Mountains.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slivash."

Mountains are small breakings out of the face of Nature, ranging from one to five miles in height. They are found all over the world in great variety. Some are covered with a thick beard of timber and can easily be climbed by women and children, while others stick sternly into the zenith so far that their summits are covered with eternal snow that has never been desecrated by a shovel or a cigar butt.

Mountains are composed of rocks, and are very useful, producing gold, silver, iron and scenery in vast quantities. They are very interesting to look at and many of them are on exhibition daily to great throngs. But they are also a great nuisance, owing to the difficulty of getting over and around them. A mountain can block traffic more successfully than three old women at a ticket window. In order to cross a mountain, a railroad must write, twist, double on its rail, climb, toboggan and loop the loop until its route looks like the progress of a practical politician toward the United States Senate.

Mountains are profusely decorated with cliffs, crags, gorges, chasms, precipices, glaciers, snow fields, peaks, waterfalls, avalanches, electric railroads and summer hotels. In Colorado they are beginning to decorate them with signs also, in letters a hundred yards long. Mountain climate is very salubrious as long as the tourist keeps his footing. However, there is nothing more unhealthy than to sit down on the steep bosom of a hard, indifferent mountain and coast over a 2000 foot precipice with nothing but a straw hat for a parachute.

The avalanche is also a dreaded mountain feature. It consists of several billion tons of snow, charging in full cry down the mountain side. It is irresistible and awful and there is a tradition that T. Roosevelt once side-stepped an avalanche and let it have its own way, though this has not been confirmed.

The highest mountains in the world are the Himalays in Asia. Their summits are five miles high and have never been infested by souvenir hunters. The most famous mountains are the Swiss Alps, which are so popular that many of the prominent peaks, such as Mt. Blanc and the Matterhorn, will soon have to be enlarged to accommodate the tourist traffic. The Andes in South America are very tall and reserved, and a summer hotel among their peaks would be a losing proposition from the start. Our own Rocky mountains are a great grief to the nation, because they are not the highest in the world, though the summer hotels are doing their best to remedy this defect. Vesuvius is the most ill-behaved mountain in the world and Kinkunjunaga is the hardest to ascend with the tongue.

Mountain climbing is one of man's favorite diversions and finishes. Man can ascend mountains to a height of 24,000 feet, provided he can hold on to them, but beyond this height the air becomes too rare and infrequent to breathe successfully. Many political speeches would be greatly improved if they were made from a height of 27,000 feet or thereabouts.

What Italy Has Accomplished Since She Entered Arena.

The Italian Minister of War issued on Jan. 20 the first cumulative statement of Italian military operations since the nation declared war on Austria, May 23, 1915.

Since then Italy has declared war on Turkey, Aug. 20, and on Bulgaria, Oct. 16, and has subscribed to the engagement of Great Britain, France, Japan and Russia, not to make a separate peace with either of the central Empires or their allies, Nov. 30.

The statement of the Minister of War is as follows:—

"The General Staff herewith presents a review of the operations on our front from the beginning of the war and the result of our offensive:

"In the Trentino we have conquered the line from the Valle Davana to the Valle di Ledro, the Loppio depression and the Valle Terregnolo, thereby redeeming a rich and populous region, securing the two southern and most threatening extremities of this salient, which extends from the west to the east of the Lago di Garda to within a score of miles of the Brescia-Verona highway.

On the eastern side of this salient several roads passing between the Adige and the Brenta Rivers lead from the frontier and seek the level ground between Verona and Vicenza. Here had been placed the most formidable Austrian defences forming the most threatening zone for an invasion of the level land of Veneta.

Vast Zone Occupied.

"Further to the northeast we have occupied the Val Sugana as far as Borgo and all of the vast mountainous zone extending to the foot of the Alps, including the valleys of Calamonte and Campello with the hollow of Strigno, the Valle di Grigno with the hollow of Tesino, the Valle di Vaulci, with the hollow of the Canale Sambovo, and the Valle di Cormona with the hollow of Fiera di Drimiero.

"In the Cadore we have conquered and occupied the Val Sugana as far as Chere, the ridge of Cortina d'Ampezzo, and the slopes of Tofana and Cristallo, and have cut the important line of communication leading from Austria to the Dolomite Alps along our frontier, which had been constructed in order to lessen the distance between Toblac and Trent.

developed, is obliged to fight always from the lower positions in order to dominate the enemy's, which had been prepared for this eventuality, and in eight months of hard struggle has maintained an unaltered offensive with spirit and tenacity in the most difficult of all the present theatres of the war, supporting with courage adversity and mistakes, thereby gaining just fame for valor and even the respect of the enemy—as has been proved by the unanimous tribute of praise given by the foreign press.

"In spite of the haughty Austrian bulletins of the first days of the war and the humble ones of more recent date, the Italian army, after arduous proofs of its valor, has increased the defences of the nation for the future and has measurably expanded its boundaries."

Instant Relief From Eczema

You can stop that awful itch from eczema and other skin troubles in two seconds.

Seems too good to be true—but it is true, and we vouch for it. Just a few drops of the simple, cooling wash, the D. D. D. Prescription for eczema, a new remedy that is attracting widespread attention and the itch stops instantly. The first bottle will prove it.

Eczema, Bad Leg, Ring-worm, Salt Rheum, Barber's Itch, Psoriasis, Open Sores and Itching Rash and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Unless these germs are promptly destroyed they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years and years of misery. Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema.

If you have skin trouble of any kind, get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold everywhere.

Your Boys and Girls

If your child stands incorrectly look to the clothing first for the defect. Perhaps there is too much weight on the shoulders, or the hose supporters are too tight, or the weight of the garments is not evenly distributed. Perhaps the shoes are uncomfortable, so that the youngster, unconsciously bears more weight on one hip to ease the other foot.

Sometimes a child is dull and listless when the clothing is too heavy. This is apt to happen in the spring, when warm spells appear between cold days. It is not wise to lighten flannels until the weather settles, but there should be a change in outer garments if possible. Nothing drags a child more than overheating. More children catch cold from cooling too suddenly from a draught when in a perspiration, than become ill from too light clothing.

Toilmino at Mercy of Italian Guns.

"On the Isonzo we have conquered the hollow of the Plezzo as far as the slopes of Mounts Rombon and Javorock, and occupied a great part of the slopes of Monte Nero, which extend in a solid mass along the left banks of the stream opposite our positions at Vodil and Mrzil, while on the hills of Santa Maria and Santa Lucia we have maintained a constantly augmenting offensive.

"The fortified town of Toilmino is absolutely at the mercy of our artillery fire.

"In the Middle Isonzo we have constructed a strong bridgehead to the east of Plava, and, with the occupation of the heights west of Gorizia, we have rendered useless the enemy's formidable bridgehead, made the town uninhabitable, and dominated the vast and populous plain on the right bank.

"Further south we have passed over the river and pierced the heavy lines constructed by the enemy along the edge of the Carso, and have firmly established ourselves on this plateau.

"The enemy, not being able to deny our successes, limits himself to the constant declaration that the struggle develops around our defences, but he deems it prudent to abstain from acknowledging to what extent our attacks are wearing away his own.

Heavy Austrian Losses.

"Along the entire front the enemy is at the mercy of our initiative, forced to limit himself to a passive resistance, desperately clinging to the land and to the hope that, through his superior positions, he may be able to sustain himself. The fact is, however, that while thus occupying favorable defensive positions, he has lost 30,000 prisoners, 5 heavy guns, 65 machine guns, several thousand rifles and grenades, munitions, and other war material of every kind.

"Against him our army, facing the serious difficulties of conducting an offensive which modern war has developed, is obliged to fight always from the lower positions in order to dominate the enemy's, which had been prepared for this eventuality, and in eight months of hard struggle has maintained an unaltered offensive with spirit and tenacity in the most difficult of all the present theatres of the war, supporting with courage adversity and mistakes, thereby gaining just fame for valor and even the respect of the enemy—as has been proved by the unanimous tribute of praise given by the foreign press.
