The Serbian Campaign

The progress of the British and French forces in Serbia must necessarily be slow, owing to the circumstances of the campaign. The population of Serbia is less than three million, and she sustained heavy casualties in the war of 1912 and had sustained further casualties in the fourteen months warfare against Austria, when she was attacked again by Austria and Germany in concert with Bulgaria. Although Greece was bound by treaty to go to her aid in case Bulgaria attacked her, and although the Greek Premier, Venizelos, promised to give aid and obtained assistance from the British and French to do so, the Greek King dismissed him for doing so, and has now dissolved the Assembly which supported him. Serbia thus finds herself attacked from the north by the Austrians and Germans and from the southeast by the Bulgarians, and also finds herself without the assistance of the Greeks, which she had relied on. She is also in a state of uncertainty as to her future with the Greeks who may turn her and attack her on the west of the southern boundary, and wrest Monastir from her. This apprehension is intensified by the apparent undertaking, according to Dr. Dillon, between Bulgaria and Greece, under which Bulgaria has been able to withdraw troops from the Greek frontier and use them against Serbia. This attitude of the Greek King materially hampers the British and French forces. Under the arrangement with Ex-Premier Venizelos they have landed forces at Saloniki and are using the railway along the valley of the Vardar to forward troops into the Macedonian portion of Serbia. This railway runs for fifty miles through Greek territory and for another fifty miles north through Serbia to the main line of advance of the British and French expedition. At Gradetz, twenty miles over the frontier, it is within five miles of the Bulgarian boundary. From this it appears that this expedition already has a line of communication behind it of one hundred miles and further north it proceeds the longer will be the line of communication. This feature of the campaign naturally makes the attitude of the Greek King and his army of the utmost moment to it. With the aid of the Greek army, the expedition could have been strengthened, and no fear felt for the safety of the line of communication. With Greek friendliness, but without material aid of troops, little regard to this aspect of the matter would have to be directed. But with doubt, uncertainty and suspicion as to the future action of the Greek King and his army, it is clear that very large forces must be held at the base and along the line of communication, that the attitude of King Constantine constitutes a serious menace to our lines of communication and that it very considerably hampers and embarrasses the British and French in their operations in Serbia and must render their progress slow.

Fisherman Dies Very Suddenly.

While assisting to hoist the fall of the schooner Messenger in the harbour last night Isaac LeDrew, aged 56 years, a fisherman of Broad Cove, Western Bay, suddenly fell to the deck unconscious, and died almost instantly. The schooner Messenger, which is commanded by Thomas LeDrew, brother of the deceased, was getting ready to sail for the home port when the sad event occurred. All work was abandoned and a boat was sent ashore for a doctor. Dr. Cowperthwaite responded promptly, but was too late to render assistance, death having occurred from heart failure. The remains are being confined to-day and will be sent to the home of the deceased for interment.

The deceased was married and is survived by a widow who resides at Broad Cove, Western Bay.

Patriotic Sale.

We wish to call the attention of our readers to the announcement re the sale to be held at the store of Miss May Furlong, Water Street, on Monday next. Miss Furlong, has since the formation of the Newfoundland Regiment manifested a deep interest in our boys and during her visits to the Old Country has given practical expression of that interest. On Monday next she will give the total proceeds of the days' sales for the benefit of "Our Boys" at the front. Articles ranging in value from 20 cts. to $100.00 will be on sale that day, and the sale will open at 9 a.m. and continue until half past ten at night, meal hours included. Miss Furlong has indeed made a generous offer; her deep interest in our soldiers will be best appreciated when it is known that she was at the station from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. on the night our boys embarked for England for the Dardanelles, and was the last Newfoundlandier to wish them good-bye.

SON BEATS FATHER—A scene occurred in a house in the East End of Duckworth Street last night when a son gave his father a beating. Sergt. Mackay and two constables arrived but the assailant fled. He will be summoned.

FISH CARGO—The brig, Eleine sailed from St. Anthony for Exter yesterday with 4100 qts. of fish.

Exporters Hold Conference With the Premier.

A deputation consisting of Messrs. D. A. Ryan, W. B. Grieve, A. E. Hickman, M.H.A., W. A. Munn and Hon. P. Templeman held a conference with the Prime Minister this morning in relation to the present embargo on Labrador fish now at Gibraltar, destined for Greece. There are at present thirteen cargoes there, other cargoes on the way, and, in all, probably about 70,000 quintals of this year's catch would be expected to be marketed in Greece between now and March. The deputation pointed out that the embargo placed on the export of fish into Greece by the Proclamation of the Imperial Government had already had a serious effect on the price of fish here and in the foreign markets. The Prime Minister stated that the very strongest representations had, at the request of the Government, been cabled by His Excellency the Governor to the Secretary of State for the Colonies on Nov. 11th, containing several suggestions which might relieve the situation. Up to the present time no reply had been received, but the delay in reply was regarded by Sir Edward as hopeful. It is also hardly possible that at any moment the causes for the complication may be removed. The prohibition included fish of all kinds, whether cured, salted or fresh, from the United Kingdom and all other portions of the Empire.

Former Khedive Sends Resignation.

Cairo, Nov. 8.—Although Abbas Hilmy Pasha, former Khedive of Egypt, never has accepted his deposition by the British, El Mokattam announces that he has sent his resignation to the Sultan of Turkey. White in Italy Abbas Hilmy, whose family is on excellent terms with the Italian Court, was commissioned by the Kaiser to intrigue for the preservation of Italian neutrality. The Kaiser was furious at his failure and refused to see Abbas Hilmy, when he was recently in Berlin.

Having vainly sought an audience and pained at the rebuff, Abbas sent his resignation to the Porte, alleging fatigue and public worry.
