The Dundonald Episode.

Lord Dumonald has destroyed usefulness in this country and sup- Kuropatkin from detaching any conplies another argument against the cers to the command of the Canadian ment. They are trained in British War Office methods, and come to this gin and land operations will be concountry with their ideas molded by an ducted with the greatest difficulty. autocratic system, which is suited to the conditions of Great Britain, but not of Canada. Not one of the last dozen commanders sent to this country has adapted himself to Canadian requirements or understood his position as a subordinate. The Government way: was criticised for its treatment of Gen. Hutton, but that officer has run amuck in Australia, as he did in Can-

Lord Dundonald's offense is flagrant and inexcusable. He had the privilege of resigning when he found himself in disagreement with his superiors. By that method he could have given his views to the public in a regular and dignified way. He chose the irregular and undignified course of appealing to a company of his inferiors against the decision of his own superiors. Lord Dundonald is a paid servant of the Dominion Government, and he is under the orders of the Minister of Militia. The Government, through the Minister would be $45 not $60. The regular duty of Militia, is responsible to the people of Canada for the conduct of the Militia Department. The difficulty with Lord Dundonald and his predecessors has been that they fail to realize that they are under the control of the representatives of the people, and assume that they have a free hand and autocratic powers. Here is a particularly offensive passage from his speech: "I feel certain that had Mr. Fisher's life led him to soldiery instead of to agriculture he would feel annoyed, perhaps on personal grounds, on the extraordinary lack of etiquette involved in scratching the name of a gentleman put forward on personal grounds, gentlemen, I two years in Ottawa, gentlemen."

Mr. Fisher recommended in his place Capt. Guy Carr, a Conservative, Mr. Fisher had for years endeavored to bring about the organization of a cavalry corps in the Eastern Townships, and naturally took a deep interest in its inception. The colonel of the regiment submitted to him a list of proposed appointments, and he found that four of those named for commissions were members of one Conservative family. He feared the political organization and family compact. He suggested that only two of fied-should be accepted. He suggested that Lieut. Holland. V. C., a South
