> Toronto. AN OCULIST'S RUSE.

His Clever Mode of Exposing a Fraudulent Claim.

Here is an interesting account of very clever bit of detective work by an oculist, says Leonard's Illustrated Medical Journal. It appears in a large factory and the same of tory, in which were employed several Contingent Fund hundred persons, one of the workmen, in wielding his hammer, carelessly allowed it to slip from his hand. It flew half way across the room and struck a fellow workingham in the left eye. The man averred that his sight was blinded by the blow, although a careful examination failed to reveal any inquiry, there being not a scratch visible. He brought a suit in the courts for com- THE HOME SAVINGS & LOAN CO., LIMITED sight, and refused all offers of com

The Canadian Mutual Loan and Under the law, according to the Sheffield (England) Telegraph, the owner of the late factory was responsible for an injury resulting from an accident of this kind, and although he believed that the man was shamming and that the whole case was an attempt at swindling, he had about made up his mind that he would be compelled to pay the claim. The day of the trial arrived, and in open court an eminent oculist, retained for the defense, examined the alleged injured member and gave it as his opinion that it was as good as the right eye. Upon the plaintiff's loud protest of his inability to see with the left eye, the oculist proved him a perjurer and satisfied the court and jury of the falsity of his claim. And how do you suppose he did it-? Why, simply by knowing that the colors green and red combined made black. He procured a black card on which a few ords were written with green ink. Then the plaintiff was ordered to put on a pair of spectacles with two different glasses, the one for the right eye being red and the one for the left eye consisting of ordinary glass. Then the card was handed him and he was ordered to read the writing on it. This he did without hesitation, and the cheat was at once exposed. The sound right eye, fitted with red glass, was unable to distinguish the green writing on the black surface of the card while the left eye, which he pretended was sightless, was the one with which the re

Down, down, down! All are in the rock home of death. A moment's pause, a silence falls on the chattering crowd. Then, affrighted with their second's fear, they sway onward through a rocky gallery. Rock on either side of them rock above them, here bare and arid, there slimy with oozing water and foul growths. The passage broadens out, it narrows, and ever and ever there is the black line on the roof that marks the road. Suddenly a black shadow on the left, or to the right. The eye plunges into the depths of the side roads, recoils aghast at their mysterious gloom. The lights file on. A thin glitter seams a dark gap with a flickering, broken line of light.

"Ah!" says the guide. "Yes, a chain." Still forward, the shadows to right and left grow in size; some have a sentry silently guarding their ob-scurity from rash obstrusion; where ion; where there is no sentry there is a chain. A sudden check from the front breaks the continuity of the forward move-

We move on again, and lo! the rocks on either hand contract, change color, break out into the gruesome design of a symmetrically built wall of bones and skulls. From the level of our heads down to the level of our feet, skull rests upon skull, and leans back against the myriad bones behind. The shivering candle-light falls with unequal rays upon the formal tiers ; it flashes coldly upon the grinning teeth, penetrates the mortarless crannies of the wall, and This sum, if capitalized at 3 per cent., mortarless crannies of the wall, and ever shows bone of many shapes and curves. Now it lights up a rent in some skull, a ghastly, Jagged wound, which haunts one with the thought of foul murder. Anon it shimmers with erratic play on the trickling water that, pursuing its silent way from year to year, has crusted with a smooth gloss the skull beneath.—The Gentleman's Maga-

The affect of the present of BORROWERS WANTING LOADS prices; at this writing the position is even stronger than it was then, because Business in corn is light. One reason is the light stocks and small receipts. We are daily getting nearer the tail end of a small crop, with no reserves of any previous crop. This, we believe, will result in higher prices. It may go down a cent or so, but under all the circumstances it looks a good speculation with the corn all week specific property. JOHN STARK & CO and taken the long side, which may account for a part of the strength. Corn and oats dull, with large offerings on

The strength was a surprise to local traders, who have been anticipating lower prices on any indication of a break in the drought. A feature was the light offerings of May option. Yesterday it was plenty and to-day scarce. New York reported large freight engagements and liberal sales of wheat for export, but just now how much they amounted to just now how much they amounted to was difficult to determine. The legiti-mate situation on wheat here seems strong, and the indications now point to a better range of values.

Provisions ruled steady, with a fair amount of business, which was mostly changing over from May to July and September deliveries. The leading packers bought ribs quite freely, but neither this hung nor sympathy with strong this buying nor sympathy with strong grain markets had influence enough to maintain the slight advance at midday.
