

Nujol

For Constipation

THE poisons of constipation effect more distinctive and harmful changes in the body than perhaps any other cause. Keep your system free of these poisons by thorough, daily movements.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Without forcing or irritating, it softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

HOW TO DRIVE AWAY DISCOURAGEMENT.

A friend of mine has been passing through one of these periods wherein one small disappointment in a day, or a misfortune after another piles up. They were disappointed in getting a house they had set their hearts on, and had to stay for the winter in an apartment they

Her children had the measles then the mumps. Her winter was a long one. Her husband's health was not what she had hoped for. Her own health was not what she had hoped for. Her children were not what she had hoped for. Her husband was not what she had hoped for. Her own health was not what she had hoped for.

Can we not, then, face some of these down with the realization of the fact that they are not irretrievable, not really serious in a big sense? And can we not exercise our courage and depression by the use of this formula? Let's try it anyway.

Britain's Most Important Paper.

The most important paper in the British Empire, the London Gazette, is unique in that it is but little known among certain classes, although for many years it benefited the nation to the extent of about $60,000 a year in revenue.

During the world war this journal had a certain vogue outside its ordinary patrons, for embryonic officers of the navy and army anxiously scanned its pages to ascertain if they were "gazetted." Until the official seal, in the shape of a formal announcement, appeared in the London Gazette, the officer-elect held no official status. Brief intimation in the Gazette, however, immediately confirmed him in his rank.

The second Charles was King of England when this journal first appeared as the Oxford Gazette in the year 1665. It cannot be claimed as the earliest English newspaper, as the London Weekly News attained that honor by being published in 1622. The Gazette seems to have had an unchecked career, and its three issues weekly appeared with regularity.

Perhaps the most noteworthy thing happened to the paper in 1814. Volume 1, rare and valuable, was loaned to the Leipzig fair authorities. In Leipzig it peacefully reposed throughout the war until this year, when it was returned to London, apparently none the worse for its sojourn in Germany.

It may be asked why this paper is important, and little known to the majority of people. Its functions are many and diverse. In the first place, it is accepted as evidence in legal matters. The War Office regards it with respect, for it contains all the official despatches of British army and navy leaders when England is at war.

News Was Disseminated.

During the Crimean War an "extraordinary" number of the Gazette was posted outside the office of the publishers, Messrs. Harrison & Sons, in Martin's Lane. The populace crowded anxiously, and learned with intense relief of the battle of Inkermann, the success of the British troops. It is a far cry from the Crimean days to the recent war, but the London Gazette forms a link, as it was the first paper to publish war despatches. The other great newspapers, however, receive advance copies and the intelligence therefore appears simultaneously, but the public does not realize that they are indebted to the venerable official journal for some of their news. At one time it was the medium, and the only medium, through which the public became acquainted with much news that was important.

In the year 1711 it is recorded that the London Gazette and eight other newspapers circulated a weekly total of forty-four thousand copies. It was about the middle of the seventeenth century that the Gazette came into prominence as an advertising medium. Thus it will be found on reference to the sixty-second number of the publication, issued in June, 1666, that the first advertisement was announced in the following quaint paragraph:

"An advertisement. Being daily great to the Publication of Books, Magazines, and other things not properly the business of a paper of intelligence. This is to notify, once for all, that we will not charge the Gazette with advertisements, unless they be matter of state; but that a paper of advertisements will be forthcoming printed apart and recommended to the public by another hand."

Aiding Victims of Fire.

This mode of publicity was further developed in the ninety-fourth issue, published in October, 1666, in order to help those who had reverses through the great fire.

Such as have settled in new habitations since the late fire, and desire for convenience of their correspondents to publish the place of present abode, or to give notice of goods lost or found, may repair to the Corner House, Bloomsbury Square, on the east side of the Great Square before the house of the right honorable the

PIERRE BLANCHETTE PAYS TRIBUTE TO DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

He Suffered from Dyspepsia for Twenty Years and Now Loses no Opportunity to Sing the Praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ste. Anne des Monts, Tourelle, Gaspé Co., Que., Feb. 15—(Special).—"I always keep Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house." That is the tribute Mr. Pierre Blanchette, a well-known resident here, pays to the old reliable kidney remedy.

"I had dyspepsia for twenty years," Mr. Blanchette continues. "I got some Dodd's Kidney Pills and took them. I am well now. I eat all I desire and have no bad effects. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all the world."

The satisfaction Dodd's Kidney Pills are giving as a remedy for kidney troubles is shown by the large number of people who keep them always at hand. They have learned that the proper way to avoid serious forms of kidney disease, such as rheumatism, diabetes, dropsy, and heart disease, is to correct the early symptoms of kidney trouble.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have built their reputation on the good work they have done. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the sovereign remedy for kidney trouble.

lord treasurer, where there is care taken for the receipt and publication of such advertisements.

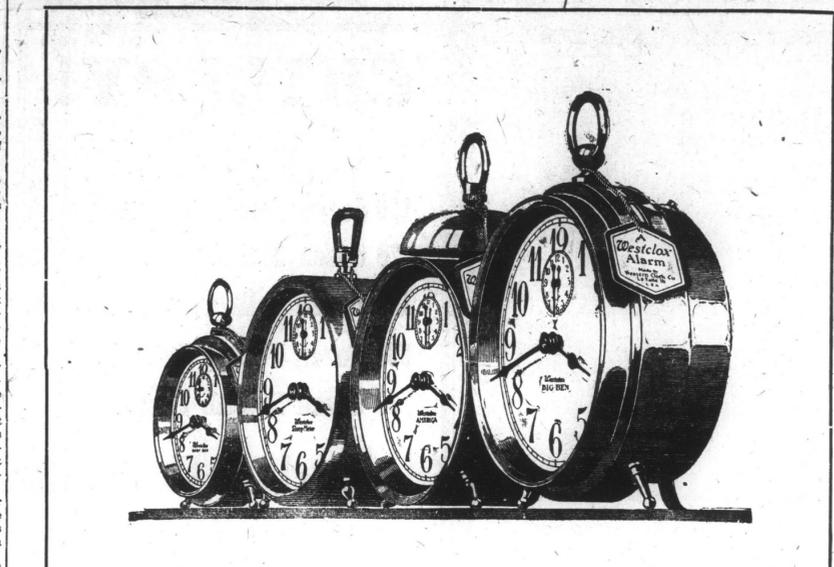

Adverting to more recent times we find that Richard Steele was editor of this historic paper at a modest salary of $300 a year, which sum, however, was soon increased to $1,500.

Lord Macaulay, in his History of England, says, "In 1650 the contents of the London Gazette generally were a royal proclamation, two or three Tory addresses, notices of two or three promotions, and a description of highwaymen, etc."

THE MODERN NOVELS.

I reckon I'm a fossil, I fear I'm headed wrong, as down to the world I jostle, amid the modern throng. It makes me sad and weary to read the New Romance, where in the authors dreary give action not a chance.

The good old plot of Dickens, of Collins and of Readle no more a novel quibbles, and fiction's gone to seed. We have the ghastly study of problems touching sex, instead of pirates bloody on red and slippery decks. And serpent-wranks, through modern tales are tramping in their ranks. Such books are not inviting to one who walks the earth when Charlie Reade was writing "The Cloister and the Hearth." And time on them seems squandered, small pleasure do they yield, to one who's walked and wandered with "David Copperfield." They leer the old time writers: "Victorian," they say, and hint that men were blighted who wrote in that past day. I would that story tellers who've hit the modern groove, would emulate these fellows, and made their stories move! Oh, I am tired of fiction devoid of stirring plots, that banks on charming diction and lines that end in dots. . . . Through bookstores I go wending for stuff to read, in vain; I like a happy end. I want the villain slain.

Westclox

YOU like an honest clock for the same reason you like an honest man. You can depend on what it says.

Westclox alarms make and hold so many friends because they run and ring on time.

The secret of their dependability inside the case—Westclox construction.

The wheels turn on needle-fine pivots of polished steel. Friction is greatly reduced; the clock runs more smoothly and gives you longer service.

Big Ben, America, Sleep-Meter and Baby Ben are the four top-notchers of the Westclox line. But all Westclox alarms have this same construction. The men who make Big Ben take pride in making every Westclox right.

It will pay you to look for the Westclox mark of good time-keeping on the dial and tag of the clock you buy. Then you will have a timekeeper that you can depend on for honest, faithful service.

Puppets Buried With Old Egyptians.

Innumerable puppets, representing the household retainers of Mehenkwtre, a great Egyptian dignitary of 2600 B.C., taken from a concealed chamber of his tomb and illustrating in detail the life of the people of that time, have just been put on exhibition at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York. They were excavated by the museum's Egyptian expedition at Thebes and are considered one of the most important of recent discoveries.

Italy's Ugly War Medal.

Italy's war medal, to be given to all soldiers who won the tri-color ribbon—that is those who were uniformed between May 25, 1915, and November 12, 1918—is nearly ready, about 2,000,000 have been struck and many more are yet to be finished.

Traces of Files and Mice.

A small and interesting discovery made by the finders of this lost chamber was that the little people and the little boats were covered with cobwebs, and showed traces of files and mice, the latter having eaten into the linen skirts of the puppets.

BRICK'S TASTELESS.

No other medicine will restore lost weight so quickly as BRICK'S TASTELESS. The one who takes it must eat. It purifies the blood, it makes the weak children had found and played with them. One little boat bore the imprint of muddy hands—it had been placed too near the door of the tomb, it is suggested, and the masons in sealing up the entrance had moved it with hands covered with clay.
