

over. It does seem to the Council that County Associations, by waiting until September or October to hold their shooting, altogether fail to encourage new shots to come forward for the P. R. A. matches, and are little likely to do any real good in the way of encouraging interest in rifle practice. Were these matches held in the early part of August, we feel that there would be a much greater probability of each County being fitly represented at Sussex.

The report of the proceedings of 1889 was printed in the usual form, and copies distributed among the members.

Respectfully submitted,
