

Christmas Day, 1907

AS 1907 nears its end, we feel that we should properly extend our appreciation of the co-operation and encouragement which has been afforded us this year by the many good friends whom we have been able to serve, and trust that the same kindly feeling which so pleasantly exists will ever remain so during each day of this store's business life, and extend to everybody our most hearty and sincere wishes for

A MERRY XMAS

Today is the one day in the year which fills the young with gladsome anticipations and the older ones with emotions which are sacred in their recollections, and we trust that Christmas Day, 1907, will be the bringer of many pleasing surprises to both young and old.
