

INDEX—Continued

	Page.
Office of city auditor has many commendable features	38
City auditor charged with preventing departments overdrawing appropriations	38
Basis for audit of claims insufficient	39
Unnecessary detail imposed upon auditor	39
Auditor should advise with treasury board	39
Administrative Questions Relating to the Debt Limit	40
Limitation of indebtedness	40
Rateable property defined in municipal act	41
Sinking funds not deducted in determining the city's statutory borrowing power	42
Administration of Sinking Funds	42
Sinking funds established on an actuarial basis	42
Sinking fund investments sold at a discount	43
Present status of sinking funds not known	43
Sinking fund securities not in custody of responsible city officials	44
Lack of Adequate Equipment	44
Need for additional water meters	44
Office arrangements	45
THE ANNUAL REPORT	45
Annual report of little value	46
Form of balance sheet used	47
Balance sheet of little use	51
No statement of revenues and expenses	52
Fund statement inadequate	53
Forms of estimates and budget statements	53
Officers not criticized for these defects	53
WHAT THE CITY OF TORONTO MIGHT BE TOLD ABOUT ITS BUSINESS THROUGH ITS ANNUAL REPORTS	55
Exhibit I.	55A
Exhibit II.	55B
Significance of the balance sheet	56
Current assets and liabilities	57
Capital assets and liabilities	58
Significance of the fund statements	58
Supporting financial schedules	59
Accounting methods and procedure	59
Summary of recommendations	59
Present accounting system	60
Defects in classification and correlation of accounts	61
Full information without added cost	61
No clear division between summary and detailed accounts	62
Groups of accounts lacking	62
Detailed accounts not under proper control	64
Accounts kept which are not informing	64
Defects in original records	65
Development of forms and procedures for analysis of transactions	67