The Path of Assured Success.

A correspondent, observes the Chicago Tribune, wants to know how he can succeed in making money on 'Change instead of losing it, as has been the usual thing with him for nearly a quarter of a century past. He says it is becoming more and more difficult each year, as the big men control the situation against the little ones, though they do not always win themselves. Our correspondent is correct in his statement of the fact. The man who can only afford to risk a few hundred dollars and must rush out the moment he finds the market going against him stands very little chance by the side of the one who can swing millions on a deal and change its entire tone by the strength of his bank account. But it is very difficult to advise in the matter. There would appear to be open only two ways out of the labyrinth. The first is to let the markets severely alone, in which case nothing will be lost, if naught be gained. The second is to become a practical mind-reader and then watch the mental resolves of Mr. Armour with regard to pork. This is the one point on which Uncle Philip is infallible. He never gets wrong on that, however it may be with wheat and ribs. If our correspondent manage to catch on to the hem of his garment, as suggested, he will have opened before him the path of assured success.—Cincinnati Price Current.
