THE EARLY DAYS.

Life in British Columbia Twenty-Five Years Ago.

From the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. The famous Ned McGowan relates the following of a personal experience of his in following a quarry of a century ago...

"Life in California becoming unendurable, I went to Fraser's river in British Columbia at that time the scene of a tremendous mining excitement...

I met with a singular and amusing adventure. In 'Hill's Bar,' as one of the mining camps was called, there was an English magistrate who, though it sounds like 'Paddyism,' was a very good fellow named 'Paddy'...

Perter. There was another English magistrate, a bona fide Britisher, this one an American, put on lots of dignity, insisted on the miners touching their hats to him...

"What did you do with him?" "I made him generally disagreeable, and I made him generally disagreeable, and I made him generally disagreeable..."

"No, indeed. They sent for Troop, Col. Moody, afterwards Lieut. Gov. Menzies, and he was in command. I was arrested and tried for a breach of peace. Judge Begbie, afterwards Sir Matthew Begbie, was on the bench..."

BRIDESMAIDS.

Their Duties as Attendants on Brides in the Olden Times.

Instead of being so many graceful attendants at the marriage ceremony, as nowadays, says Cassell's Magazine, the bridesmaids in olden times had various duties assigned to them...

At a wedding, too, where it was arranged that the bride should be followed by numerous bridesmaids, being put into the train of the bride, it was the duty of the bridesmaids to play the part of drill mistresses, "dressing" them so that "no pair in the procession was followed by a bridegroom."

It was also expected to see that each bridesmaid was not only duly provided with a sprig of rosemary, or other herb, but had a symbolic chaplet in her hair, in many parts of Germany it was still customary for the bridesmaids to bring the myrtle wreath, which they have submitted to purchase on the nuptial eve, to the house of the bride, and to receive it from the bride at the close of the wedding day...
