

AS THE CAMEL

is indispensable to the traveller crossing the African deserts, so also is SUNLIGHT SOAP indispensable to a careful housewife. A Camel can go for several days without drinking, but a good housewife cannot afford to let a single day pass without putting SUNLIGHT SOAP to some use. The first duty of every housewife is to economise; the duty of

is to help the housewife to economise. The daily use of SUNLIGHT SOAP is practical economy. It does the most washing in the shortest time, with least labour, and with no discomfort. Use a piece in your next wash, and you will be convinced as to its value.

BULLETINS FROM ST. PIERRE.—GERMAN CRUISERS SINK TWO FRENCH GUNBOATS.

Special to Evening Telegram.

PARIS, Oct. 3. A detachment of our left wing making a sortie near Arras, has been driven back slightly east and north of that town. In the north of the Somme we have advanced beyond Albert. Between Roye and Lassigny the enemy made violent attacks which failed against our resistance. Calm reigns on the rest of the front. It is reported that the enemy have disappeared from around St. Mihiel on the left side of the Meuse.

The German armoured cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau have sunk the French gunboats La Zelee and La Surprise, anchored in the port of Papete with cannons dismantled. The open town of Papete has been bombarded and partly destroyed.

Petrograd (Official).—The battle on the front of Eastern Prussia continues. The battle in the region of Marcupel is still without any definite results. The Russians have occupied the German positions near Krosnow, west of Simno. After a Russian energetic offensive the enemy were driven from Lepouy towards Souwaki, the Germans retreating in disorder and pursued by cavalry. German reinforcements have been brought towards Margharowa to sustain the retreat and retake the offensive on the front of Augustowo and Souwaki. Near Raczka the Germans have made a night attack which was repulsed with heavy losses. Augustowo has been bombarded by heavy artillery, but the Russians having taken a resolute offensive drove the enemy from that region. Germans have been driven from Sebekoutchin and Gravelo where the Russians have invaded German territory. The Germans have been driven from the region of Mlaw.

PARIS, Oct. 2. On our left wing a heavy engagement has been going on since yesterday, especially in the region of Roye.

Kills No Handicap To the Scots.

Prisoners Steal Their Uhlans Guards. Horses and Dash Away Sidesaddle.

Amiens, Sept. 22.—Even the grim tragedy of war has its lighter side. Listen to the story which I heard here to-day while I was waiting for news of the battle.

Down one of the side streets a figure dressed in the uniform of the Fifth French Dragoons came towards me. As he drew nearer I thought his face was familiar. Then I recognized him as none other than Champbrun, a well-known French boxer, whom I last saw in the ring at Liverpool fighting Young Josephs. Since then he has fought Summers in London and made something of a name for himself.

He had been with his regiment at Charleroi, Dinant and Namur. After we had shaken hands he remarked, "I've a story for you. I have just left two of your Highlanders who with sixteen other soldiers were made prisoners by the Germans, but were not prisoners long."

"They were captured about ten days ago," he continued, "but escaped before midnight, after each had possessed himself of a horse and lance. This is how it happened."

"The Germans naturally disarmed the prisoners, who besides Highlanders consisted of some cavalrymen and, I think, some Grenadier Guards."

"The Germans made them march for miles along the road, but the captors got tired first, and the German guards, after locking the Britishers in a barn, fell asleep."

"It was not long before a London soldier, who knew something about locks, had unfastened the door, and the eighteen men stole out into the darkness, past the sleeping guards."

"They made their way to where the horses were picketed, and each man took a horse and helped himself to a lance from a stack near by in case of trouble."

"The noise they made removing the lances awoke the Germans, and the Britishers had time only to dash to their horses, leap on their backs and get going when a score of bullets whizzed past their heads."

"But they escaped all right. More than once during the night they fell in with Uhlans patrols, but always defeated them."

"How did the Highlanders, with their kilts, manage on horses?" I asked.

"Oh, they rode the saddle like ladies," said Champbrun.

The picture of the two Highlanders riding like knights errant, but like ladies, on German steeds and armed with the lances of the Uhlans is worthy of a place in history.

Thoughts on War.

By GEORGE FITCH

Author of "At Good Old Slivash"

War is more popular this fall than appendicitis or any of the other new and fashionable methods of resigning from the universe. Almost all the nations which are not already fighting are inuring their armies to a diet of salt pork and fresh officers and it has looked many times in the last two months as if Europe was about to annihilate itself in one grand burst of ill-feeling.

War has always been a favorite method of creating widows, orphans, paupers, cripples and hard times. From earliest history men have dedicated each other with the utmost cheerfulness, leaving a puzzled posterity to figure out what they were fighting about. Even to-day, when civilization is supposed to have reached a dizzy height, there is hardly a monarch in the world who will not march his soldiers out to battle without flinching and receive the news of their death, in some safe place, with quiet firmness.

The Roman Senate in its early days was very fond of war and was continually calling upon the common people to go out and get barbecued. At one time the said common people, being tired of war, declined to fight and the Senate had to guarantee them some of the proceeds before they would consent to expire. This admirable error of common sense has never returned to any extent, however.

To-day great wars are usually fought because great statesmen cannot agree upon small matters. At the end of the war the common people are in a sadly dismantled condition, but the great statesmen are usually in an excellent state of health.

This suggests the idea that all matters of national dispute should be left to arbitration and that the arbitrators, if they cannot agree, shall be allowed to fight it out with axes.

We believe that such a provision would cause a great flood of common sense and amity to engulf the discontented parties and that the cause of peace would be greatly advanced.

Wars were often fought for glory, plunder and territory. They are still fought for territory occasionally, but national honor is the great cause of warfare to-day. The national honor is as touchy now as the individual house was in the days when men fought duels over the proper way of saying "Good morning." Perhaps some day nations will become as sensible as individuals and the common plug citizens will be allowed to live and die in peace.

NOT DRUGS.

Food Did It.

After using laxative and cathartic medicines from childhood a case of chronic constipation yielded to the scientific food, Grape-Nuts, in a few days.

"From early childhood I suffered with such terrible constipation that I had to use laxatives continuously going from one drug to another, and suffering more or less all the time."

"A prominent physician whom I consulted told me the muscles of the digestive organs were weakened and could not perform their work without help of some kind, so I have tried at different times about every laxative and cathartic known, but found no help that was at all permanent. I had finally become discouraged and had given my case up as hopeless when I began to use the pre-digested food, Grape-Nuts."

"Although I had not expected this food to help my trouble, to my great surprise Grape-Nuts digested easily from the first and in a few days I was convinced that this was just what my system needed."

"The bowels performed their functions regularly and I am now completely and permanently cured of this awful trouble."

"Truly the power of scientific food must be unlimited." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Trial 10 days of Grape-Nuts, when regular food does not seem to sustain the body, works wonders. "There's a Reason."

House Building.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—We are now undergoing a critical period in this city as far as employment for our workmen is concerned, and it behoves every patriotic citizen to put forth his best efforts to reduce the strain as much as possible. Every little counts at a time like this, and every dollar put into circulation will do its part to lessen the privations and want which must necessarily come to the people who through no fault of theirs are out of employment. We know there are many men in this community who have money locked up idle in the Banks, and it is those people who can do much to help the tradesman and the laborer during these hard times. One of these is to start building comfortable houses for the people, which as an investment would to my mind give better returns than having their money lying idle. There are many nice sites in the suburbs of the city which can be purchased at a very reasonable figure, and if tenements were erected upon them would meet with a great demand from honest industrious workmen who are anxious to get out of the hovels in which they are now compelled to live, simply because no houses are obtainable.

This house building scheme would give quite a lot of employment both to laborers and carpenters and at the same time help the lumber merchant and the woodsman. The latter, too, would earn many a dollar in this way which otherwise he would be unable to do, and quite a benefit would be conferred on shopkeepers and others if my suggestion is acted upon.

Your correspondent Observer has struck the right note in starting this discussion, and I must say that I earnestly hope that some of our citizens with a philanthropic turn of mind will set the scheme a-going, for I feel that much good can be done the community in general at a time like the present, when people are in need of employment.

Yours truly,

AMOS.

Wedding Bells.

SUTHERBY—DUNNE.

At Cambridge, Mass., on Sept. 6th, Mr. Robert J. Sutherby formerly of this city was married to Miss Mollis Dunne, daughter of Mr. John Dunne, of 56 Gower Street. The ceremony was performed at St. Patrick's Church, Cambridge, by Rev. Father Butler. The bridegroom was Miss Gertrude Sutherby, sister of the groom, and Mr. John Boland, also a Newfoundlander, acted as best man. After the ceremony a reception was held at which the immediate friends of the contracting parties were present. Mr. and Mrs. Sutherby are living at 124 Berkshire Street, Cambridge. The groom is the second son of Mr. John R. Sutherby, and was at one time an employee of the Evening Telegram. We extend heartfelt congratulations, and wish the young couple many years of happiness.

At the Crescent.

The Crescent Picture Palace opens the week with an all feature programme. "The Evil Genius" a strong 2-reel feature produced by the Eclair Co., tells a stirring story. Jean Norbat, a toy manufacturer, and Louis Denvel are suitors for the hand of the same Lady Norbat, as the favored one, and the other through jealous plots with Bouchard, an employee at the factory, to set the place on fire so as to ruin his successful rival. Norbat is arrested and condemned. Bouchard, seeing the wife's misery admits his guilt and implicated Denvel. The trial scene and the fire scene in this great picture are very real. "The Unknown" is a strong drama by the Victor Co., with a heart throb in every line. "Hearts and Flowers" is a pleasing society melo-drama. Mr. Frederick Knights, Boston tenor, sings "I Envy the Bird" a beautiful ballad from the opera "Serenade."

Pleased With Visit.

Dr. Ungar, Messrs. Dinkey, Harris and Winsor, of the United States Steel Corporation, who had been dealing with the country in the vicinity of White Bay, for the past month, returned to the city by Saturday's express, and left for home by the s.s. Stephano. These gentlemen had an enjoyable stay in the country, and expressed themselves pleased with the sport, as they secured their full limit of "heads." For the many kindnesses received from Capt. Keen, of the s.s. Prospero, and from Mr. E. G. Reid, who personally helped to make their visit a pleasant one, they are exceedingly grateful.

Personal.

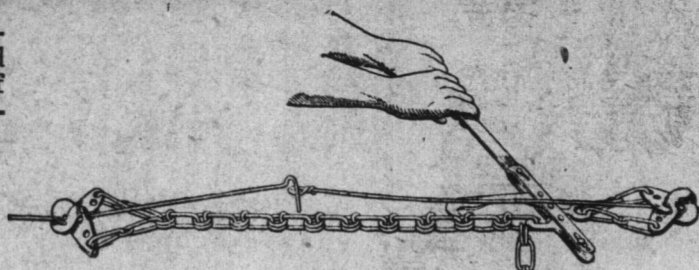

Dr. S. B. Boyd Campbell, who arrived by the Mongolian from the Old Country, will be married on Wednesday next to Miss Isabelle Ayre, daughter of Charles P. Ayre, Esq.

Mr. R. F. Morkill, signal engineer of the Grand Trunk Railway System, left yesterday for Valcartier. Mr. Morkill, who was recently gazetted Lieutenant, will be attached to the engineering corps. Lieut. Morkill saw active service during the Boer war. The foregoing is a clipping from the Montreal Gazette. It will be remembered Mr. Morkill was the Supt. of the Petty Harbour Power House for several years.
