From the Library

The disciples were not bidden to ask for the chief or "Upper Chamber," but for what we have rendered, for want of better, by "hostelry" or "hall"—the place in the house where . . . the beasts of burden were unloaded, shoes and staff, or dusty garments and burdens laid down . . . But the unnamed disciple would assign to Him, not the hall, but the best and chiefest, the upper chamber, at the same time the most honorable and the most retired place.—Edersheim.

In that large upper room Jesus spent His last quiet hours with His disciples. It may have been in the house of Mary, the mother of Mark. If the young man who narrowly escaped arrest with Jesus in Gethsemane, was Mark himself (Mark 14 : 51, 52), which seems very probable, then it is further probable, that he came from the house where Jesus had spent the evening, and whither the soldiers doubtless went at first in the hope of finding Him.—Professor G. H. Gilbert.

How marvellously the horizon widens round Him as the feast proceeds. . . When He takes the bread and again the cup, . . . beyond the cross He sees the glory that shall follow, sees men of all nations and climes coming to the feast He is preparing for them.—Dr. J. Mcnro Gibson.

At the close of the last Passover, Christ instituted the communion of the Supper . . . Empires have risen and fallen, society has been tossed in wild convulsion, and yet it holds on its way, and will do, for Christ Himself is in it with that heart of love which shall yet bless a whole sinful world.—Dr. John Ker.
