Some Hints For the Bride to Be.

OW that the season of sum mer weddings is over, brides all over the country have lelsure in which to contem-plate. Among their many contemplations are those which pertain to the acknowledgment of wedding gifts. To acknowledge the receipt of one hun-dred and fifty presents, to thank the donor of each in a way that carries proof, of life-long gratitude with it, and to find one hundred and fifty difand to find ope numbered and into un-ferent styles of expressing the same sentiment can not be classed with the easy tasks of earth. Unless she was party to an elopement, no bride ever lived in modern times who did not experience during the last quarter of her honeymoon the difficulties of polite correspondence. Those who were married last June have passed through the trying ordeal, but by those of next June, or next October, a few suggestions of timely character will doubtless be appreciated.

Although at the outset it appears difficult, the job of acknowledging wed-ding gifts is really one of the simplest genuity or originality, all that is indispensable being a box of note-paper, a pen and a bottle of ink. When the young bride sits down to contemplate her array of presents, her first perplexing thought is what she shall say to the donor of each. Nothing easier Uncle Peter, for instance, has sent a heavily upholstered chair with a spring rocker What could be more fitting than this as a reply to Uncle Peter? My Darling Uncle:-

I can not thank you half enough for your beautiful chair. It was awfully like you, so soft and easy. Every time we sit in it-Charley and I-we think of you. You must come around soon and sit in it yourself. Your loving niece,

P.S.-Charley and I had a perfectly lovely trip. It didn't rain a day while we were away.

That, dear girls, is the idea in crude shape. Your feminine tact can doubt-less improve the quality of expression. The principle, however, will soon be-come apparent to you. No matter what the gift is, always effusively invite the giver to come around and try it. "Dear Kate, drop in any time and have a sip from your darling tea-cups." "Dear Aunt Carrie, be sure and stop whenever you are out this way and let us pour you a drink from your charming decanter." "Dear Cousin Tom, your cuckoo clock is a dream; don't forget to set your watch by it whenever you're in our neighborhood.'
And so forth. No trouble. Sips from tea-cups and vinegar cruets; seats in chairs and divans; catnaps on lounger at all hours and food from forks. If to come down and live in it whenever he feels like it. Follow this plan and rest easily. Your temper will keep sweet and no one outside will be of-

Carrying the idea a step further, it will remain for some enterprising bride-to-be to send out supplementary notes with all her wedding invitations. Well known is it that the gift feature of a modern ceremony is far from be-ing perfect. Duplicates continue to come in, despite the most judicious hints thrown out beforehand by the bride-to-be and her near relatives. Finally, when seven water-bottles and six ice-cream sets arrive in one day, the limit is reached and the prettysoon-bride realizes it. Still, what can she do? It is too late to remedy the With what ease, however, could such annoyances be averted by the adoption of the Surprise Party system; the method which incloses with each invitation a request to please furnish cake or to please bring lemonade. Applied to a wedding, this method would work like a charm. Duplicates among the presents would be impossible, and a bride would find her new home wellnigh furnished with gifts, if proper diserimination was observed and enough cards sent out. Uncle Paul, who cornered the market once, should be asked to please furnish a set of bronzes. He can afford them, and the note relieves him of the necessity of thinking. Consideration, of course, should always be observed, and the value of the present asked for should be measured by the pocket-book of the relative to whom

If next June's crop of brides, whether they belong to the blushing class or not, will adopt these well-meant suggestions, they will stave off many an attack of Americanitis. Harry Hamilton in "Puck."

Baseball In France.

They all bow extravagantly, and Alphonse and Henri kiss each other on phonse and Henri kiss each other on the cheek as they retire to the bench.

The game then proceeds. Katie and Willie are twins, aged five. One morning Katie reached a nest first, and, seizing the forbidden egg, started for the house. Willie hurried after her, shout-ing: "Grandma! Grandma! Katie's got the egg the old hen measures by." Take care of the stomach and the health will take care of itself. If peo-ple only realized the soundness of that statement the majority might live to a good old age like Moses, "the eye undimmed, the natural force unabated." It is in the stomach that the blood is made. It is from the stomach that nourishment is dispensed to nerve and muscle. If the stomach is "weak" it can't do its whole work for each part of the body. If it is diseas-ed the disease will taint the nourishment which is distributed, and so spread disease throughout the body. It was the realization of the importance of the stomach as the very centre of health and the common source of disease, which led Dr. Pierce to prepare his "Golden Medical Discov-ery." "Diseases which originate in the stomach must be cured through the stomach." The soundness of this theory is proved every day by cures of diseased organs, heart, liver, lungs, blood,-by the use of the "Discovery' which is solely and singly a medicine for the blood and organs of digestion and nutrition. It is a temperand medicine, containing no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant.

The Cause of Nervous Headache

This most distressing and commo malady doubtless has its origin in some unbalanced condition of the nervous system. Probably the simplest, safest and most efficient remedy is Polson's Nerviline. Twenty drops in sweetened water gives immediate re-lief, and this treatment should be supplemented by bathing the region of pain with Nerviline. To say it acts quickly fails to express the result. What Catarrhozone is and is Not Catarrhozone is not a wash. You cannot force liquids into the lungs. It is not an ointment to be snuffed up nostrils. Ointments are usele and disgusting. Nor is it a powder to be blown up the nostrils and still further irritate the already congested and irritated membrane. It is simply balsamic and healing substances breathed into the lungs and throat, Cures of course. That is nature's way of curing, and nature's way is the only true way. If you suffer from disease of the throat, lungs, nasal passages, do not neglect to test Catarrhozone. Two sizes at all drug-gists, 25c. and $1. Guaranteed to cure Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis and Hay Fever, or your money back.

Every married woman knows at east one other woman that she believes would flirt with her husband if he wasn't so good and honorable.

Nervous Dyspepsia

How it shakes one up, invades sleep, destroys strength, adds a real misery to life. Not the stomach but the nerves are affected. Starved nerves make the whole trouble. You need Ferrozone because it's a nerve food. It supplies the elements that are needed to make rich red blood. This is the savings bank of health. The richer the blood in red cells, the richer you're sure to be in health. Ferro-zone quickly makes blood, strengthens the digestive organs and, presto! the nervous disturbance disappears. Sold

Mistakes of Reporters. The mistakes of shorthand report ers, laughable and serious, on various important occasions would fill volumes but a decidedly curious error of the kind is pointed out in a letter which Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman was at the trouble to write to The London Times, under date of July 31 :-

"I do not often correct errors in reports of speeches," says Sir Henry, but there is a passage in your report of my speech last night on the third reading of the education bill which I find it necessary to explain, and this can only be done by a correction.
"I followed Lord Hugh Cecil in the debate, and what your report represents me as saying is this:—There is often a power behind the throne. We have known in history of a great Cardinal who wielded the power of a mighty Monarch, but it was known Cardinal who wielded the power of a mighty. Monarch, but it was known that after all it was not he in his gorgeous raiment who truly wielded the power, but a soberly-clad ecclesiastic in his retinue. In this case we have not to look for some Ventre St. Gris who sits below the gangway. We cannot help thinking that on the present occasion the power behind the throne is the noble Lord, the member for Greenwich. The words I used were these:—In this case we have not far

"I may be allowed to point out to you that Ventre St. Gris is not the name of a person; it is a meaningless collocation of words invented by King Henri IV. who finding himself decollocation of words invented by King Henri IV., who, finding himself debarred from the use of an oath by the rules of both the religions which he in turn professed, employed this innocent but sonorous expletive for the purpose of relieving his feelings. Similarly, for the same object, Thackeray suggested 'Bagneres de Bigorre'; others have thought of 'Santa Fe de Bogota.' "But Ventre St. Gris was never so "But Ventre St. Gris was never, so far as I know, the appellation of a person. John Drew's Dress Shirt. John Drew, it is well known, is most particular regarding his dress, both on and off the stage. He was playing in "The Liars" two seasons ago on the road, and his itinerary included nearly two weeks of successive one-night stands. His man attendant always looked after the clothing he wore at the theatre, bringing it to the actor's dressing-room shortly before Mr. Drew appeared to dress. In one of the smaller cities the valet had sent Mr. Drew's linen to a laundry, and the actor found when about to don it that the bosom of his dress shirt contained a polish which disgusted him. He said things. But there was nothing to do but to wear it, polish and all. Mr. Drew had a long speech in a scene with Arthur Byron. The latter at once observed the unusual polish on Mr. Drew's dress shirt, and while he was delivering the lengthy dialogue Mr. Byron, though it was not noticed by the audience, began to adjust his hair, straighten his tie, and otherwise complete his toilet by the aid of the polish on Mr. Drew's shirt. A roar went up from behind the scenes, and Mr. Byron's joke nearly spoiled the scene.—New York Times. cities the valet had sent Mr. Drew's
