HEAVY CANAL TRAFFIC.

Soo, Welland and St. Lawrence Handle Record Tonnage.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—Reports to the department of railways and canals show that the traffic on the Canadian canals during the past season was by far the heaviest on record. Definite figures will not be available until after the close of navigation, but the general reports so far received tell of great expansion of business this year on all the canals. The Soo, Welland and St. Lawrence canal systems have handled a record tonnage, repaid development of canal traffic under existing circumstances, and proved the immense possibilities of a deepened waterway thru to Montreal from the head of the lakes.

JAPAN CUTTING RATES ON BUILDING WARSHIPS

MADRID, Nov. 20.—The Liberal today published a statement to the effect that Japan, thru the Japanese Minister at Madrid, had made an offer to the Spanish Government to construct the new war vessels planned for the Spanish navy, at a price much below the estimates already submitted.

REVISING THE VULGATE.

Protestants May Assist in Attempt to Discover Truth.

ROME, Nov. 20.—Abbot Gasquet, president of the English Benedictines, has arrived in Rome to undertake the revision of the Vulgate, or St. Jerome's versiou of the Bible. This matter has been entrusted to the Benedictines by the Vatican.

The abbot will select his assistants next week, and it is his desire to have among them an American. He is not restricted to Catholics in his selection. The Pope insistes that the work be done in the most scientific way, to convince Catholics as well as non-Catholics, that this is a genuine attempt to discover the true basis of the text of St. Jerome.

This attitude will prove, it is believed, that the Vatican does not fear scientific discussion of the Vulgate.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE PANIC

A New York Correspondent Points Out the Causes, the Effect and the Moral.

Editor World: In order to gain a correct understanding of the causes which have brought about the existing financial crisis, one must look at the situation from a sufficient distance in point of time to enable him to detect the various steps by which it has approached.

If such an attempt be made (and to make it is the duty of everyone who values the possession of correct views of public questions) the following incidents from recent history, when set in the order of their occurrence, would seem to furnish a chain of causes sufficient to account for all that has lately happened:

1. For several years past there has been an ever-growing stringency of money at this season. The facts of the regularity of its occurrence and the increasing severity of this autumnal money shortage, call for three comments: That the thin ice of finance might invariably be expected to form during crop moving season; that its attenuity might yearly be expected to increase; and, the foregoing being so, that an autumn at last might be expected to arrive having a financial ice-film too fragile to support financial skaters, should one of them fall.

This represents the fundamental, but nevertheless, the natural, condition which of late years has menaced our financial and industrial security.

2. Several years ago, by a writer, Ida Tarbell, for the first time the public was aroused to the immense power which it is possible for a corporation to wield, and, in the case of this nation's greatest corporation, as to how that power had been and still was being used to oppress the people, and evade their laws. It may be said that then, as never before, the public as a whole understood the menace of this extraordinary corporate machine, which had been devised for the people's exploitation.

3. Shortly thereafter another writer, Thomas W. Lawson, carried the Tarbell exposures still further, and revealed to a by then thoroly awakened public the particular machinery by which it was possible for those wielding this supreme corporate power to loot at will other, smaller, corporations; and, generally, whomsover they chose.

4. Immediately following upon the foregoing came the insurance exposures, which confirmed the public in its belief that its aroused fears were justified. It having been discovered that so lauded a fiduciary institution as the life insurance company (for the sacredness of which so much had been claimed) could so easily be led to go wrong, a startled people began to ask if their savings could be safe from the hands of the predatory manipulator in the till of any corporation.

5. Next in order came the Chicago & Alton revelations; when, with another gasp, the people, still more firmly gripping their purses, began to question the safety of their railway investments in particular.

Reaping the Whirlwinds.

6. By now the foregoing incidents had begun to tell upon the popular temper; how often and thoroly the interests of stockholders had been disregarded or deliberately sacrificed for the personal benefits of those in control of their properties had at last been made clear, and the general confidence in corporate management began to totter.

The seeds of distrust and chagrin, thus grown, found ready soil in the long-standing, tho seldom energized, resentment felt by the people against all forms of public service corporation; a resentment born of the hardships which, so often despotically, had been put upon the people by these institutions.

The outburst of active national resentment which followed, and its resulting widespread campaigns of retaliation, are occurrences too recent to require more than passing notice. But these still further increased the anxiety of those holding corporation stocks (particularly stocks of the railroads) and a further shrinkage of values followed. The shareholder seeing, on the other hand, the spectre of corrupt management stalking among the corporations whose stocks he held, and, on the other, that of an aroused people bent upon scotching the first spectre, and thinking himself to be between the two, very naturally wished to escape.

7. Into the midst of this state of affairs came the $29,000,000 bomb of the law, and burst; when suddenly it was perceived that corporations could be held to account for their sins, IN DOLLARS!

This seems to have been the first time in American finance that it was borne in upon the popular consciousness that laws which conflict with moneyed interest have a standing in court, and must be obeyed; and that there may be enforced as penalty for the wrongful acquisition of money, the surrendor of money in large enough sums to be painful. The resulting consternation and flight to cover of holders of shares in involved corporations or of corporations under suspicion is perhaps the highest tribute we have ever paid to the efficacy of law for the discouragement of wrong-doing, when it is drastically enforced.

A General Alarm.

To the disgust and distrust which the foregoing related events had aroused among the plain investing classes, there had already been added a feeling of insecurity and apprehension among the higher and more sophisticated classes of investors. Upon these elements of fear was now piled genuine alarm in the highest financial circles, among the manipulators themselves.

8. Now came the exposure of the Metropolitan Traction looting episode, to pull drum-tight the tension of an already overwrought community.

9. The confidence of the people in the integrity of the management of its corporate enterprises had at last been so successfully shaken as to have become substantially destroyed. Among those charged with corporate management the fear of retaliatory action by the people and the courts had grown to panicky proportions. Neither trusted the other, and, with mutual confidence rapidly vanishing, enterprises which had been reared in fatuous disregard of the trend of affairs, upon the presumption that previous values were normal and therefore stable, began to feel their centres of gravity shifting towards the danger point. And this strained situation happened to coincide with our (this year's) now periodic and annually increasing autumnal money stringency.

Such was the critical condition of things financial when the dynamic action of a copper stock speculator suddenly threw a violent strain upon the already unstable structure of credit which the latter was too weak to resist, and it collapsed.

10. During the first hours of wreckago there was revealed the existence, in unexpected quarters, of sinister banking practices not theretofore believed to be possible. So, throwing the little confidence left him to the winds, the average depositor, believing his money to be safe only in his own possession, hastily withdrew it from bank.

The Alternatives.

This is the point at which we now stand; and we are confronted by the necessity of doing two things: Of so clearly establishing the causes which brought us to the present pass that in future we may be able to escape them; and of ascertaining the means by which we may be able most speedily to re-establish confidence among the various elements of our industrial and financial life, upon the frictionless co-operation of which our prosperity depends.

Recrimination is futile, because it beclouds the philosophy of the situation by preventing a dispassionate examination of such forerunning events as culminated in the present trouble: and, thru obscuring the truth by obtruding the consideration of persons, where impersonal causes alone should be sought, it is bound to lead us astray in the devising and application of remedies.

It is easy, on the one hand, to blame Rockefeller, Hyde, Alexander, McCurdy, Harriman, the Metropolitan quintet, Heinze, Morse, et al., and on the other, Roosevelt, Bonaparte and Landis, the one set for having, it is said, broken the laws and oppressed the people, the other for having too insistently proclaimed and drastically enforced them. But the pointing of fingers can never bring order out of chaos, nor restore a state of contented co-operation to a community whose members are at each other's throats.

What is imperatively needed, instead, is to find the right, and to do it. To establish, if they do not already exist, adequate laws for the protection of property; to invariably enforce such laws with inexorable impartiality, and to set our activities upon such a basis that the enforcement of law can no longer shake them.

If the present debacle, as would seem to be the case, marks the passing of our industrial life from a period of lawlessness into one which can successfully conform to adequate laws of property and conduct and thrive thereby, then few should complain of the price which is being paid. But let us not pay the price in vain. Let us take care to secure ourselves, by so adjusting and enforcing our laws, that a return to past conditions of lawlessness shall be simply impossible; and by so ordering our industrial activities that they shall seek, and benefit by instead of suffer from, the rigid application of law.

The Danger of Delay.

Our troubles would seem to have come not from the proclamation of the supremacy of the law, however loud; nor from its drastic enforcement, but, instead, from the fact that both proclamation and enforcement were too long delayed; that men were permitted to grow into the habit of believing the law to be unenforceable, and of acting accordingly until their illegal practices became matters of custom, which eventually grew into what their practitioners came to consider vested right. And it is for having dared to assail this assumed right of immunity from prosecution under the law, that our authorities are now being stoned.

Nevertheless, it appears that the greatest service which can possibly be done for all of the people, for the rich and poor alike, now lies at the hands of the authorities, national, state and municipal. Let these begin at once and continuously thereafter inexorably prosecute every wrongdoer, high or low, corporate or other.

There seems now to be the great voice of a multitude of our people crying out to the head of our nation at Washington for relief from the exactions of law. It pleads with him, urges him, commands him to return to its scabbard the rusty sword of law and order which he has raised on high. The eyes of the world are upon him. There is suspense. Which course will he take? We tremble to know, lest he again sheathe the blade and succumb to the fear of right which has so suddenly sprung from the momentary weakness of a great people.

STATE UNIVERSITIES WANT PENSION FUND

But Carnegie Foundation Trustees May Leave It to Legislatures to Provide.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Whether the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teachers should provide pensions for retired professors of state universities as well as those of other institutions of learning, was considered at a meeting of the board of trustees of the foundation to-day.

Henry S. Pritchett, president of the Massachusetts' Institute of Technology, and of the foundation also, contended that the various states should take care of their university professors, saying that if the foundation pensioned them it would establish a dangerous precedent and relieve the states of all responsibility.

Dr. C. R. Von Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, who represented a committee of state university presidents, maintained, however, that the university presidents had no control over the legislatures, and unless their professors were pensioned by the foundation, they would probably never be pensioned at all. Action in the matter was deferred.

Among the trustees present to-day was William Peterson, McGill University, Montreal.

DUTIES OF A CONTROLLER.

In answer to query by "Mack," the duties of a member of the board of control are to attend meetings every morning (Saturdays excepted), and also such other special conferences and meetings as may be deemed necessary. The board receives the reports of the different committees and passes them on to council, with or without recommendations. Controllers are also appointed members of such committees as the allocating committee, made up of senior aldermen, one from each ward, may direct. There is no specification as to the time which a controller must devote to the office, but he is expected to attend all the regular meetings and sessions of council, and be open to call at any time. The yearly salary is $2500. For complete definition of duties, see sections 276, 276B and 277 of Consolidated Municipal Act.

A SPLENDID PRESCRIPTION.

An eminent physician states that he has used the following prescription in his practice for a number of years and found it very successful in the treatment of Kidney, Liver, Bladder and all urinary affections and is unsurpassed for the cure of rheumatism, driving the uric acid entirely from the system. He claims that a very few doses will relieve the most severe pains in the back, arising from disordered kidneys and impure blood, and being harmless may be given to children with safety. The prescription is one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, one ounce of Compound Vimosa and four ounces of syrup of rhubarb, taken in dessertspoonful doses in water after meals and at bedtime. These inexpensive ingredients are obtainable at any reliable drug store. 41

Noted Pedestrian Was Ill.

FREMONT, Ohio, Nov. 20.—Weston, the pedestrian, was taken ill soon after he reached here to-day, due to something he had eaten, which caused severe vomiting. He went to bed and will not be able to get out of Fremont for probably several hours. The veteran walker covered the eight miles between this city and Clyde in exactly two hours. Thousands of people greeted the pedestrian, notwithstanding the rain.

Pope Postponed Consistory.

ROME, Nov. 20.—The Pope has expressed his intention to postpone until January the consistory which, it seemed to be established, was to take place in the middle of December. Nothing definite is known regarding the creation of new cardinals, but it would seem that only a few Italians will be created.

Yellow Fever in Barbados.

REBELLION IN INDIA.

Forecasted at St. Catharines by a Returned Missionary.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 20.—"There is no disguising the fact that India is disturbed, and you can scarcely pick up a paper these days without seeing something in that connection. If India should one day wake up to what she could do, what would Britain do? what could she do? I am no prophet, but I tell you this: One of these fine days there will be an upheaval in India and perhaps 50,000 men will have to be slaughtered to bring about a result which easily could be accomplished if we went about the thing in the right way now."

Rev. Dr. D. V. Lucas, an extensive traveler thruout the world, and who has made India a close study, gave expression to the above sentiments here at a large meeting, presided over by Mayor Riddell. Dr. Lucas advocated the formation of a British imperial parliament. To this parliament India should send 20 representatives, half of them natives.

SINGLE TAX CONFERENCE.

Resolution Adopted That People Are Entitled to the Earth.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—At the single tax conference two resolutions were introduced by former Gov. L. F. C. Garvan of Rhode Island, and were adopted.

The first proposed an amendment to the constitution providing that 1,000,000 electors may petition the attorney-general not less than six months before a national election to submit any amendment to the constitution which shall become a part of the constitution if approved by the majority of voters as the succeeding election. The other was:

"We declare that all values created by the community go to increase the rent of land and that the people are entitled to that rent, because all have an equal right to the land, for 'the earth is for all.'"

The next conference will be held two years hence, and the governing board was instructed to arrange, if possible, to make the gathering international in character.

Louis XV. Piano Design.

The Louis XV. design in the Heintzman & Co. list of pianos, whose warerooms are at 115-117 King-street west, Toronto, is a very perfect instrument. In some respects there is found in the artistic case of this piano a peculiar art finish that is so familiar to the Rococo. However this piano is viewed it is emblematic of the period of Louis XV. This particular style is likely to be in much favor for Christmas giving.

Sent Shot Across the Bows of Yankee Poacher.

PUT-IN-BAY, O., Nov. 20. — The Canadian patrol Vigilant fired a shot at American fishermen yesterday afternoon and captured them and their boats after a lively chase.

The Vigilant came upon two fishing boats containing four men, and a gasoline launch near Old Hen Island. The fishermen, when ordered to surrender, hurried aboard the launch and set out for American waters.

The men were taken aboard the Vigilant and kept prisoners for some time, but were finally taken to other boats fishing on the American side, and given their liberty.

PUTS IT UP TO CANADA.

Roosevelt Will Help U. S. Publishers if We Help a Little.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. — It was learned to-day that the recommendation which President Roosevelt will make in his message in favor of free paper and free pulp to satisfy the publishers will not be the splendid boon which the publishers expect, because it will be conditional.

The conditions under which the president would be willing to have free paper and free pulp are that there shall be no export tax maintained on wood by Canada, so that papermakers can get free raw materials also.

There is now no duty on wood. As there is said to be no likelihood of Canada refraining from maintaining stumpage tax, there is also little likelihood of publishers getting the tariff revised for their purposes.

LEGISLATURE CAN DELEGATE POWERS TO A COMMISSION.

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 20.—By a divided court, the appellate division, third department, to-day upholds the right of the legislature to delegate a power to fix a tariff of rates for a public service corporation to a commission.

The constitutionality of the new Public Service Commissions Act was also involved in this case.
