

got away with a neat little victory over O.A.A.C. by the score of 2-0. It was an excellent exhibition of baseball, and the large crowd which was in attendance greatly appreciated the good work of both teams. Rivard and Freeland worked well together for O.A.A.C., but poor support lost them the game. It looked bad for College at one stage of the game, when the bases were full and only one man out. Linke couldn't find the plate, so he was pulled out and Muzanti substituted. By excellent work on the part of the team the difficulty was overcome.

The third league game in which College was interested was played on Ascension Thursday vs. Capitals. This was a very important game and both teams were out to win.

The day was ideal for baseball, and in the "warm-up" both teams showed good form, but with "play ball" things took on another aspect, and the game became very loose, especially "lose" for College. The Capitals were gracefully presented the game by a number of costly errors on the part of the Collegians.

Linke and Dubois worked for College. In the fifth with two men down, Linke passed two men and was taken out and replaced by Muzanti. The umpire was rather strict on balls and strikes, and made it pretty difficult for the pitchers.

In the same fatal fifth, O'Neill dropped a nice fly to deep centre, the "ump." misjudged a man on the bases, and McCarthy threw wide to first. The team played loosely at times throughout the game and consequently the game went to the Capitals, the score reading 6-4. Deahy and Bawlf were the stars of College. For the winners, Ashton pitched a beautiful game, and by keeping his hits scattered, was in a great measure responsible for the victory.

Handball.

Since the Easter holidays much interest has been evinced by the students in that game of games, namely handball. Under the direction of Brother Bertrand, two leagues were formed, consisting of about twelve teams each, and during every recreation period the alley was the scene of many hotly-contested games, and also spirited disputes amongst the spectators as well as amongst the parties directly interested. From the first to the last, interest never flagged, and as a consequence we have in our midst many who have become experts at the game.
