MESSAGES.

FOREVER MEMORABLE.

LONDON, Nov. 1.

Reuter's Ottawa Agency.—The British War Cabinet has telegraphed Marshall hearty congratulations on the splendid success in dealing with the Turkish Army, and the liberating Mesopotamia from the yoke under which its people have suffered for many centuries. The victory was due to the resourceful and energetic leadership, and excellent work and the endurance and resource of all ranks, who worthily maintained the reputations of the British and Indian armies. The Mesopotamian expedition will be forever memorable in the annals of the British Empire.

O. C. S. MEMORIAL.

LONDON, Nov. 1.

Reuter's Ottawa Agency.—The Overseas Club, which raised £100,000 sterling for war purposes, is appealing to its 175,000 members to contribute to a war memorial fund, for the purpose of erecting a building in London for overseas use, as a club, and to serve as a centre for other useful activities.

AUTOCRACY COLLAPSING.

LONDON, Nov. 1.

Reuter's Ottawa Agency.—Ex-Premier Asquith, speaking at Glasgow today, said that the most striking change occurring in Europe was the complete and irrevocable collapse of autocracy. In 1914 three Emperors ruled the greater part of Europe, and large part of Asia. The Russian Emperor now had been deposed and deposed, the Austrian Emperor was dead and strayed, while the third Emperor was hovering on the verge of abdication. Whatever be the terms of the peace, those thrones cannot be rebuilt. We entered the war as the champions of small nations, and the world ultimately find its just ally in the Allies more than justified. History would record how largely this movement was due to the British navy, the merchant service, the army, the airman and British finance. The federal aims could still be summed up in the words, reparation and justice.

EVOLUTIONARY PLOTS IN BERLIN.

PARIS, Nov. 1.

Evolutionary plots in Berlin and Hamburg and in the Rhine Provinces and Westphalia, have become so widespread that all the newspapers are publishing appeals to the people to remain from participating in such acts against the Government. This information is telegraphed from Zurich by correspondent of Le Journal.

GERMAN WOOLLEN MILLS IN U.S. TO BE SOLD.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.

Announcement that the German woollen mills of New Jersey and other large manufacturers throughout the country, with an aggregate value of over $200,000,000, will be sold during the next two months to Americans, was the answer to-day of Mr.

Palmer, alien property custodian, to the recent note from the German Government, protesting against the disposition of former Teuton-owned interests in the United States. German property seized in this country totals $890,000,000 and will soon reach $100,000,000, as compared with $1,400,000,000 worth of American interests taken over in Germany, Mr. Palmer said.

THE RAPID TRANSIT TRAGEDY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.

Between 75 and 100 men and women were killed, and probably double that number injured, in a rear-end collision to-night, between two Brooklyn rapid transit trains, in the cut near the Prospect Park Station on the Brighton Beach line. The tragedy marked the first day of a strike, called by the Company's motormen, to enforce the reinstatement of 28 discharged members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers as ordered by the National War Labor Board.

BAVARIANS CLAIM GERMAN THRONE.

LONDON, Nov. 2.

The Bavarian Premier has notified Berlin that the Bavarian Royal Family claims the Imperial throne, in the event of Emperor William's abdication, according to the Socialist Leipzig Volks Zeitung, which is quoted in a Hague despatch to the Daily Mail.

MINISTER RESIGNED.

LONDON, Nov. 2.

Count Julius Andrássy, who became Austrian-Hungarian Foreign Minister, on Oct. 25, has resigned, according to a Zurich despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

KING BORIS HAS RESIGNED.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 2.

King Boris, of Bulgaria, who ascended the throne on Oct. 3, has abdicated. A Peasant Government has been established at Tirnova, under the leadership of M. Stambulovskiy, who has been the chief of the peasants and Agrarians of Bulgaria for some time. M. Stambulovskiy, who is reported to be the head of the new government in Bulgaria, is said to be in command of a Republican army of forty thousand, according to a Zurich despatch to the Central News.

Von der Lancken

Berlin asks the world to put trust in German good faith, and it proves Guttman had faith by naming Baron von der Lancken to direct investigations into accusations regarding wanton devastation of occupied districts of France and Belgium by German soldiers. Von der Lancken sent Edith Cavell to death before a firing squad when a word from him as German civil governor of Belgium in 1915 would have stopped the monstrous crime. To him the American minister to Belgium and the Spanish minister made appeal to over-ride the sentence of the German court-martial which had condemned her to death because she had aided English and Belgian young men to cross the frontier from Belgium to Holland. He met the appeal with indifference, and a peace with cynicism. The member of his staff went unrebuked when voicing regret that there were not "three or four old English women to shoot." And this von der Lancken is the man now chosen by Germany to carry out what is pretended to be an earnest inquiry into other acts of German outrage that the guilty may be punished! He should be on the gallows with the hempen rope about his neck. Instead, the Germany professes a new heart, names him to expose wrong doing. The incident is eloquent of the bad faith by which the Hun is still animated.—Sydney Record.

Alleged German Spy Arrested.

Sydney, N.S., Oct. 30.—Ernest Watzki, a foreigner working at the steel plant, was arrested by Sgt. Roberts of the Steel Company's police in Tuesday afternoon as a German spy. The arrest arose out of a quarrel he had with a fellow workman who said to Watzki, "Do you know I could knock your block off." Watzki came back with "Do you know I could blow up the whole plant by turning one switch. The affair was reported to the police by the workman, who had the quarrel with Watzki, with the result that Watzki was arrested. An investigation was held by Capt. D. A. Noble and as a result of his threatening language he will be taken to the internment camp at Amherst by John McNeill, of the steel company's police, to-night.

Takes Off Dandruff, Hair Stops Falling

Girls! Try this! Make hair thick, glossy fluffy, beautiful—No more itching scalp.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but will please you most will be after a few week's use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that it will surely have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

A Tempting Bait

The burgomaster of Arnberg, Westphalia, Germany, having failed in all endeavours to induce the farmers of the neighborhood to bring in supplies, placed this advertisement in the local newspaper: "This municipality will buy all agricultural products for cash at government prices. Every person who delivers 100 pounds of bread grain or 300 pounds of potatoes will receive a ticket entitling him to buy a bottle of brandy or rum at reduced prices from the municipal cellars." Within twenty-four hours the cellars were empty and the residents of Arnberg enjoyed the first square meal they had had for weeks.

Hide Prices Are Lower,

Washington, Oct. 25.—A reduction of one cent a pound in prices of packers' hides and ½ of a cent a pound on country hides for the months of November and December and a reduction of two cents a pound on packers' hides and 1½ cents a pound on country hides for the month of January was agreed to-day by the price-fixing commission of the War Industries Board and the hide industry.

The Song of Picardy.

Oh, barren hearth of Picardy,
And trampled harvest field,
Say, who will light your fire at night
Or mill your Autumn yield?
No more the reaper piles his trade,
The hours of peace are o'er,
And gone the matron and the maid,
And they return no more.

The roads are rocky in Picardy,
The level fields are bare,
And broken down the orchard's trees,
And ruin hovers there—
After the days of battle swell
In clamor deep and grim,
Where now no more the vesper bell
Peals out the evening hymn.

The poppies blow in Picardy,
The skylark sings o'erhead,
And softer and bird than the night
Above the naked dead,
But though above the dark sky low-
ers,
Beneath its bloom is set
The little seeds of Freedom's flowers,
To rim the parapet.

And hearts are strong in Picardy
Where Hope is still aflame,
Where Freedom's heroes see ahead
The goal at such an estimate of our
Though drear and cold the ruined
hearth,
And barren fields are dumb,
A voice breathes soft across the earth
Of peace that is to come.

Just a Petrol Can

If there is any article that can best me for utility at the front, commend me to it. I often wonder that our army of inventors have not brought a competitor along to bid for the supremacy I hold.

My first duty is, of course, to hold petrol, but a good many of us drift into other occupations or get lost—somebody gets charged 2s. if we do.

Two shillings! I could burst with indignation at such an estimate of our value. Thank Heaven, Tommy "over there" knows it. Ask him. We are great pals.

The authorities evidently heard of our prowess, for carriers are now issued to hold four of us, and these are placed on either side of a pack mule, to contain water for the troops in the forward area. Any day you'll see thousands of us at the various "water points." Tommy himself has an immense haler made from a rope slung over the shoulders, and he does what he calls a "milkmaid stunt."

The cooks know our worth for boiling water quickly over the primitive but thoroughly efficient trench fire. Sometimes confusion arises, though, over our similarity. I remember on one occasion containing paraffin which in mistake for water was added to a stew. They were hard on that cook. They said the stew tasted better that day than it has tasted for a long time.

Although I do not quite appreciate Tommy's method of cleaning me, I must admit that it is practical. When I am emptied of petrol he drops a lighted match inside me, a miniature explosion takes place in my interior, and I am pure!

If there happens to be a "tinsmith" in the company we are in for a warm time, for we are soon converted into candlesticks, meat dishes, or a side is taken out and we become wash bowls. Filled with earth and sand and built brick-fashion we make an admirable splinter-proof "dug-out."

At our Christmas festivities we were very much in request, some of my colleagues being cut in half for moulds for jellies, which were none the less enjoyed because every one was stamped "Shell."

I am now a brazier, and on chilly nights Tommy comes and sits beside me, and I glow with pride at being able to give him a little solace and comfort. He doesn't say much, but just sits and stares hard at me. A wonderful man. When I look at him I wonder if I am so great after all!

The Royal Stores, Ltd.

Gen. Allenby,

The Modern Crusader.

General Sir Edmund Allenby has now taken rank with the most brilliant generals developed in the war. There are no failures, no half achievements, in Allenby's record. He has been in the war from the very beginning, and commanded the heroic cavalry in the Old Contemptibles, and perhaps in his daring and, as it appeared, desperate use of the cavalry as a screen to cover the retreat from Mons, is due more than any other cause the fact that a remnant of the first British expeditionary force to France survived. Probably there is no Allenby's equal living as a commander of cavalry, and if for no other reason, his genius in this respect suggested him as a successor to Sir Archibald Murray for a campaign in which mounted troops were obviously to play so important a part.

Edmund Henry Allenby was born 67 years ago, and as a boy attended the famous Halesbury school, where, as at Rugby and Eton, the masters concerned themselves with the boys' character and manners quite as much as with their books, and where a certain proficiency in outdoor sports was considered as necessary as a familiarity with the dead languages. There is no record that he especially distinguished himself at school. His strongest interest was in literature, which has clung to him all his life, and perhaps has contributed much to the development of his character, whose most marked quality impresses the observer as gentleness. Those words that were applied to the beloved and lamented General Maude, "the gentlest conqueror who ever took a city," would equally well describe Allenby.

As becoming a young aristocrat of 30 or 40 years ago, he entered the army with a commission in the 11th Hussars, and was said to be the time to have looked the part of a dashing cavalryman as well as one of Ouida's heroes. At the age of 23 he had his first introduction to warfare, for he served in the Beauchamp expedition, and four years later, in 1904, was through the Zulu campaign, becoming adjutant. He had already attracted the attention of his superiors by his courage and a capacity that seemed to have something of the quality of instinct. He next served through the South African war, and was pitted against no less formidable an antagonist than Gen. Delarey. For his work there was twice mentioned in despatches, and was decorated by the British Government. All this experience, of course, was child's play compared with the tremendous task which was thrust upon his shoulders when the present war broke out and he was placed in command of the cavalry division of the British force. But Allenby never lost his head for a moment in the most desperate encounters, and though he exposed himself to death a hundred times in the Flight Across the Alps.

Merely as a "matter of routine," as the British official statement nonchalantly remarks, two Royal Air Force officers have flown from Great Britain across France, Italy and the Mediterranean to Egypt. One or two momentary stops were made to renew the supply of petrol.

This is a greater achievement than flying across the Atlantic. The Alps are more dangerous to cross than any area of the ocean between Newfoundland and Ireland.

From England to Egypt is over 2,000 miles. From Newfoundland to Ireland direct is only 1,800 miles. The heads of the leading airplane manufacturing firms in Britain are confident that that 1,800 miles can easily be crossed in twenty hours in the new British airplane, now doing such deadly damage to the Huns on the western front.

Few events of the war have thrilled Christian people more than the capture of Jerusalem by Allenby's army, and by the manner of entry into the city by the commander and his officers. Instead of entering on horseback with military pomp they went on foot as pilgrims might approach a shrine. On a par with the military triumph was his capture of the hearts of the Moslem population about him. He issued a proclamation assuring them that they had nothing to fear, but might go about their ordinary business in safety.
