APOHAQUI

Apoahqui, Jan. 9.—In the Anglican church, a most impressive and solemn commemorative service was held on Sunday 8th, to do honor to the memory of the young men of that church who had given their lives on the field of battle.

The rector, Rev. Mansel Sheehan, conducted the service, which was attended by a large congregation including a considerable representation of members of other churches, who wished to express their appreciation of the young heroes. The beauty of the architecture of the edifice was greatly enhanced by the elaborate Christmas decorations, the whole interior of the church being profusely adorned with evergreen intermingled with white. A few roses brightened the chancel, which was appropriately draped for the impressive service, through the rays of the sun shining in through the stained glass windows, shed a mellow light over all.

The service opened with the hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," which a special service of prayer was read, also the lessons and suitable responses.

During the early part of the service, the rector read the names of the fifteen young men from his parish, who had paid the price with their lives, four of whom were members of the Church of Ascension, viz.: Corp. Ralph Nelson Seccord, Lieut. Herbert Montgomery Campbell, Pte. Allan Bell, Pte. Frank Chadwick.

The last chosen by the reverend gentleman was: "Death is Swallowed Up in Victory," found in the latter part of the 64th verse of the 15th Chapter of Corinthians.

The speaker, in his introductory remarks, convinced his hearers of the importance of perpetuating the memory of the heroes who have given their lives for us and suggested that a memorial in some form, be placed within the church.

Continuing, the rector brought forth clearly the significance of the words of his text, particularly fitting at this time, when victory has been gained over our enemies, thus giving some consolation for the sorrow of the world, inasmuch our soldiers have not died in vain. In the course of the sermon, Rev. Mr. Sheehan by way of illustration, quoted the beautiful poem, "If ye break faith, we shall not sleep, though poppies grow on Flanders' field," etc., also the answer to the poem, which is equally as expressive.

The sermon throughout, was a message of comfort and reassurance, delivered in the pleasing manner characteristic of the speaker, who in conclusion made a forcible appeal to his hearers, to "sanctify" themselves for the sake of the departed heroes.

Other hymns which were feelingly rendered during the service were "For all the Saints who roam their paths in the light of the departed," and "Hark the sound of Holy voices" (and in keeping with the season). "The year is gone beyond recall," was also sung. After the parting blessing, the "Nunc Dimittis" was softly chanted and the congregation remained devoutly standing as the strains of the "Dead March" was sympathetically played by the organist, Miss Nellie Veasey. A general tribute to the departed heroes was given by the rector. Lieut. Campbell was born here at Fox Hill, the ancestral home of his father, Lieut. Colonel Henry Montgomery Campbell, who crossed overseas as O. C. of the 64th Battalion, and has recently been decorated by King George, having been made an Officer of the Order of the British Empire.

Corp. Seccord was also born here, and was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Seccord.

Pte. Bell is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bell, and Pte. Chadwick was a native of England, though had been a resident here since early boyhood.

The services on the church of the Baptist church were conducted on Sunday last by Rev. C. D. McKenzie of Penobscot, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. C. S. Young.

The New Year's service in the village Baptist Church, Sunday evening, was attended by a large congregation, who listened with pleasure to the visiting clergyman, who selected for his text the 5th verse of the 2nd chapter of Philippians: "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."

In answer to the question: "What kind of a mind did Jesus possess?" the speaker mentioned a number of the superior characteristics of the mind of Christ, viz.: 1st.—A humble mind. 2nd.—Sympathetic mind. 3rd.—Forgiving mind. 4th.—Grateful mind. 5th.—Pure mind. 6th.—Progressive mind.

Illustrating with each, convincing instances and illustrations, bearing out each characteristic. In conclusion, he imparts to those who would imitate the mind of Christ first of all to have in love and God and endeavor to "go through the year with God." A full choir rendered special New Year music, which was much enjoyed.
