BOUNDARY SURVEYORS GAVE EVIDENCE THIS MORNING

Before the International Commission—Are at Work Restoring Boundary According to Asburton Treaty—Most of Morning Spent Studying Maps and Charts

The International Commission on use of the waters of the St. John River met again this morning in the Equity Court rooms in the Pugsley Building. The entire morning was taken up with the evidence of Messrs. Rainboth and Baylor, who are engaged in restoring the boundary between the United States and Canada along the eastern province.

Their evidence was chiefly for the purpose of identifying certain charts of the boundary which they submitted and explaining them to the commissioners. They said that they were not locating a new boundary but merely restoring the location of the boundary according to the surveys of 1842 to 1846. The commission came to order at 10:45 with Hon. A. P. Barnhill presiding and the full commission and their counsel present.

Geo. C. Rainboth, the first witness, sworn, questioned by Mr. Fellows, deposed that he was a resident of Asburton, Quebec, and was a Dominion land surveyor and civil engineer. For the past four years he had been engaged in the survey of the International boundary associated with Mr. Baylor, the American representative. They had surveyed the boundary from the Richelieu River to the head of the St. Croix, touching the boundary of Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine. After making the preliminary survey they went over the boundary again renewing the monuments from No. 1 to No. 11. They were now engaged on the boundary along the St. John River.

When they started this work they had the charts of the survey taken after the Treaty of 1842, which were completed in 1845. They located the line on the St. John River by these charts. Copies of the charts were produced and identified, and the witness explained that they were copies of the British charts made for the American Government. On the survey they used the British and American charts alternately. Maps No. 9 to 15, which were placed in evidence, showed the boundary as a result of the survey made by the State of Maine to the River St. Francis. The boundary along the St. John River shown on these charts, was located according to the deepest water found by soundings taken at the time the original survey was made.

Considerable time was taken up in submitting copies of a large number of maps and charts in connection with the surveys of the boundary along the St. John River. Cross examined by Mr. Gregory, Mr. Rainboth said that these were accurate photographic reproductions of the original maps, there might be a variation caused by the reproduction, but as the scale was put on afterwards the difference would be very slight. If any difference existed, that although the treaty called for a straight line from the source of the St. Croix River, they found that the survey made after the treaty showed some variations from a straight line where the boundary followed a former survey and in their survey the witness and Mr. Baylor followed the original line including the variations. They had field notes all along on this section, but for the section following the St. John River they had nothing but the treaty. They are now making a very exact survey of the true survey and keeping a record of the distance of the line from the monuments.

Mr. Gregory referred to the report submitted by the boundary commissioners at the end of their work in connection with the treaty of 1842 and asked that a copy be secured for the use of the present commission. The present survey has not progressed far enough to give the commission any information regarding the distance of the boundary line to the shores of the river on either side.

Mr. Fellows read an extract from the Asburton treaty showing that the surveys of 1842 followed previous surveys made in 1817 and 1818.

Witness said that they were to establish reference monuments along the river to indicate the location of the original boundary. They did not make an effort to discover whether the boundary as laid down previously still followed the line of the deepest water in the river.

This concluded Mr. Rainboth's evidence.

J. B. Baylor, J. B. Baylor, coastal officer of the U. S. government, who is the American engineer at work on the boundary survey, was next called. He said that his duty was to relocate the original boundary line and restore it to their charts on an enlarged scale.

After identifying the maps already submitted the witness said he understood that the original commission in some cases depended on evidence of land owners and the titles held to determine the possession of certain islands in the river.

He said that since the original surveys it was almost certain that some of the characteristics of the river had changed.

CLAIMS MRS. CUREY WAS NOT DISCREET

Dr. Currey Relates Incidents of Unhappy Married Life His Wife Collapses on Hearing Report That Her Cottage at Westfield Was Destroyed by Fire Last Night.

FREDERICTON, N. B., July 8.—Mr. Currey continued his testimony this morning in the divorce court. There were many interruptions. Mr. Teet claiming that the witness talked too much in answer to the questions put. Mr. Currey said that his wife used on several occasions to come home late at night and when he asked her where she had been and who came home with her she would answer in a loud voice, "None of your damn business."

The witness told over again the evidence wherein he claims that Mrs. Currey was always an intimate with the servants, and in support of his testimony gave a number of instances. He had over and over again complained to his wife of her familiarity with other people. On one occasion on a trip from John to Eastport she sat on deck with a man who was not a fit person for any decent woman to associate with. The witness was very angry and he went to his wife and said: "You must leave this man's company at once, or I will see that you are a blackguard." She paid no attention to him. When they arrived at Eastport she went to the hotel and left her wife but she came to him and begged forgiveness. The only thing that prevented him carrying out his intention was the fact of the children. There were three then. This event happened in the year 1905.

Mr. Currey repeated in detail the evidence given on the former trial as to the rights of the children and how he tried to injure him about his clients and fellow lawyers, a thing which she direct evidence in 11 o'clock and was taken in hand by Mr. Teet, shortly after the cross examination began, Mr. Hanington received a telegram announcing that Mrs. Currey's house at Westfield was destroyed by fire last night. Mrs. Currey, who was in court, was greatly shocked. She was crying and sobbing, she cried, was in that house. His Honor expressed sympathy and the court took recess for a few minutes. Mrs. Currey said the house was vacant as she had all her family here. On the cross-examination, Mr. Teet continued his cross-examination, being very strict and thorough. The cross examination was still on when court adjourned for dinner.

EVERYTHING IS QUIET IN THE MINING DISTRICT TODAY

Leaders of the Strikers Advise Men Against Using Violence—Troops from Halifax Will be on the Ground Early This Afternoon

GLACE BAY, July 8.—As a result of the recent disturbances among the U. M. W. strikers at the collieries of the Dominion Coal Company, while preventing men from going to work, the active militia from the Halifax garrison have been requisitioned and are now on their way to Glace Bay. Letters in regard to the necessity of calling on the militia at this stage passed between General Manager Duggan and Mayor Douglas yesterday, and last night Mr. Duggan called upon the mayor to order the calling of the troops in view of the fact that the militia authorities appeared to be unable to successfully deal with the situation and protect their men who wish to work, and protection from assault in going to and returning from the pits. Mayor Douglas refused to consent to the calling out of the active militia at this stage of affairs and contended that the town officials and special police appointed by the county were sufficient to deal with the trouble up to this point. At least until some real necessity arose for their interference. Upon the refusal of Mayor Douglas to sanction the calling out of the regular troops, Mr. Duggan applied to County Judge Finlayson for a requisition after making by the required position before Justice of the Peace conclusive evidence that the strikers got beyond control of civil power and that the presence of the militia was actually necessary to preserve law and order and prevent the destruction of life and property. The order was issued and the militia, numbering about five hundred, left Halifax at three o'clock this morning and will arrive here about two o'clock this afternoon. This morning everything was very quiet at the collieries and no disturbance of any kind occurred. The collieries were thronged with men who congregated around the fences, but made no offer to molest any of the men returning to work this morning. President Dan McDougall and Harry Bonfield, of the U. M. W., visited the several collieries at six o'clock this morning and addressed the men whom they were assembled around the gates, and asked them to maintain order and not use force on their returning to work. One of the men on No. 6 colliery asked him, "Can we call them scabs?" and Mr. Bonfield replied that they should not call the men scabs and if they wanted to work let them do so without trying to injure them or interfere in any way. It would do them no good and make the matter more difficult for the men themselves.

The collieries of Dominion and Reserve are working today though the number at the latter colliery is reported to be greatly reduced. It was reported last evening that the U. M. W. were about to concentrate their forces at Dominion No. 1 colliery this morning and prevent if possible the working of the mine. That however was not done and though there were some disturbances there this morning when the men were going to work no one was seriously molested by the strikers and the colliery is running full time. At five o'clock last evening, when the men were coming up from Caldera colliery, which is working with about 140 men, about 1,000 of the strikers from that and adjoining collieries met them at the fence on their approach, called them all the epithets they could think of. Several were knocked down, but not injured. The disturbance was such as to again call for the reading of the Riot Act, which was done by Sheriff Ingraham, of Sydney. The strikers refused to move away from the colliery. After about half an hour in accordance with the provisions of the act, the men who remained were regarded as agitating the strikers and twelve of them were arrested. They will be tried Monday. Everything is quiet this morning at Nos. 2 and 9 collieries and also at No. 3, where about 100 of the men are still working.
