Laborites Have Most Candidates In England and Wales.

HOUSING IS BIG ISSUE

National Politics Injected Into Municipal Fight.

LONDON, Nov. 1 .- More than 300 municipalities in England and Wales today elect councillors to replace the onethird of the total number of representatives who retire annually. The feature of the present contest is the strenuous effort being made by Laborites and Socialists to retrieve the reversals suffered by them during the past two years and to increase their representation beyond any point which they have hitherto attempted.

The main issues upon which they have built their campaign are unemployment and the housing shortage, but as their policy on these questions entails a considerable outlay of public expense they are meeting with hot opposition.

These annual contests are nominally confined to matters of municipal interest, but actually a good deal of national politics is injected and the candidates appeal to their electorates under the names of the national parties. As the country just now is flooded with talk of a possible general election in the near future, to-day's municipal contests will be regarded more than ever before as showing the trend of political sympathies. The energy which the Labor and So cialist parties have bestowed upon the campaign is shown partly by the fact that their candidates greatly outnumber lution was adopted by the imperial conthose of any other party. The Communists, who are running more candidates this year than ever before, are classed with the Laborites and Socialists, whose nominations thus reinforced Devonshire, on behalf of his majesty's the bride-to-be motored to Hamilton, total 632. The Conservatives have 545, Government, accepted Sir Bahadur the Liberals 317 and the Independents Suprus' proposal that there should be a and the groom's sister, Mrs. Percy Cor-

LABOR POLICY SETTING Will Possibly Demand Capital

Levy and Aid For Emigration. BY HARRY N. MOORE Special Cable to London Free Press by-elections in Yeovill and Kutland have convinced Conservative leaders and organizers that a general election in the immediate future will assure a victory

Certainly should the protectionists within the Cabinet gain control an intensive campaign will be begun immed iately following the Christmas season The proposed Conservative policy i hased upon imposition of customs tar iff on manufactured and semi-manufactured goods according to the need of various British industries. Food taxes have not been proposed as yet but some concession probably in the form of a bonus bill will be grantd to the agricultural interests in order to maintain production in the face of existing wage suggested that subvention of £1 per

Opposition within the Cabinet to a policy of protection is confined to minority, but an influential one. Lord Salisbury is certainly opposed, as well as the Duke of Devonshire. Right Hon. L. C. Amery will be one of the active leaders of the protectionists. The attitude of the Labor party will be made clear in a manifesto which will probably be issued after the conference today between the Labor party and the trade union congress which will undoubtedly result in a call upon its members to support a capital levy and a state-aided emigration policy to relieve unemployment. Mr. Clynes outlines Labor's attitude toward protection by his recent declaration that this policy will never prove a remedy for unem

ROB DRUG STORE FOR SUPPLY OF MORPHINE

OTTAWA, Nov. 1. - Apparently driven into a frenzy through the difficulty of getting narcotic drugs illegally as a result of the activities of the R. C. M. P., thieves broke into the Elgin street branch of Denman & Munro's drug stores here on Monday night and stole narcotic drugs valued at nearly $1,000, bootleggers' prices, says The Journal this morning. Every grain of the drug supply in the store was stolen, nothing else being touched. The burglary is regarded in local police circles as one of the most daring in recent years. The drugs taken consisted of morphine and heroin.

SHOES WERE ALL RIGHT BECAUSE THEY WERE

Shoes, of course, help people through all walks of life and are what might be called handy things to have upon the foot when one wants to put his best foot forward without making a false step.

When, however, a woman like Mrs. Pruss, 430 Ontario street, wants to sell a pair of brown shoes she does not consider it right to have shoes left on her hands.

Mrs. Pruss, therefore, took immediate steps to sell her shoes. She called 5200 and asked for a Free Press ad-taker. A little classified ad in the "Wearing Apparel" column of The Free Press performed the feat of selling the shoes.

If YOU have a pair of shoesor any other things-to sell, we have some ads that will just fit

Advanced Wedding Date To Please California Relative.

A most happy Halloween party, held n honor of Miss Myrtle A. Corbin, at the home of E. E. Gibbs, 834 King street, last night, at which there were about 25 guests, including the staff and former members of the staff of Chesley Avenue School, where Miss Corbin has been teaching, culminated in more than one surprise. During the course of the evening the guest of honor was presented with a beautiful cut glass vase by Miss Edna Nagle, accompanied by a well-worded address by Mr. Gibbs. The gift was a surprise for Miss Corbin, but in turn she gave the guests a mild sensation when, through Mr. Gibbs, her marriage to Harry B. Gregory, of Guelph, was announced as having taken place on Saturday, September 29, at Magara

The announcement brought forth romantic story of the event. Mrs. Robert Pugsley, Los Angeles, California, grandmother of the bride, played an important role. A committee of the economic conference is now at work in an endeavor to devise some plan whereby empire settlement would be stimulated, and in regard to preference the conference is still awaiting any fiurther proposals from the British Government. In any event, with the death of Former Premier Bonar Law and the pre-occupation of the British ministers on reparations and the domestic political situation, it is unlikely that the subject of preference will be reached before Tuesday next. But the conference expects to conclude its labors by the end of next week.
