HIS HEALTH IN A TERRIBLE STATE

"Fruit-a-lives" Healed His Kidneys and Cured Him

HAGERSVILLE, Ont., Dec. 26th 1913. "About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My kidneys were not doing their work and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen 'Fruit-a-lives' advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect, I found more than satisfactory. Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected. My kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes, and I regained my old-time vitality. Today, I am enjoying the best health I have ever had."

LAUNCHING NEW INDUSTRIES

Every good Canadian in the present time of national peril will encourage the idea of buying goods made in Canada. The first duty of every man is to his own people, those among whom he lives and labors and has his home. No hostility to the workers of other nations is involved in giving preference to Canadian goods when they can be had, and to those of the motherland when Canadian goods are not upon the market.

The Canada First movement in industry should have an even wider application. Millions of dollars' worth of manufactured articles and of supplies used in the processes of manufacturing that have been imported in the past from Germany and Austria are now cut off. The effect of this cessation of importation is very marked, and many industries are partially crippled as a result. It may be seen, for example, in copies of Canadian papers. One sheet may be a soft blue-white shade and the next a rather harsh yellow-white. The paper-makers depended on German dyes and they are becoming scarce. From a hundred industries similar illustrations may be drawn.

Canadians bought these articles and supplies not because they loved the Germans, but because they needed German products in their business. Now that they have been cut off enterprising men of business will assuredly begin to provide substitutes. Wherever possible the substitutes should be made in Canada. If skill and science are brought to bear in their production the home product should permanently displace that formerly imported. The Canadian buyer's duty—a duty which he owes to his country as a patriotic citizen—is not to seek means of evading the law against trading with the enemy by trying to secure German goods in some indirect way, but to pledge support to the men who are seeking to develop Canadian industry by producing at home articles heretofore imported from countries with which Canada is now at war. The obligation of the manufacturer actuated by a patriotic desire to advance Canadian national interests is equally plain—his goods must be right and the price reasonable.

One thing to be thankful for is the fact that the buckwheat cake and maple syrup districts are not in the war zone.

CANADIAN TROOPS HAVE ROUSING TIME

Enthusiastic Welcome Accorded the Canadians on Their Arrival at Plymouth

Plymouth, October 14.—The Canadian Contingent arrived in England to-day. Britain's mighty power on the sea was shown in its full reality when the great fleet sailed in.

The passage could not have been more pleasant or the troops, the most exciting incidents were the arrest of a supposed German spy and the burial, that of a man was found overboard at sea from one ship, and that of another who died from exposure after attempting his rescue. The latter's name is unascertainable as yet. The supposed spy was a private in a regiment from Montreal. He is said to be of Dutch nationality and speaks several languages. Colonel Herring's suspicions were aroused by his alleged persistent questions about the disposition of the various Canadian troops. His arrest followed. A State letter and code were found in the man's clothes. A secret officer's inquiry resulted in an order that the man be kept in custody till further orders.

CAME AS SURPRISE.
Plymouth has seen a few sights in its time but there has never been anything like this declared one venerable inhabitant out on the waters where the slate-grey liners, having reached their anchorage, were awaiting further orders. The arrival of these transports came as a surprise to the great majority of the people of Plymouth. The first ships steamed slowly in in the early morning, the folk on shore watching them more or less idly. This was not a surprising matter, considering that they have been able to watch the movements of many vessels, heretofore strangers to Plymouth, during the last few fatal months.

It was the men on board who themselves made known their arrival. As the great vessels drew inshore, the soldiers of the Maple Leaf, heartened mightily to find the first incident in their march and the Dominion. May broke into wild cheers. With eager enthusiasm to look out on the rich land of Devon, they swarmed on top of the decks and into the rigging, while their cheering passed from ship to ship. "No ordinary crowd of soldiers is aboard these boats," was the thought passing among the still-puzzled on-lookers. Then in fitful flashes the character of these voyagers dawned upon the watchers.

WAVE FLAGS AND HATS.
"Why, they're the Canadians!" the exclamation passed from one little group of beholders to another. Straight away the cheers of those on the transports received a response from the good folk of the port. As the news spread further, each company of watchers added to its numbers every minute. Hats and flags were waved, both aloft and ashore and from the decks of some of the transports there came the sound of the bagpipes.

Relief at reaching port was intense among the Canadians, and disappointment was correspondingly intense among the townspeople, because there had been no means of bestowing a hearty welcome other than by an abnormal display of lung power. But this as it may, the Canadians will not forget their reception at this port, the demonstration being all the more noteworthy because it was so completely spontaneous.

IN GOOD CONDITION.
A feature which appears to have struck competent observers of the Canadian contingent most favorably is the general maturity about the men. "These fellows won't take much licking into shape," declared one prize-winning non-commissioned officer, who doubtless has been enduring some trying moments recently in training new home recruits into shape.

The Western Morning News editorially voices Eng.'s first welcome: "To Canada," it says, "belongs the immortal distinction and honor of sending the first contingent of Dominion troops to the war. Canada has always been foremost in great Imperial movements, and in the defence of the Empire's honor. Her troops will be first in the field. We in the west had yesterday the gratification of seeing these stately ships steam into the harbor, whence Gilbert set forth to discover Newfoundland, and we will greet them with greater warmth than a brother if and when Plymouth is officially allowed to receive them.

"Canada gives us the flower of her manhood in her favored land. These selected troops have lived for the Empire. They have crossed the ocean to fight for the Empire and if need be, to die for the Empire. As the vanguard of what promises to be a considerable army from our daughter States, which will grow in volume as the war progresses, these Canadian troops bear witness to the solidarity of the British people within the Dominions of the King, and bring a proud answer to the arrogant Germans, who fancied that the British Empire was tumbling to pieces. Britain has received from Canada another sample of her 'contemptible little army.' These men, sons of men of Canada, who by their strong arm and alert brain have built up a sister State which promises to be the most highly developed and most prosperous country in the world, are hardy and soldierly individuals who
