

was taught us,

- 1) To recognize men must be trained as soldiers but must get recreation to contribute to physical vigor and morale.
- 2) Physical education and moral education go hand in hand and moral education is one of the prime of not the first, duties of the colleges. If then education has as one of its main objectives the formation of character, let us recognize the fact that no single member of the faculty is so likely to contribute a deep and lasting influence to the college generation as the head of the athletic department.

Colleges must accept ~~full~~ <sup>full</sup> responsibility for entire education of students, that means mental, moral and physical education, two last most closely allied.

Our school of Physical Education - will in time be department part of Faculty of Education.

With those appreciation of work of department and those ideals in mind we can approach consideration of Gymnasium site,

- 1) It must be among other academic buildings for sake of value of its work, its dignity and prestige.
- 2) It is worthy a building of same magnificence, stateliness, architecture as any other building.
- 3) It is worthy of just as splendid a site, for no purpose could be worthier than the one which it serves.
