The crew of most of the boats on the Hope trail has got it into splendid shape on the east side to the summit, and road-houses, etc., are more frequent and accessible on that side than along the Fraser valley.

Professor Cook it will be remembered is at the head of the party which left Seattle with the intention of reaching the Yukon. It was the time he was met by Mr. White he was in very poor luck. He had lost four horses under most peculiar circumstances. This accident occurred at Squanta River, in the vicinity of Cook's Inlet. The horses, which were loaded with packs, suddenly disappeared from sight and it was afterwards ascertained that they had fallen through the earth into what is supposed to be a burning coal vein. The horses and packs were lost. Prof. Cook also lost four horses at Tynook River, which left him only twelve out of the original twenty. Mr. White is of the opinion that the expedition will be a failure, as the state of affairs makes it impossible to make the ascent.
