for 1908, the following is a con-servative estimate made by F. C. Eliord, of Macdonald If the Canadian hen laid the same average in 1903 that she laid in 1901 there would be for this year about 103 million dozen eggs, which at 25c would mean a gross revenue of 25 3-4 million dollars.

But a good, honest hen should lay more than seven respond so readily to good treatment. Providing she gets this care and that one dozen more eggs per hen is yet a little more selection and care, so that the average yield would be 10 dozen, which is by no means large, and the increased revenue would be 11 million dollars, or a gross income from the poultry yards of Canada of 36 3-4 million dollars. were mere copies of obsolete United States masell, not to hatch

So we built the Peerless Incubators and Brooders out of the knowledge and experience which actual poultry raising in Canada taught us.
We have published a booklet called "When Poultry Pays," which tells the whole story of how we came to build the Peerless Incubator—and why it must be the best machine for anyone in Canada to use.

Writing for a copy of this booklet is the first step towards joining the Peerless Poultry-for-Profit Club—the first step on the road to sure profits from poultry.

This booklet tells how poultry is being profitably raised now in Canada. It tells how you can work in with the most successful poultry farm in the country, and make big profits under their guidance.
