A FAMOUS OLD BRIDGE.

It is Curiously Decorated With Historic Pictures.

Few places in Switzerland are more interesting than the historic old city of Lucerne, at the junction of the river Reuss and Lake Lucerne, memorable for historic associations with the heroic legends of William Tell.

Across the river are two wonderful wooden bridges, the Muehlenbrücke, or "Mill bridge," with its quaint pictures of the "Dance of death," and the Kapellbrücke, or "Chapel bridge." This chapel bridge was constructed as long ago as 1333 and for nearly 600 years formed the chief avenue of traffic across the broad but sluggish stream. Anciently the bridge extended its zigzag shape to nearly twice its present length and reached as far as the Hofkirche, or cathedral, whence its name, the Chapel bridge.

In the center of this covered wooden bridge stands the famous octagonal Wasserthurm, or water tower, where in olden times the municipal treasure was stored. For ages it was also used as a prison and among the dungeons as a torture chamber.

But the most unique feature of all consists of the curious pictures in the roof of the bridge. These old pictures—sixty-nine of them—are painted on triangular wooden panels which fit into the pitched roof of the bridge. One after another they tell the most salient facts of Swiss history or portray events in the life of the tutelary saints of the town, St. Leodegar and St. Maurice.

MAKES MEN SOUND AND STRONG

Detroit Specialist Making Men's Diseases a Specialty for Years. Will Accept Your Case, Giving Individual Treatment. You may Use it in the Privacy of Your Own Home.

Dr. S. Goldberg.

Dr. S. Goldberg, who has 14 diplomas and certificates from medical colleges and state boards of medical examiners, and who has a vast experience in doctoring diseases of men, is positive he can cure a great many so-called incurable cases.

DR. S. GOLDBERG.

The possessor of 14 diplomas and certificates, who waxes no money that he does not earn.

In order to convince patients that he has the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg will accept your case for treatment, and you need not pay any penny until a complete cure has been made; he wants to hear from patients who have been unable to get cured, as he guarantees a positive cure for all chronic, nervous, blood and skin diseases, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney troubles, blood poison, physical and nervous debility, lack of vitality, stomach trouble, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up; so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured, he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It seems, therefore, that it is to the best interests of everyone who suffers to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him, which will receive careful attention, and a correct diagnosis of your case will be made free of charge; if you have lost faith write him, as you have everything to gain and nothing to lose; you must remember that one penny need be paid until you are cured. All medicines for patients are prepared in his laboratory to meet the requirements of each individual case. He will send a booklet on the subject, which contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply 111 E. St. Clair, Detroit, Mich. For Canadian patients sent from Windsor, Ont., consequently there is no duty to be paid.

A PIONEER OF ONTARIO

TOOK AN ACTIVE PART IN STIRRING TIMES OF '37.

Arrested As a Rebel and Was Convicted of High Treason and Sentenced to Be Hanged—Sentence Was Changed to Banishment and Loss of All His Property—Passing of a Historic Figure.

The death of Charles Ferdinand Durand in Toronto on Wednesday, August 16, 1905, at the ripe age of 94 years, reminds The Globe that early in the rebellion of 1837, while on his way home from a business trip to Toronto, Mr. Durand was arrested at Streetsville as being an active friend of the rebellion. He was escorted back to Toronto to be confined, under Capt. McGrath. This arrest Mr. Durand declared to be the result of the malignity of personal enemies. Mr. Durand's description of his hardships as a prisoner, told in his book of "Reminiscences," on which this biography is based, is most graphic. He also gives an interesting sketch of scenes in Toronto when Mackenzie's men arrived. From a temporary imprisonment in the northwest wing of the old Parliament buildings, he was removed to the prison, then on Toronto street, opposite the Deputy Receiver-General's office, where, in company with fifty others, he spent his first Christmas after his marriage. Among his fellow-prisoners was the late Dr. James Morrison of the Legislature; Mr. James Leslie, a close friend of Mackenzie; Mr. Cathcart, whose monument is conspicuous in the Necropolis; Mr. John Doel, father of Rev. John Doel and William H. Doel; Dr. Hunter, father of Dr. James Hunter of Stouffville, and Joseph Gould, late member of the House of Commons. In two rooms of small dimensions these political prisoners cooked their meals, received provisions from their wives and friends on the outside, and read news from home cunningly concealed in piddings, pies and poultry. Bishop Strachan and Rev. John Ross, grandfather of Messrs. James R. and William Ross of Toronto, were frequent visitors at the prison.

Mr. Durand's wife, at that time only seventeen years old, was terrorized by "these lawless upholders of the law," who surrounded and plundered his home in Hamilton and put her under arrest for some time while on her way to Toronto to be near her husband. In addition to this enforced separation from his wife he fell a victim to the jail fever and lay among smallpox victims, where his wife, notwithstanding the danger, came to visit him. Her brother also visited him and contracted the smallpox.

Mr. Durand was the following year brought before a jury presided over by Sir John Beveridge, Robinson and Mr. Justice C. A. Hagerman, convicted of high treason, and sentenced to be hanged. The Patriot of May 15th, 1838, contains a complete account of this trial. The prisoner was charged with conspiring and conspiring with divers unknown persons for the overthrow of the Government, also for the purpose of procuring arms. Through his extreme Radical views expressed in the journals of the day he was held to be inciting people to join in revolt. One witness deposed that a letter written to William Lyon Mackenzie under the name of John Hampton was the prisoner's handwriting disguised. A stage driver testified that on the 6th December of the preceding year, while driving the mail coach from Toronto to Cooksville, Mackenzie had stopped the coach, in which was Mr. Durand, among others, and ordered them out. He affirmed that the prisoner had jumped out and welcomed Mackenzie with great cordiality, shaking him by the hand, and for many years, while the stage was passing, he had given him information concerning the movements of the rebels in Toronto. He had been allowed to go on his way, while the remaining passengers were detained and their baggage inspected. A Dutchman named Shafer contributed what is spoken of as "perjured testimony" in which Mr. Durand was accused of having done certain picket duty for the rebels and of having been of assistance to Mackenzie in various ways.

In his defence Mr. Durand affirmed that any letters that he had written to Mackenzie were of a business nature connected with The Constitution newspaper, of which he was an agent. Regarding the stage coach incident in his reminiscences, he says: "We went quietly along Queen street, all wooded then, and through the woods of the airport of the road until we came to the hotel called the Peacock Inn. Then suddenly there came out Mr. Mackenzie and two armed men; one was Capt. Adam Graham and the other a man named Alves. I did not know the stage passengers; one was a woman, one a Dutchman, and the third a gentleman named Whiting, as I afterwards learned. I merely saluted Mackenzie and shook hands with him; I had known him a long time, and was an agent for his newspaper in Hamilton. The guards left us before we came to the inn. We were told to get out, and the mail man to give up his mail, by Mackenzie. We all got out. Any acquaintance I asked me (which I can't recollect) what the Government party were doing in Toronto, but, if so, I would have truly replied I could not tell. I saw, as I have said, no one on Tuesday, in fact, knew no one in the city and could give no information to him."

Mr. Durand further protested that although in many respects in sympathy with the rebels, who, in his estimation, were merely endeavoring to break up the Family Compact, with its attendant wrongs and oppressions, still he had thought their action ill-advised, and had never countenanced it by word or deed. After his arraignment, in response to a petition to the Lieutenant-Governor, his sentence was changed to banishment and the loss of all his property. After a six years' residence in Chicago, he received a pardon, and, returning to Canada, opened a law office in Toronto in 1844, next door to where Webb's Restaurant now is. There he secured an extensive law practice, and in his spare moment contributed to The Examiner and The Globe. In 1851 Mr. Durand founded The Sons of Temperance, a newspaper, and by his great industry, traveling in a bugey through both Upper and Lower Canada, his paper soon enjoyed a substantial circulation in both Provinces. His wife, who, it seems, never quite recovered from the shock of the Mackenzie rebellion, died in 1855, leaving six children, all girls. In 1870 Mr. Durand, by virtue of his articles on the Division Courts in The Law Journal, and his legal experience, was appointed by the Sandfield Macdonald Government to inspect all legal offices below the Queen's Bench throughout Ontario. At this time, writes Mr. Durand, the clerks of the various courts and the clerks of the various courts were careless in discharge of their duties, and supervision was required, not only over them, but over several judges. An extensive series of letters in The Leader on the public affairs of the country appeared over his name up to 1875. They dealt for the most part with the Confederation movement and criticisms on George Brown's policy.

Mr. Durand had given up the active practice of law many years before his death, but up to the last evinced a great interest in public affairs, and as late as 1896 discussed the absorbing Manitoba school question in the columns of The Orange Sentinel and The Winnipeg Tribune.

The deceased had often described himself politically as a non-partisan Liberal. In his book of reminiscences, which extend up to 1900, he has discussed with much vigor the various political crises from the war of 1812 up to the present time. He centres his energy upon the incidents of the rebellion of 1837, from which he suffered so much, and denounces Allan MacNab with no small vigor. Marshall S. Bidwell was particularly admired by Mr. Durand, also Robert Baldwin. Of politicians generally, Mr. Durand had his private opinions, which he usually expressed.

Mr. Durand was extremely patriotic, and in his love for Canadian scenery he would not admit there were any natural beauties which his native land did not possess. Of forest lore and bird lore he had a natural knowledge, and in his work reverts constantly to the pioneer surroundings of Upper Canada in the days when the town of Niagara was larger than Toronto, and when they dug for gold in the vicinity of Hamilton. These were the stage coach days, and the days when oxen were more useful than horses. His description of Chicago, where he spent his exile, is like the America Dickens' Martin Chuzzlewit saw.

Fundamental religion played a great part in Mr. Durand's judgments of men and affairs; he cordially detested hypocrisy and affectations, and was indeed, a man of strict moral calibre. He was particularly fond of young people, and for many years, while he was in the various Sunday schools of Toronto, where he took delight in awarding prizes for Biblical knowledge.

There is no disputing the fact that man's heart is often man's enemy. The housewife who pleases her husband with well cooked food for the table. Many a man is roughly, ugly, nervous, suffering from distress after eating, heart palpitation, and all through the overworked stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which helps the digestion of food in the stomach, assists the blood in taking up the proper elements from the food, helps the liver into activity, thereby throwing out the poisons in the blood and vitalizing the whole system. This assimilation helps in the oxidation of the red blood corpuscles, the poisons in the system are eliminated, the heart gets the right kind of blood and the person feels invigorated and stronger in consequence. As a tissue builder it is preferable to cod liver oil or any other food compound or tonic, because it gives the blood and the tissues the food elements they require and maintains a person's nutrition by enabling him to eat, retain, digest and assimilate nutritious food. It overcomes the gastric irritability and symptoms of indigestion. Because of the good effects from using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery upon nutrition and building up of the tissues, catarrh, constipation, weakness or debility and symptoms of liver, night-sweats, headaches, etc., disappear.

"I believe that it is generally conceded that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine for a man to take suffering from indigestion, kidney trouble, or any of the conditions resulting from overwork or neglecting a cold," writes J. Russell Hill, of 32 Barrie Street, Kingston, Ontario, Recording Secretary, Imperial Knights' Federation League of Kingston. "I have used it several times during the past few years and have always found that it gave me immediate relief. It cures excessive uric acid in the system, due to improper digestion, relieves the kidneys from congestion, drives and tones up the general system. I consider it a fine remedy for young or old men, sure to build up a run-down condition of the system."
