AMERICAN APPOINTMENTS.

(Toronto Mail.)

(Toronto Mail.)

One of Cleveland's first acts as President was to cause the publication of the names of all applicants for positions. This materially reduced the number of aspirants from whom he had to choose. Then he announced that persons who served their country under his former Administration had had their fair share of the spoils, and this knocked off another batch of patriots. As a next move it was declared that newspaper editors would not be considered. The President did not consider that the editor of the country paper could be independent while he held an office under the Government. A third series of office-seekers was thus removed. With the decks cleared Mr. Cleveland proceeded with his work and Mr. Cleveland proceeded with his work and made some good appointments. But he was especially harsh in the matter of his relatives. A senator who advocated an appointment on the ground that the applicants of the country is a relation of your own, sir, "was informed that no connection of the Clevelands could join the happy army of office-holders, Mr. Cleveland is making a good commencement. He does not seem to be afraid to say "no"; for in all probability he far in the country who is not looking for another term. Or if he is not looking for another term. Or if he is, he can expoct such an honor only upon his merits.
