The experiments which perfected this preparation occupied many months, and were instituted with a view to curing that insidious disease, TUBERCULAR CONSUMPTON.

and in order to supply the deficiencies in Hypo-phosphites already in use; for, although their nature was correct as to theory, their preparations were, owing to their imperfect organization, found wanting in practice. While they caused the formation of fat and ger erated heat, they did not improve the blood. The tonic effect upon the nerves and muscles was, circumscribed, and, owing to their diluted state, ir volving large doses, they were also too expensive. The desiderata sought by Mr. Fellows, were: A convenient, palatable remedy :

LONDON LETTER.

(Regular Correspondence.) LONDON, August 29, 1879. England is par excellence the land of liberty-by which I don't mean political liberty, but liberty of movement. In France, under the regime of monopoly and the barrier, we see functionaries everywhere. The Frenchman is under tutelage; he is protected at every step. He is forbidden to go about for fear lest an idiot. He is not supposed to have sufficient intelligence of his own to guard himself against accidents, to avoid inconvenient collisions, to save himself from being plucked by sharpers.

example, he is placed, chambered, made to manœuvre between barriers, his way measured out for him, his footsteps directed. From the moment you plant your foot in England you are free. You are not warned by placards of the perils you may run; it is taken for granted that you will not be such a fool as to or in sheer light-heartedness offer your watch to the pickpockets of the United Kingdom. A friend once described the doings of the honorable gentlemen who rob you of your money in a railway carriage by means of three-card trick. This trick is never successfully played on one by which the French travel. It is too well known that nobody will be green enough to be taken in. In short, the independence of movement enjoyed iscomplete-is independence itself. At first site it may have its inconvenience, but these are far outweighed by its numerous advantages. In London, one must observe and learn before finding out the way to enjoy all the comfort of English life. The Englishman is astonished at nothing, knows everything, never questions anybody, avoids being run over by the public vehicles which go about as they like, and never need to consult a policeman. England, in ourselves and customers. In future we will sell fact, is a country where every one acts out as his own policeman, where the police is respected, precisely because it never interferes with you. Every living soul there, including the animals, is penetrated by this grand feeling of indepenthemselves here against the pailings to articles. The cash system enables us to sell at a very small see the screeching engine go by, and seem proud of this witness of the nation's industry. One might really im- reasonable time for payments.

Unatterable by time; Harmloss, though used continuously, yet might be discontinued at any time without any ill effect

Which would induce an appetite ; Strengthen digestion; Promote assimilation ;

- Create healthy blood :
- Strengthen the nerves and muscles: Enable the subject to successfully combat disease
- And sufficiently economical for all.

All this has been indisputably attained. The success of the work is complete; and Fellows' ypopho-phites stands foremost amongst the remedies for chronic organic diseases, possessing properties to which no other medicines has ever aspired.

ABSTRACT EFFECTS.

Fellows' Hypophosphites, on being introduced into the stomach, unites with the food, and immediately enters the circulation ; and, being perfectly niscible with the blood, speedily pervades every part of the system. Its effects are first declared by a pulse slightly increased in fullness and strength a general exaltation of the organic functions, and exhilaration of the intellectual powers. Its specific influence is on the brain and nervous substance, increasing the activity of the absorbents, and rt-newing the blood, thus causing the healthy muscular formation so necessary in restoring the functions of the previously weakened organs.

Being then, a tonic of the nervous and circulatory system, it follows that, when there is a demand fo extrordinary exartion, its use is invaluable, since it supplies the waste through the circulation, and sustains the general system.

FAt no period of life is watchful care over the functions of the brain more requisite tdan during the acquisition of knowledge by the youth : ploidirg, persevering study requires a store of vigorous nervous force, or the child may sink under the mental toil.

Stern necessity may compel the student to strain his powers beyond the dictates of prudence, and the early promise of excellence may be blighted thereby

To such we recommend Fellows' Uypophesphites it wid not only restore the sinking patient, but it will enable the toiling student to preserve his men-tal and nervous standard without detriment.

But though one may study, and learn and see many things that are new in London, one must not expect to amuse years. oneself there. Gloom reigns there as much as Queen Victoria herself-even more. The food must be the cause of this depression; it is succulent, it is good, it is abundant; but it is as heavy and as indigestible as syrups. Salmon July 19-1y and potatoes, roast beef in enormous quantities, plum-puddings like fortresses, the whole washed down with "half-and-half," that is to say, of ale and stout, which introduces an unquenchable thirst into your stomach, The English slake their thirst with port or sherry, highly charged with alcohol, which is as good as throwing oil upon fire. It must be added in their behalf that they make only one good meal a day, to which they give themselves up heartily. In the morning the working people take a tea and bread and butter; at noon they hurriedly go to a bar, where they are served, by young girls who wait at the counter, with a sandwich and a glass of sherry, which they swallow rapidly. Some of them seat themselves in front of the bar, and silently gaze at the young ladies who serve them. This contemplation is indulged for ten minutes at a stretch; the lounger eats half his sandwich, then falls to gazing again, completes his reflection takes a last fond look, then suddenly hurries off without a word of leave taking. Five minutes later he may be seen mounted upon an omnibus beside the driver-the place of honor. A good deal has been said about the Londou omnibuses, but too much can never be said. The London omnibus driver is, above all, immense. In London there are no uniforms as in Paris. This arises from the great independence, the absence of all functionaryism, of which I have spoken above. The drivers wear black top coats, high hats, and yellow leather gloves. Some wear white gloves, and have flowers in their button holes. These are gentlemen. When one omnibus meets another and the drivers know each other, they lean over and say, "Good day," sir," very seriously. The conductor is somewhat less majestical; but he has also an upright hat. Upright hats are universal. The beggars even wear them, the railway servants, the engine drivers and stokers sometimes. The bricklayers work in their shirt sleeves, but wears the high hat. You will never see one of them in a blouse in London. Equali ty in regard to costume is the first duty of the "true Briton."
