Skeffington. At Paris on Thursday a small house occupied by Wm. Bucken, a middle-aged man, from the vicinity of Hamilten, who lived alone, was burned. Bucken's body was found in the ruins charred almost beyond recognition. When discovered the stove had fallen over and possibly the coals spread over the floor, resulting in the death of the unfortunate man. If he had any money it was burned, as his clothes were consumed. Some dispatches give the name of the unfortunate man as

Graham. Justice Falconbridge has handed out his judgment in the case of Bryce vs. the Town of Woodstock heard at the recent assizes. The learned judge vis-Ited the place where the accident occurred, at the coner of Main and Finkle streets, and is of the opinion that the stones in question were an obstruction amounting to non-repair of the highway. Action dismissed as against defendant Hicks, with costs to be paid by plaintiff. Judgment in favor of plaintiff against the town for $375 and full costs of action. The Sarnia Observer says: Troop Sergeant-Major J. Fisher, of this town, robably carries more military decorations than any army veteran in Canada. He served in the Crimea with the Scots Greys, and wears the Crimean and Turkish medals for that campaign. He went to India with the Military Train, and has the Indian meadal with clasps for the relief of Lucknow and siege of Lucknow. He also wears the Abyssinian medal for service in that campaign, and the medal for service China. In addition to these war medals, he has also the medal for long service and good conduct. Sergt. There was a big crowd present at the concert held in Straitch's Hall, Kintore, on Tuesday evening, and the programme furnished was a most enjoy-able one. James Sutherland, M.P., the popular candidate for North Oxford, was in the chair, which he filled in a most creditable manner, and was well received by his many admirers in his opening address. Mrs. Murray played the accompaniments. The programme included addresses by the chairman, solos by Miss Houlding, selections by Wm. Farrell, solos by Miss McKinnon, violin selections by Mr. Fraser. Mr. Justice Meredith has given judgment in Davis vs. Hunter, on mo-tion by defendants Waddell, Cornell

Thorndale Fair Attracts a Large Crowd.

Blanshard Defeats West Nissouri in a Tug-of-War.

Meritorious Showing of Exhibits—Events in the Ring-Fakirs Plentiful.

With good weather the Thorndale Fair is usually very successful, and this year was no exception. Country shows, as a rule, have been slightly below the average this fall, but that of the West Nissouri Agricultural Society was a marked advancement and a record breaker. The day was fine, yet cold. When the sun went down it was colder still, yet a struggling mass of people remained to see the finish of the celebrated tug-of-war between Blanshard and West Nissouri. The directors of the fair either tried to give the public too much for their money in the way of attractions, or else they did not start then early enough, as darkness came on with the programme yet in a very unfinished condition. The tug-of-war was concluded by the dim light of a couple of lanterns, with the crowd pressing the teams so hard that the prostrate men could hardly get air. This fair attracts an unusually large number of Londoners, many of whom, coming from Thorndale or near by, delight to return and fraternize with their relatives and friends at the fair that many of them attended when children. Among the Londoners noticed in the crowd were Robert Logan (G. T. R.), P. C. Walter Smith, Chas. Sippi, U. A. Buchner, J. W. Wheaton (secretary of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association), W. C. Fitz-gerald, Wesley Webb, Ald. Dreaney and C. Casswell. John Gilson, Reform candidate for East Middlesex for the Dominion House, was present, as also was Joseph Marshall, M.P.
FAKIRS PLENTIFUL.

Hardly ever so many fakirs plied their calling at a fair as at the show of yesterday. There was one wheel of fortune man, two men with dice outfits, a sort of roulette affair, a bagatelle swindle, snide jewelry, a pendant ball that in swinging might strike the ninepin underneath, but which, owing to the oscillation of the outfit caused by the swing itself, it very seldom did. One dice man was inviting small boys to bet their nickles and dimes.

"Come on, boys," said he. "Nickles, dimes and dollars. Give us a little While at his elbow the roulette man was singing as the silver chinked and clattered as it was thrown down by the onlookers. "Try your luck, try your luck. All that you require is the moral courage

-the nerve and the money." When the same prosperous looking person started for the train as evening came on he smiled as if he had acquired a great deal of the last-named article. "Come on men," cried another dice manipulator. "Give us a bet; the old army game. Win out your day's expenses.

But the voice that drowned them all was singing the following solo: "Here you are, ladies and gentlemen. For 5 cents. The humped-back, hardynickle-plated, sugar-coated, headed, double-jointed, hokey-pokey, hot-roasted, California peanuts!" THE VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS. Ladies' work was shown in a large frame building at the entrance, and if the display continues to increase the building will need to be enlarged. Even as it is, a couple of windows would be an aid to critical inspection. The quality of the work was excellent. Among the exhibitors were: George Aiken, R. Walker, C. H. Lee, J. Walker, W.
