

may be given a lesson on the respect which children should have for parents and teachers. They will die at some time, and when we weep at their loss, it will make us still more sorrowful to remember that we were unkind or disobedient to them. A lesson may also be taught on the presence of God with his people, not only when they live, but also when they die. Teach the children not to fear God's presence, but to love it; then they need not fear death, for if He is with them they are safe. Recite the Golden Text.

Lessons in detail.—Last Sunday, children, I told you to think about the children of Israel a great many times during the week, and to get the long story of their journey all fixed ready to tell me. How many have done so? Now as this is all your own day again, you may each one talk a short time, and I will be a little girl and listen to your pleasant story. Minnie, you may remember a long way back and tell us how we first found the children of Israel. Minnie tells, in her childish words, the story of the children of Israel as slaves. If she becomes confused in any way, or not clear, the help comes from the class, drawn out by questions. Told very nicely, Minnie. Who was watchin' over the poor slaves of Egypt all this hard time? Charlie, whom did God send to help them out of their trouble? Charlie tells the beautiful story of the birth and growth of Moses. Carrie, haven't you something to say about the plagues God sent upon Egypt? Carrie names the plagues as able as she is able, and tells the effect upon Pharaoh and the people. Jennie gives the "Passover," and so on until the main incidents of the journey have been related.

Lesson Hymn, (repeated. Sang at the opening, children all standing.)

Where were the children of Israel at first? What were they? Where has God brought them? How long were they going from Egypt to Canaan? Yes, and we must remember this, that through the hot desert, and dark wilderness, God saved them from all suffering and trouble, except that which their own sins brought upon them. How did they sin the most? By murmuring and disobeying. We find that it was so very easy for them to
