abandoned all his boats and was adrift 30 days on an ice floe in Smith's sound. His permanent camp was established Oct. 21, '83, at the point where he was found. During nine months his party had to live upon a scant allowance of food brought from Fort Conger that was hidden at Prayer harbor and Cape Isabella by Sir George Nares in 1875, but found much damaged by the lapse of time. That concealed by Beebe at Cape Sabine in '82 and a small amount saved from the wreck of the Proteus in '82 and stored by Lieuts. Garlington and Colwell on the beach where Greely's party was found samped. When these provisions were consumed the party was forced to live upon boiled sealskin strips from their sealskin clothing, and lichens and shrimps preserved in good weather when they were siring enough to make the exertion. As 1300 shrimps were required to fill a gallon measure the labor was too exhausting to depend upon them to sutsin life entirely. The channel between Cape Sabine and Littleton Island did not close on account of violent gales all winter, so that rations at the latter point could not be reached. All Greely's records and instruments brought by him from Fort Cangar are recovered and on board. From instruments brought by him from Fort Conger are recovered and on board. From Hare island to Smith's sound, I had a constant and furious struggle with ice in impassable floes. Solid barriers of ice were overcome by watchfulness.

passable floes. Solid barriers of ice were overcome by watchfulness and patience. No opportunity to advance a mile escaped as and for several hundred miles the ships were forced to ram their way from lead to lead through ice varying in thickness from three to six feet, and when rafted much greater.

The Thetis and Bear reached Cape York ou June 18, after a passage of twenty-one days, in Melville bay with the two advance ships of the Dundee whaling fleet, and continued to Cape Sabine. Returning seven days later we fell in with seven others of this fleet off Woostenholme island, and announced Greely's rescue to them, that they might not be delayed from their finding grounds, nor be tempted into the dangers of Smith's Sound in view of the reward of $25,000 offered by congress. Returning across Melville bay we fell in with the Alert and Lock Garry, off Devil's Thumb, struggling through with the Alert and Lock Garry, off Devil's Thumb, struggling through the heavy ice. Commander Coffin did admirably to get along so far with the transport so early in the season and before an opening had occurred. Lieut.
Emory, with the Bear, has supported me throughout with great skilfulness and unflinching readiness in accomplishing the great duty of relieving Greely. I would ask instructions about the Loch Garry, as the charter party held by her master differs in several respects from mine.

The Greely party are very much improved since their rescue, but were critical in the extreme when found and for several days after. Forty-eight hours' delay in reaching them would be fatal to all now living. The season north is late and the closest for years. Smith's Sound was not open when I left Cape Sabine. The windershout Melville bay was the most severe for twenty years. for twenty years.

General Hogan, chief signal officer at Washington, has received the following despatch from Greely: Brainard, Bier-derbick, Connell, Fredericks, Long and despatch from Greely: Brainard, Bierderick, Connell, Fredericks, Long and myself, sole survivors, arrived to day, having been recould at the point of death from starvation by the relief ships Thetis and Bear, June 22, at Camp Clay, northwest of Cape Sabine. We abandoned Fort Conger Aug. 9; were frozen in a pack off Victoria Head Aug. 29; abandoned steam launch Sept. 11, eleven miles northwest of Cocked Hat island. When on the point of landing we were three times driven by southwest storms into Kane's sea. Finally landed Sept. 29 in Baird inlet. Learning by scouting parties of the Protaus disaster, and that no provisions had been left for us and that no provisions had been left for us from Cape Isabella te Sabine, we moved and established winter quarters at Camp Clay, half way between Sabine and Cocked Mat. The survivers owe their lives to the inseminable energy of Capt. Sealey and

One Eskimo Turnevik, was buried at Disco in accordance with the desire of the inspector at Western Greenland. Five bodies buried in an ice fort near the camp, were swept away to sea by the winds and currents and could not be recovered.

In compliance with the wish expressed by the queen, the prince and princess of Wales will not attend any theatres this season. The wedding gift of the Grand Duke Sergius to his bride was a parure of daisies, which is said to have cost £20,000. The Countess von Hutten Czapska, the mother of Mme. de Kalomine, has just arrived at Wiesbaden from Russia, and is described in the local journals as "wife's mother" of "Seine Konigliche Hoheit der Gross-Herzog Luis von Hessen."

It appears as if America and Australia will shortly be supplying the English market with most, if not all, of the necessaries of life. The latest proposal is to bring over fresh milk from America, and successful experiments have already been made in that direction.

There are some things I never have been able to understand, although very possibly the explanation is a simple one. Why does a horse get fat if he is turned out to grass, and fine down when fed on oats, and yet a man gets fat when he feds on bread, and thin when he only eats meat and green vegetables? What is the difference between our inner mechanism and that of a horse?

Queen Marie of Hanover, who has been taking the waters at Kissingen, has arrived at Schloss Frohlielle, near Jena, on a visit to the Princess Therese of Saxe-Altenburg, where she has been joined by Princess Frederica, who has been staying at Leipzio. This is their first meeting for nearly five years, as the queen resented her daughter's mesalliance (as she outsidered it) almost as bitterly as the duke of Cumberland, who has never since held any communication with his sister, and sent a letter to the queen remonstrating, in very

D. McComack's (Montreal) b. m.

In the last heat Brown, the driver of Jennie, was taken off and Quinn substi tuted, as the judges considered Brown was holding the mare back.

Blanton forced the running at first, and it was only on the home-stretch that Williams drew ahead. He won by about a neck.

A larger number of people were on the grounds yesterday than on Wednesday. The weather was not so windy, and was far more favorable for driving. The Barrie track is very loose, and as it had not been watered yesterday, the drivers were nearly blinded. Following is the result.
