

No More Misery in the Stomach.

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia vanish in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diaprepin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigestion in five minutes. Diaprepin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you eat to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diaprepin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach ailment.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

"St. Elmo."

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—There are many people who would like to see that popular drama "St. Elmo" put on the boards again. It was played here by the Klark-Urban Co. on their last visit to St. John's, and met the approval of all, especially of those who have read the clever novel of the same name by Evans Wilson. I feel sure that this gentle intimation to Messrs. Klark-Urban will have the effect of re-erecting her go, and be assured, gentlemen, a "full house" shall appreciate.

Yours sincerely, Mr. Editor,
P. I. K.

Anniversary of the Big Fire.

To-day is the anniversary of the fire which swept the premises of Baird, Gordon & Co. out of existence three years ago, and also destroyed Frew's and Garland's business places. The extensive warehouse premises and wharves of Baird, Gordon & Co. were completely wiped out, the Gibraltar was burnt to the water's edge and several craft narrowly escaped destruction. The premises has since been rebuilt and is one of the finest in the city.

Is Doing Well.

Mr. N. W. Chown, who left here a few months ago and is settled with his family at Winnipeg, in writing to friends here by last mail says that he is delighted with the country and is doing well there. He has started business as cabinet maker and upholsterer and gets all the business he can handle. He wishes to be remembered to all old friends.

THE GOLF LINKS.—The final game for the Ladies Championship was played yesterday afternoon between Mrs. F. C. Alderdice and Miss Pauline Baird, resulting in favor of Mrs. Alderdice by two holes up and one to decide. This is the second year in which the cup has been won by Mrs. Alderdice. Congratulations.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE PUBLISHED BY THE UNIVERSITY PRESS, THE NEW [11th] EDITION OF THE Encyclopaedia Britannica.

28 years since the last entirely new edition

HITHERTO, new editions of the Encyclopaedia Britannica have appeared at intervals, on an average, of 14 years.

The first seven editions (1768-1830) were separated from one another by periods of 11 or 12 years; but, as the labour and cost of preparation increased, with the vast multiplication of special studies, the intervals grew longer. 21 years separated the 7th edition (1830-42) from the 8th (1853-60), 25 years the 8th from the 9th (1875-89). If 1882 be taken as the mean date of the 9th edition, it will be seen that 28 years separate it from the new edition which has just been completed.

The 9th and 10th editions.

The lapse, on this occasion, of so long a period is due to the extension of life afforded to the 9th edition by "The Times," which, in 1902, issued a supplement sufficiently important to entitle the enlarged work to the description of the 10th edition. A large number of copies had been sold of the 9th edition, which contained articles of great distinction.

Such an extension of life, therefore, seemed doubly desirable. Important as were the additions thus made, the issue of supplementary volumes was recognized to be but a temporary measure. When the first volume of the 9th edition appeared (1875) a German Empire under the leadership of Prussia, a united Italy with its capital in Rome, a Japanese empire centralised under the sovereignty of the Mikado, were institutions only four years old. The first 12 volumes had appeared by 1881. The British occupation of Egypt had not begun; the subject of bacteriology had not sufficiently advanced to be referred to in the book; gold had not yet been discovered in the Transvaal; no public electric supply station had yet been built in London. The series of 24 volumes was completed by 1889. The Trans-Siberian railway had not yet yielded to the use of sterilized instruments; of the first-class battleships and cruisers constructed at the time when the article "Ship" was written, none are now in commission, save for instructional purposes. Some years were still to pass before the discovery of the X Rays, before the appearance of motor cars, electric traction, steam turbines, and aeroplanes.

Special Terms of Subscription are now offered in Newfoundland for a short period only.

In announcing, before publication, the issue of a new edition (the 11th) of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the Cambridge University Press invited applications, in advance of publication, at specially low prices. These terms were withdrawn and the price advanced in the United Kingdom, in Canada, in India and in the United States on May 31st last, when the publication of the 29th or Index Volumes finally completed the new issue.

The price is now higher in the United Kingdom and elsewhere than in Newfoundland

The advantage of the low prices, it was felt, should not, however, be withheld from other dominions of the British Empire, or, indeed, from any place inhabited by the English speaking people, to whom the Encyclopaedia Britannica specially appeals. It is, therefore, with the purpose of placing the reading public of Newfoundland in the same advantageous position in regard to price that was enjoyed by others up to May 31st last, that these special terms of application at low prices are now offered. They will only remain in force for a short period.

A Cheap Book at the present price.

The book is now, therefore, at its cheapest and the present low price may be more easily afforded by all owing to the institution of serial payments. $5.00 is all the immediate outlay that is required to obtain delivery of the 29 volumes, and after they have been received purchase may be completed by monthly payments of the same small amount.

Full details of terms will be found in the Prospectus which will be sent post free on application. Readers should make application at once upon the coupon in the bottom right hand corner of this announcement.

The Need for an entirely new edition.

It was evident that, while additional volumes might make good many omissions created by the lapse of time, the edition of 1875-89, thus supplemented after an interval of twenty years, could not claim the normal duration of a new edition. No such process of "bringing up to date," nor any subsequent merging of the supplementary articles with those in the 9th edition, could thoroughly renew a book of which the contents were already beginning to reflect the point of view of a past generation. An entirely new edition—one founded, that is to say, upon a fresh survey of the world—was evidently needed, and the year 1910 was mentioned as a probable date for its appearance. The 11th edition, then, is to be compared with the 9th, to which it succeeds as the next entirely new edition.

The new and improved edition.

Now, the Encyclopaedia Britannica enters upon another period of its history with the issue of a new edition which is worthy to supersede the 9th. If in the distinction of individual contributors the 9th edition set a standard not to be surpassed, the new edition, in keeping pace with the increase of special studies during the past thirty years, may claim to have brought to a fuller development the principle of resorting for articles to original authorities. In its more exhaustive treatment, in the better distribution of its information, and in its interior organization generally, the new edition makes a great advance, due to the simultaneous production of the entire work from beginning to end as contrasted with the publication, volume by volume over a lengthy period, of former editions. If the cost of producing the 9th edition has been more than doubled in the present case, so also has the utility of the book and the amount of information afforded in its pages. An improvement, of which the importance could hardly be over-estimated, has taken place also in the material production of the work. The bulk and weight of its volumes have hitherto afforded real ground of complaint against the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The new edition consists of 28 volumes, and an index volume, each measuring only an inch thick and weighing but 3 lbs., yet together they contain (in type of the same size) over 2 million words more than did the 35 volumes of the 10th edition, each of which was nearly 3 inches thick and weighed some 7 lbs.

The Cambridge University Press.

Only a great newspaper could have accomplished what stands to the credit of "The Times"; the sale of the reprinted 9th edition revealed the popularity of the work and assured its continuance. A newspaper office is, however, no abiding place for such a publication. It is, indeed, to a university that a work of such educational value recommends itself as the proper charge, whether regard be had to the learning which goes to its preparation, or to the purpose which it serves as an instrument of progress. As the product of the scientific spirit at work in every department of knowledge, the Encyclopaedia Britannica comes with a certain propriety into the keeping of the University of Cambridge.

Bentley, in 1693, said of the Cambridge University Press that "the advancement of learning" must ever be its object. In the results of original research which go to the making of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica, learning is indeed advanced though over a large field than Bentley contemplated when he used the word "learning." The universities themselves, old and new, no longer limit the scholarship to the humanities and the pursuit of pure science, but include even the most practical among the activities which the new edition embraces in its survey. The new Encyclopaedia Britannica is calculated also to advance learning in another sense of the word "advance." Research, and the training of generations to prosecute research, are not the only duties of a university, which is the centre, also, for the diffusion of the learning it fosters. Nothing is more remarkable in the recent history of the ancient universities than the evidence afforded—for instance, in the establishment of the University Extension Lectures—of their desire to enlarge the sphere within which this diffusion may take place.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica offers itself as a powerful instrument to this end, and now, in its new form, goes forth from Cambridge to meet a popularity, not only deserved and expected, but proven and assured.

MELBOURNE, Oct. 25.
Grave concern is felt throughout the Commonwealth of Australia over the assertion that all overseas vessels subsidized by foreign countries are easily convertible into Commerce Destroyers upon the outbreak of war. Private advices have been received that State liners flying the German flag are especially equipped for this contingency. A feeling of apprehension is prevailing throughout the country. As a resolution has been moved in Parliament to the effect that action should forthwith be taken to discourage such shipping from trading in Australian waters. The Prime Minister said: "We say emphatically that ships of other nations which come to trade in our waters must not presume too much on our good nature and equip themselves so that they may act as ships of war upon the declaration of hostilities."

The Naval Service Department has decided to hold a court martial for the stranding of H. M. S. Niobe off the Cape. As there are not at present in the Canadian Naval Service a sufficient number of officers of proper rank to constitute a Court Martial, arrangements have been made with the Admiralty to loan a sufficient number of officers. Orders have been given the fourth cruiser squadron to sail immediately for Halifax. The squadron is composed of five first-class cruisers commanded by Rear-Admiral Bradford, who will be authorized by the Naval Service Department to convene a Court Martial for the purpose of investigating the conduct of the officers of the Niobe and the instances which led to the stranding. The vessels will arrive at Halifax on November 11th.

Buying More Salt Bulk

Mr. M. Condon to whom we referred a few days ago has purchased for the Gordon Fish Co., at Petty Harbor, a lot of 30,000 lbs. of salt bulk fish giving 3 cents per pound for it. Formerly this fish was kept till the spring when it was "washed out" and cured for market. Next spring, however, there will be very little fish of this kind to come to the city as it will have been sold.

RELIEF IS QUICK; BUT CURE IS SURE

Napoleon Vaillancourt Speaks of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

They soon cured his Kidney troubles, and in six months there is no sign of their coming back.

St. Anne des Monts, Gaspe Co., Que., October 25. (Special).—"It is six months since I was cured, and I have had no return of my trouble," in these words, Napoleon Vaillancourt, a well known resident of this place, gives evidence that Dodd's Kidney Pills not only give quick relief to sufferers from Kidney Disease, but clean that disease out, root and branch, and cure it permanently.

That Mr. Vaillancourt had Kidney Disease everyone here knows. That he is cured is also established beyond a doubt. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it. "My back bothered me, also my heart and my kidneys, and my limbs would cramp," Mr. Vaillancourt states in giving his experience. Now all that is gone and he is a sound healthy man. Do you wonder that he recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills? Dodd's Kidney Pills cure quickly and permanently because they go right to the root of the trouble. They act directly on the Kidneys. They never fail to cure.

Clothes Thieves About.

Last evening Mrs. P. J. O'Reilly of Water Street hung out a large lot of household clothing and effects which had been washed, out on line in the back yard. This morning she discovered that some thief had visited the place during the night and cleaned out the whole thing. The clothing stolen was worth at least $10. The matter will be reported to the police.
