance.
 A Carson City paper says a young man came into Justice Gray's court-room with the rim of his hat drawn down over his eyes, and remarked:

"Do you know me?"
 "I think," replied the court, meekly, "that you are the chap I sentenced for stealing about a year ago."
 "That's just the harpin I am," replied the other; "and here's twenty dollars for my fine."

"But you served your term in jail," said the judge, "and owe no fine."
 "That's all right, old boy; but I'm about to commit an assault and battery, and I guess I'll settle now. You're the man I propose to lick."

"Oh, that's it," rejoined the court, pocketing the coin; "then you can start in, and we'll call it square."

 The young man advanced to the court and let out his left. The Judge ducked his head, and raising up lifted the intruder in the eye with a left-hander and sent him over against the wall. In a moment the court was climbing all over the man, and in about three minutes his face was hardly recognizable. The man begged the court to let up, which he finally did. As the fellow was about to go out, Cary went after him with—
 "See here, young man, I don't think the fighting you did ought to be assessed at any more than $2.50; here's $17.50 in change. I ain't charging you anything for fighting, but just for my cent. Next time I won't charge you a cent."
 The rough took the change and the next train for Virginia City.

The editor of the Advance expresses himself concerning women in the following lively manner. It is too good to lose: Good ladies! Victor Hugo declares the nineteenth century to be "the woman's century." If it be so, that the supreme character and historic current of the century is in your hands, remember, we of the other side will hold you responsible! Pardon us, if we venture to suggest: Isn't it about time for you to put an end to wars; to close our grog-shops; to raise up a generation of boys and men whose purity and honesty and honor no temptation shall overthrow; to put some limit to the costly and tyrannous mania of capricious fashion; to teach the churches of the same denominational family to work together in complete co-operation, and the churches of other denominations to illustrate a finer sense of denominational unity; and finally to put the world generally in love with whatsoever is pure, and true, honest, lovely and of good report? Respectfully we wait for an answer—Keep on waiting, Mr. Advance.

 D. BLACK, Vice-President.
 W. E. VINING, Treasurer.
 C. G. CODY, Inspector.

The Fire Office, now in the 21st year of its existence, is doing a larger, safer and better business than ever, having in the month of June issued 1,940 policies and in July 2,002 policies—a number never before exceeded except by itself.

1st. That the "London Mutual" was the pioneer of cheap farm insurance in Canada, and that its rates have always been placed as low as is commensurate with the hazard; that being Purely Mutual, it has no stockholders, and all profits are added to its reserve fund to give better security to its members.

2nd. That it is the only Company that has always strictly adhered to one class of business, and now has more property at risk in the Province of Ontario than any other Company—stock or mutual—English, Canadian or American, (vide Government Returns).

3rd. That it has paid nearly a million dollars in compensation for losses, having distributed the same in nearly every township in the Province.

4th. That its books and affairs are always open to the inspection of the members, and the Directors are anxious that the privileges should be exercised.

FARMERS! Patronize your own old, sound, safe, economical Company, and be not led away by the delusions of new ventures, and the theories of amateurs in the insurance business.

For insurance apply to any of the agents, or address, W. E. VINING, Manager.
