

GREETING.

I greet you!

Not the semblance of you, fashionable or unfashionable, with all those little frills of mannerisms and bad habits, but you yourself—your dear old self, I greet:—By all the happy hours we've spent together, by all the escapades of youth, by all the tears and dreams and laughter of gone days. I gather all together and hold them warm and living in my heart—and you with them.

Dear Friend, in Friendship's name—God bless you.
