Buckets full of bullets were gathered in the grounds. Four hundred and fourteen eople lived in the compound through the greater part of the siege. Three hundred and four marines, assisted by eighty-five volunteers, commandby the English Captain Poole, defended the place. Eleven civilians were killed and nineteen wounded: fifty-four marines and sailors were killed and 112 wounded. The army transport when it reached Pekin was a unique spectacle. Miles of animals, vehicles and coolies trailed behind everything imaginable on wheels. Everything on wheels from farm wagons to fashionable traps was impressed, and every horse, mule and Chinaman in the path was commandeered. The Japanese had cows bearing packs, and the Russians had Chinamen pulled the carts and staggered under heavy packs, the soldiers cursing and beating them. Several dropped dead. Two hundred junks and scows bearing munitions were towed up the river by coolies. Had the Chinese taken the offensive most of the transportation might easily have been captured and cut to pieces by small flanking parties. Afwere imposed upon the troops. Mr. Conger, the United States Minster, was equally presentable. The ssemblage of ladies was fresh and oright in summer clothing. Only a ew civilians were carrying arms. On the other hand, the rescuers haggard and rough-bearded.

They dragged themselves along as if ready to drop, their khaki uniforms dripping with perspiration and black with mud. But a second glance showed that the rescued were pathetically pale and thin. They looked like a company of invalids. Every part of the enclosure testified to their tragic experiences. There was a plot of new graves, headed with wooden crosses, ncluding the graves of five children. The second secretary's house was the nospital, and it was filled with wounded. French nuns ministered there at one time. All but four men of the Japanese contingent had been in the hospital wounded. There were several caves, roofed with timbers and heaped over with earth, which had served as bomb-proofs, but had been seldom occupied. The bulletin board was covered with significant notices. For instance:-"As there is likely to be a evere dropping fire to-day, women and children are forbidden to walk about the grounds." Here is another:

The enemy would avance to the barricades at night, creeping up with their ms filled with bricks, and in the norning the foreigners would find a wall a few feet closer. Finally he barricades came so close that alking could be distinctly heard. During the last two nights the Chinese officers urged their men to charge the foreigners and exterminate them before the international forces could arrive.
