THE DOVE OF PEACE. The dove of peace is a bedraggled bird with one eye closed, four tail feathers missing and both hips out of joint. It was in good health until August, 1914, but has not drawn a sober breath since.

The dove was chosen to symboliz peace because it is one of the few birds in existence which can be de pended upon to turn the other cheek. Nobody ever saw a pair of doves climb down off the ridge pole and go six rounds with bare knuckles. The chesty, red-breasted woodpecker can walk up to a whole flock of adult doves and extract an apology alone and single-handed. While we admire these qualities in the dove, some people are unreasonable enough to object to including them on our social. eligious, political and national life. The dove of peace was established n order to prevent war and bloodshed, and for several years it oper ated in a highly successful and well lubricated manner. Then came the great war, which showed that brotherly love is a good thing when it doesn't interfere with business, and the dove of peace went into total bankruptcy. Millions of men are being thrown under the sod over in Europe because half a dozen men controlled the levers which opened the bloody gates of hell, made every cabinet a mad house and transformed the dove of peace into a red-eyed vulture with gory talons. Many attempts have been made to evive the dove of peace, restore her umage, remove her splints and put ner back on the pedestal, but at this writing it looks as if nobody is going to be thoroughly satisfied and pleased until everybody is whipped. There is one consolation, however. The next ime the dove of peace gets back on the job it will not be left to five or six men to kick her off the nest. The people who are doing the fighting and paying the bills will have something to say about the next war, and they will say it in a tone of voice that will

If there really is luck in getting trade it has to be dug out and captured and held fast. Holding trade and increasing it, when all's said and done is not luck, its enterprise. The man who has ideas is not the lucky one at all times. His ideas are worth nothing if he doesn't put them into action. That he enjoys a prosperous trade is not luck. It merely shows that he let the notion of luck strictly alone.
