The House of Providence Victorian Diamond Jubiloe picule was a decided success. From an early hour in the afternoon until after 10 p.m. a constant stream of visitors passed the gates, and by their liberal patronage of the various entertainments and the different refreshment booths evinced a determination to enjoy themselves to the full, while, at the same time, benefitting our leading. same time, benefitting our leading Catholic charitable institution

A feature much appreciated was the large dancing platform, whereon scores of young people whirled around, grace otherwise, to the inspirm s of D'Alessandre's orchestra. that seems a pretty large slice out of the proceeds. I think we ought to pay the cost of the outertainments. &c. by subscription and let the House of Provi-dence have the benefit of the whole of the profits. the way, that same orchestra cost *

Did you see; the Cinegraphoscope! If so, did you, like a lady of my acquaintance, "wonder how they could possibly make the things move about like that?"

The invention is certainly a most

The invention is certainly a most wonderful thing. The committee is to econgratulated upon their enterprise in securing it, for it proved one of the largest "draws" of the day.

The various refreshment booths dispensed toothsome edibles all day at a most moderate charge, the ladies who acted as waitresses exerting themselves to the utmost to provide for the wants of their patrons. Considering the work and fatigue involved in managing anything of this description, too much praise cannot be bestowed upon their generous efforts. I should like to offer a suggestion in this connection, to the effort that a little more space in the effect that a little more space in the arrangement of the tables would add to the convenience of everyone erned. The tables are in many crowded too close together, with the result of producing a feeling of dis-comfort that might be obviated by a comfort that might be obviated by a little judicious managoment. Almost everyone present took the opportunity of visiting and inspecting the House and the halls and corridor resounded with the tread of hundreds of the noise and the main and corritors resound d with the tread of hundreds of feet, while many and warm were the praises of the splendid arrangements, the exquisite cleanliness and order, and the many evidences of the loving and devoted care bestowed upon the inmastes. It was quite a gala day for the old people who could get about, and a large group of them collected on one of the balconies and watched the animated scene below with delighted interest. Even the children had as much candy and cake as they could conveniently dispose of, and I am afraid various small atoms of humanity had the sounach ache before the day was over.

aman atoms of minianty had the stomach ache before the day was ever. It was a tiring day for the Sisters, however. They were here, there and overywhere, upstairs and down. And I am sure few of them sat down for five am sure few of them sat down for five minutes the whole day.

The poor peeple in the infirmary were the only ones to whom the pro-ceedings could not make much difference, excepting in so far as the constant stream of visitors passing in and out and the lively strains of the band could ever the monetony of an existence of vary the monotony of an existence of suffering. As one walked through the wards and noted the poor pinched faces, the palsied hands and wasted limbs, the ght occurred, whatever would have thought occurred, whatever what have become of these poor sufferers but for this haven of refuge? Nearly all of them are incurables, all of them are s, not one cent can they pay the institution for their maintenance, and yet everything they can want is theirs, everything possible is done to lighten their sufferings and smooth the thorny road the poor feed must travel. There are 500 in the institution, 20 cents a day will keep one of them. Only 20 cents, and how much we waste in useless extravsgance overy day of our lives.

on lives. And yet there is not one of us who can look forward to the future and say, "I am secure, I shall never come down to living on charity." But we go into business and fail, we put our money in banks and the banks break, and perhiaps when we are too old and tired to begin sgain we may be left penniless. Happy it will be for us lion if we have put some of our riches "where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." for we shall receive interest a bundredfold.

The absence of His Grace the Archishop was a great disappointment, but the rev. clergy made up for it as far as possible and did overything they could to make people happy. They evidently only of themselves immensely, as they always do. More power to them.

I really think that for downright hard work, self-denial, kindness and joviality we have got the beat clergy in the Dominion, or the old county either for the matter of that. The love of their own people and the universal respect with which Protestants regard them is a proof of the high place they hold in the estimation of overyone in Toronto. I am afraid we are in the habit of taking their unselfish labors, as we do those of the good Sisters, pratty rouch as a matter of course. Thout troubling ourselves to thank them co lot them see their efforts are appreciated. "Oh, they know that without being told."

Perhaps so, but they like to be told now and then; besides our obligations to the hearty support of overyone in the city, without distinction of creed.

Last Thursday ovening there was a meeting of the Hospital Committee of the Calactar Branch of the C. L. A.

The work connectal with the hospitals and jalis is very heavy, and at present, owing to the small number of volunteers, the labor is very unequally distributed, too large a share falling upon the more conspects and devoted members.

We must have more volunteers for hospital work, the field is a wide on and the opportunities for doing good are unlimited. There are many of us who could spare at least one afternoon a week to visit and cheer the poor sufferers in the hospitals, to whom a few kind words of interest and sympathy often mean much. Once engaged in the work soon becomes most interesting, and one finds many opportunities of leading back some stray sheep that haven we have a suffered by the consolation of religion.

We may not all be forvent, many of its indeed are said; careless and lake warm, but there is, in each one of us, a germ of kindness and pity for suffering ones. That germ may be either culti-vated or repressed. If it is crushed down and nover allowed to show itself in deeds of kindness and sympathy, our natures will become warped and blint ed, and weeks of selfishness will spiring up and spread until they overrun the soil.

Most of us are quite schish enough

ed, and weeds of selfishness war, and up and spread until they overrum the soil.

Most of us are quite selfish enough already, we don't give sufficient thought to others, our thoughts become cone in trated on ourselves. Anything that wis draw them away from self is of the greatest value: sympathy with, and offorts to comfort and cheer others will do this, and the more our efforts are directed towards this object, the greater help shall we obtain towards the highlight life for which most of us are striving.
