She will come ...ed much sorrow to great hap... she will be the mother of ... and will close her days in old ... a world of darkness." Such ... the future predicted by a fortune... for the little daughter of the ... of Richmond, and although it ... a subject of jest to all who heard ...very word of it came true. Here ... if ever a child was cradled with ... and adventure in her blood it ... the Lady Sarah Lennox. Born ...ay 28, 1751, she had for her ...grandfather, that great master of ...istry, the "Merry Monarch," and ...er great-grandmother, Louise de ...ouaille, the beautiful Breton, a ...istress in intrigue. As a child ...gave promise of great beauty and ... George II, was so fascinated ...her that he dubbed her his "little ...sweetheart. Lady Sarah was the last ...n in the world to break her heart ...r a lost crown, and one day the ...rld of fashion learned, almost with ...nsternation, that the woman who ...d refused to be England's Queen, ...d actually given her hand to Sir ...mas Banbury, a man who, altho ...mber of Parliament, was scarcely ...wn outside his own country. But ...as happy enough with her ob...ve husband, as she proved when she wrote: "Pray now, who would not be happy with a good husband, a pretty place, a good house, good horses, greyhounds for hunting, so near Newmarket, what company we please, and £2,000 a year to spend." After five years of such happiness, she fell a victim to the lovemaking of that good-looking scapgrace, Lord William Gordon, and foolishly ran away with him. Lord William, however, was compelled to leave England, and the woman he had betrayed was left to find refuge under the roof of her brother, the Duke of Richmond, and for a dozen years spent her life in penitence and isolation. Then came into her life the Hon. George Napier, with a love so devoted that he married her in spite of her tarnished name. With him she spent the happiest days of her chequered life, became the mother of five stalwart sons, four of whom won laurels on the battlefields, the fifth becoming famous as historian of the Peninsula War. After her husband's death, she was left to spend twenty years of widowhood, cheered and solaced by following the careers of her gallant sons, but darkened by the loss of her sight.

A GOOD WORLD.

Oh, e v erything is bully in this gay world of ours and all my paths are fully begarlanded with flowers. It's true I have the measels, the shingles and the wen, and bobcats, skunks or weasels have killed my old grey hen; but illness or reverses can't make me sprinkle tears, or hand out vulgar curses that might offend your ears. Cold winds no longer hound us, the sky is bright and blue, and spring is all around us, and balmy winds come through. The day is bright and smiling, and any man's a swine who stands around reviling a world so good and fine. It's true my teeth are aching, and certain joints are sore, where rheumath is making itself a beastly bore; it's true my spotted heifer has foot and mouth disease—but oh, that scented zephyr, that fragrant vernal breeze! It comes from land of spices, from islands in the sea, and in a brace of trices, it brings relief to me! This good old world we dwell in, in which we play our game, and paw around and yell in, is all the blue prints claim. Sometimes the skies are cloudy, and winds chant sad laments, sometimes the days are dowdy, and look like fourteen cents; but take things all together, the world is bright and fair; and much I question whether its equaled anywhere.

Would-Be German President.

A presidential election will shortly take place in Germany. The present president Herr Ebert wants to be re-elected. He has been the strong man of the republic since the first stable government was organized after the armistice, and has succeeded in holding on through the most treacherous crisis. But he is to have strong opposition, and already three candidates are in the field to contest honors with him. These three are: Admiral von Scheer, Dr. von Hieber and Dr. Adolf Damaschka.

The strongest of these opponents, according to Berlin advices will be Admiral von Scheer, who was one of the former Kaiser's marine chiefs, and who took a prominent part in the great war. Admiral von Scheer is thought to represent the royalist faction, and is said to be constantly working for the return of the Hohenzollerns. However, he professes, with a convincing show of sincerity, a strong democracy is the best government for Germany, although he has been known to say in private that he believed a king or emperor would be a far better exponent of democracy than a president. Admiral von Scheer, is, of course, supported by the Junker contingency and by a large portion of the Berlin nobility.

Dr. von Hieber is a former President of the new state of Wurtemberg, and declares himself to be thoroughly republican. Dr. Damaschka is the leader of the Liberal faction.

How Shot is Made.

The making of shot is a process which has shown scarcely any change during the last century. Molten lead is still poured from the top of a shot tower. Small sizes, require a drop of only one hundred feet, the larger require a longer fall of nearly double that height. The shot is sorted by machinery, then polished up to rub off any little roughness. For good shooting it is most important that shot should be exactly similar in size and perfectly round. If the shot is badly made the charge will spread irregularly, and some pellets lag a long way behind others. The very largest sizes of shot are cast out of coils of lead wire. These are what the schoolboy knows as "buck shot." Most of the lead for shotmaking comes from Spain, but the richest lead ore in the world is that found in Western Australia. Some of this actually produces as much as three thousand ounces to the ton of ore. In consequence of this rich find Australia now makes nearly all the shot used in the Eastern markets.

OUT OF DOORS.

When I find that I am getting
All wrought up with constant fretting
And the petty troubles grate me,
When the trifles irritate me,
Then I turn from hardwood floors
To the green grass out of doors.

Then I quit the noisy city
With its constant cry for pity,
And the battering of hammer,
Grind of wheel and ceaseless clamor,
For the hillside and the trees
And the clover and the bees.

Out of doors I take my troubles
Where the kids are blowing bubbles,
And the birds above me chatter,
And I say: "Now what's the matter?
Open wide your pack of care
And let's see just what is there.

"You are sick and tired of duty
In a world of so much beauty!
Here are blooms of God's own making,
For your pleasure and your taking,
Here are sunshine and the breeze
And the glory of the trees.

"Can you pass by these in blindness,
Seeing only man's unkindness?
Is your life so grim and sordid
That your soul is not rewarded
For the burdens it must bear
By such splendor everywhere?"

Oh, the times when I grow fretful
And of God's great love forgetful,
When I'm cross and glum and hateful
And embittered and ungrateful,
I go out of doors and stay
Till my doubts are blown away.

DUNLOP CORD TIRES FABRIC

Making "Mile-ionaires"

These are great days for the motor car user—in a tire sense. Your dollar never before bought as much. Your speedometer never before registered as much. Your repair kit never was as idle. All because Dunlop Cord Tires came and ushered in a new era. Five years ago you paid half as much again for the same size tire; ten years ago you paid twice as much. Prices have been tumbling. Quality has been mounting. One time we thought 3,500 was mileage to boast of; to-day we may run into half a dozen "25,000 Milers" in a forenoon. "Dunlop did it," says one enthusiast. The "Two Hands" are making us Mile-ionaires," says another, and so on.

The Sign "Mileage Wanted" is now changed to "Mileage Supplied"—use Dunlop Cords.

Patron Saint of Toothache.

The unfortunates who happen to be suffering from toothache or who have a visit to the dentist in view may or may not be comforted to know that Apollonia of Alexandria is the patron saint of toothache. Before being thrown into a fiery furnace, which consumed her, St. Apollonia had all her beautiful teeth pulled out, one by one, for which reason she is represented in art holding a pair of pincers, and for which reason, also, she has long been regarded as the protectress against toothache.

HEMORRHOIDS
