THE WHEEL O' FORTUNE

(Continued.) "Yes, miss. He came with Mrs. Haxton. Mind you miss, I haven't seen him, but one of the stewards told me that the Baron went straight to Mr. Feneshaw's cabin and the order was given to raise the anchor immediately. I'm sure they made plenty of noise. They woke me up, miss, and I'm a sound sleeper.

The maid was ready to say more, but Irene had learnt to discourage servants' gossip.

"I think the Aphrodite might have fired cannons last night without disturbing me," declared lightly. "What time is it?" "Nearly nine o'clock, miss. No one seemed to be stirring, so Mr. Gibson put off breakfast for half an hour. He said that everybody must be worn out after yesterday's worries.

Irene laughed. Gibson, the head steward, a fatherly sort of man, was a martinet in the matter of punctuality at meals. This adorning of the breakfast hour was a great concession on his part. It showed how strenuous life had been at Messerwick.

"Despite her aches and pains, she dressed rapidly. She was all agog to learn how von Karter had regained his liberty, and what new development was marked by the yacht's unexpected sailing. When she hurried to the bridge for news, the first person she met was Royson, and perhaps one of those old deities of Memphis would have smiled dachly were he privileged to see the tall-tale color that leaped to both faces.

"Naturally, the girl was the speedier to find her tongue.

"Good gracious, Mr. Royson," she said, "what is the meaning of this?" and a generous hand-sweep included sea and sky and distant coastline in the eager question.

"I don't know," he said. "Captain Stump and Mr. Tagg entered into a conspiracy to keep me in bed. I have not been on deck five minutes."

"But didn't you ask? Aren't you conversed with curiosity? Who is in charge of the bridge?"

"Mr. Tagg. His stock of information is limited. Cleared the islands at four bells; course South-40-East" is practically all he has to say.

"It may be, then, that you are good at guessing? Have you not heard that the Baron is with us?"

ONLY MEDICINE THAT DID ME ANY GOOD

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Backache After Doctors Failed Utterly

I have received most wonderful benefit from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered for years from backaches and pain in the head and I consulted doctors and took every remedy obtainable without any result. Then I began taking "Fruit-a-tives" and this was the only medicine that ever did me any real good.

"Fruit-a-tives" is now put up in the new 50c trial size as well as the regular 90c boxes. All dealers should have both sizes.

"What's the game?" he inquired sympathetically. "You've eaten nothing. Feelin' bad?"

"No, oh, no," Royson laughed and reddened. "Then what's wrong? Didn't you fancy the coffee and bacon after the high livin' sabore?"

"The fact is, I met Miss Feneshaw, and she detained me for a few minutes. 'None whatever. I'm—really—forgot.' 'Forgot your breakfast! Come out of it.' Tagg climbed up, monkey-like.

"Takes my tip," he said earnestly. "This is a bad climate to get hungry in. You'd 'ave a touch of the sun in less'n no time. Just go below, an' 'arce' yourself a nibble. I'll do you good, an' I don't mind keepin' watch another spell."

Royson obeyed in silence. His friend's kindness supplied an unconscious but necessary tonic to his system. Obviously, the second mate of the Aphrodite had no business to trouble his head about the symbolism of rings worn by Miss Irene Feneshaw. Yet he wished he knew which was the engagement finger.

Shortly before noon Captain Stump came on deck to take the sun. This was a semi-religious rite with Stump. Though her little ones in this condition if she will give them an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets cure all stomach and bowels troubles, break up colds, destroy worms and make teething easy.

"If the breakfast gong does not ring immediately, I shall go and 'hammer' on granddaddy's door," she vowed. "He has been disturbed when he is dressing, but I am simply acting to find out what has happened and where we are going, talking of aches, Mr. Royson, look at my poor wrists."

"She held out both her hands, close together, with the palms downwards. Royson noticed instantly she was wearing a beautiful marquise ring on the middle finger of her left hand. The rules which govern the use of these baubles were beyond his ken. A plain gold ring on a lady's so-called fourth finger is a marriage token known to all men, but he had not the ghost of an idea where an engagement ring should be carried, and he jumped to the conclusion that the girl was wearing one. Why had he never seen it before, he wondered? Was it a hint, a reminder of the conventions? It is probable that Irene herself would have been surprised if she were told that it was one of the custom for engaged young ladies to reveal their happiness by displaying a ring on the middle finger, while those who were free but prepared to wed might coyly announce the fact by a ring on the index finger. Be that as it may, Royson was dumfounded by the sight of the glistening diamonds. They winked at him, wily, and his tongue tripped.

"I cannot tell you how sorry I am," he murmured thickly. Irene dropped her hands.

"Unless you are able to squint, you didn't look at my wrists at all," she exclaimed. A gong pealed loudly from the cabin, and she ran off. Dick made for the chart-room, from which Tagg was leaning on the rail and gazing ahead.

"You've bin quick," said the chief. "Keep her steady as she goes, South-40-East, until the ole man comes on deck. If the wind drops, call 'im'."

Then Dick remembered that Tagg had hidden him have his breakfast before he came on duty. Royson said nothing, but took his station on the bridge. Tagg, being lame, preferred to swing himself to the main deck, whence he hopped into the small cabin where the officers ate their meals. He came back instantly.

Mr. Richardson was a member of the Masonic fraternity and was a charter member of Aodias Lodge, Grand United Order of Oddfellows. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Miss Edna, in St. John and two brothers and one sister in Bermuda. The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at Trinity church, of which Mr. Richardson had long been an attendant.

Fashion Hint for Times Readers

A DIRECTOIRE EFFECT IN BROADCLOTH.

Strait down from French Revolutionary days comes the pelisse influence that is cutting up all sorts of capers with the one-time convenient tailored suit. So familiar now have become the characteristic style marks of the Directoire period that most women will pick them out directly in the broadcloth afternoon costume pictured today.

The high-waisted, double-breasted coat front, for instance, with long skirts and coat tails, the broad revers and big cuffs, the military frog trimming across the front and the elaborate braiding, that even stimulates huge buttons by being carried round and round in large discs. The big hat, laden with willow plumes, shows the new close-to-the-head manner of millinery adjustment.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

LAST CHANCE TONIGHT PAT HARRINGTON'S RETURN TO HEAR OPERA SINGERS

The Boston Opera Singers delighted their audience in the Opera House last evening with a grand presentation of Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor. As in the previous visit of the company, this proved one of the most enjoyable productions and hearty applause showed how keenly the audience appreciated it.

Miss Darling surpassed herself and won honors in every appearance. Mr. Boyle, Mr. Paul, Signor Gaston, Mr. Richey, Mr. White and Mr. Chautereau were all heard to excellent advantage, the chorus work was good, the stage settings and costumes appropriate and the orchestra did its work well.

The company's engagement will close today. The company will bring into the cast all the principals.

AT THE PRINCESS

A record-breaking crowd attended the Princess last night. The excellent programme was much enjoyed. The management announced that the pictures would be the best seen for a long time and they certainly were good. "Foul Play," an exciting mystery drama, was loudly applauded. "The Signal Man's Bride" is a new play drama, with many interesting scenes; "Saved from Destruction" is a comedy; "Wash Day" is a comedy.

Mr. Tutts was encored repeatedly as was also Mr. Courtney. There will be a special matinee today, and a holiday bill on Monday.

WILL EXPORT A LARGE QUANTITY OF PULPWOOD

The Bay Shore Lumber Co. reports a great increase in business. The company's export business is expected in the spring to export between 15,000,000 and 16,000,000 feet of pulp wood from this province to their mills in Maine. Of this amount they will cut about half on their own properties, the rest being supplied by contract. In future years they hope to export the same or larger quantities of pulpwood.

PAZO OINTMENT IS GUARANTEED TO CURE ANY CASE OF ITCHING, BLEEDING OR PROTRUDING PILES IN 4 TO 14 DAYS OR MONEY REFUNDED.

The commissioners of the General Public Hospital are looking into the question of installing a new elevator and placing a new stairway in the building. Neither matter has been decided on as yet. As regards the elevator, it is found that more power will have to be secured from the street railway plant. At present, the line in that section carries a heavy load and the power would have to be increased before the new elevator proposed could be operated.

HARKINS HERE MONDAY

Those who intend going to the Opera House on Thanksgiving day would do well to secure their tickets today. The demand for seats is very great and choice seats are going fast. It is hardly necessary to say that the house that night will be S. R. O. and if left until the last moment, no seats can be secured. Manager Harkins has, so Halifax papers say, and some St. John people who have seen them there say the same, the best company he has had in years. He has selected two of the best plays in his repertoire for Thanksgiving day—"It is all Your Fault," for the matinee, and "The Man on the Box" for the evening bill. Both are very recent New York successes.

GIANT CRANES

Australia has few more curious creatures than the giant cranes—often five and six feet in height, with beautiful blue-gray plumage. These huge birds mate for life, and as mates are singularly and touchingly devoted to one another. Among their practices, that of dancing together is the most remarkable. To and fro they end up and down, beneath a scraggy tree, near a creek or water hole, a pair of these curious birds may be seen in the hour of dawn, footing it gravely in a sort of grotesque dance.

SEEKING MILLIONS AT BOTTOM OF SEA

Great Iron Tube Will Be Driven Into Sand Where Treasure Ship Went Down in 1797.

To the mouth of the River Colne, off Brightlingsea, an extraordinary machine has been towed for use in a final attempt to recover the £2,500,000 treasure of gold, in coins and bars, which is said to have gone down in the British warship Lutina in 1797, near the island of Terschelling, off the coast of Holland.

A portion of the treasure has been recovered, but an ordinary dredging plant is now useless, as the vessel has sunk into the sand. The new device is a great steel tube, nearly 100 feet in length, and wide enough to allow a man to walk erect down its centre. At one end is a metal chamber provided with windows and doors, and at the other a medley of giant hooks and other tackle.

The apparatus has just been completed, after years of work, by Messrs. Forrest & Co., shipbuilders, in their Wyebooth yard. "One end of the tube," explained a member of the firm, "will be clamped to the side of a steamship or barge. The other end, by means of water ballast tanks, will be sunk until it touches the bottom. Then, by means of compressed air, all the water will be forced from the tube and also from the chamber at the bottom of it, which will be pushed upon the bot of the sea."

"Divers will walk down a stairway in the centre of the tube until they reach the submerged chamber. Here they will don their diving costumes, and opening a series of watertight doors, will step straight out into the water. Engineers will be stationed in the chamber, and following the instructions of the divers, who will communicate with them by means of portable telephones, they will operate the mechanism of two powerful suction pumps or dredgers which are fitted to the sides of the tube."

"These dredgers, it is hoped, will suck away the sand around the sides of the heavy chamber until it gradually sinks by its own weight right down to the deck of the wrecked ship. Then the divers, making their way from the chamber to the deck of the ship, and thence to the hold, will be able to transfer the treasure from the ship to the chamber by easy stages."

OBITUARY

William McKinley

Rothesay, N.B., Nov. 6.—William McKinley, a well known farmer of Fair Vale, died last night. He has been ill a number of months, and his death was not unexpected by his friends. Mr. McKinley was a somewhat extensive landowner and a farmer who was very well known, not only in the parish of Rothesay, but in the city of St. John, where he was a frequent visitor. He leaves a wife who is a daughter of Mr. Elijah Vincent, of Fair Vale, as well as a number of relatives residing in St. John.

THE BORDEN CLUB

At the annual meeting of the Borden Club, which was held last night in assembly rooms, Norman P. McLeod, president for the ensuing year, presiding, Mr. C. H. Borden, secretary, and Mr. J. H. Borden, treasurer, were elected. The report of the club since its meeting last year was read by Mr. Borden. The club has been very successful in its work, and the report was well received. The club has also been successful in its financial work, and the report was well received. The club has also been successful in its social work, and the report was well received.

When Asepto Gives a Helping Hand, Washin Labor is Halve

Asepto is the right of a wash-day helper. Use it in hot water or with cold. A tubeful of Asepto to a bucket of water is plenty. Leave the cloth in this preparation for two hours and it will be as clean as a new sheet. Use it in all your washings and you will find it the most economical and the most effective use of soap.

Asepto cleans better than soap—is a harmless, odorless, antiseptic soap powder. Costs but 5c. a package, at all discerning grocers.
