"Paris, Oct. 26, 1844. "TO THE ADMIRAL SIR CHARLES ROWLEY.

"Sir,-The official reports which I have received from Vice Admiral Baron de la Susse contain the most minute accounts of what took place at Portsmouth in the reception given to the officers of the French squadron by the eager assembly of the population of that port, together with every honourable manifestation from the English Royal Navy, which was added

'I have at the same time received an account of the additional splendour which was united to these noble demonstrations by the visit which her Majesty the Queen of England condescended to pay to the frigate Le Gomer, after the departure of his Majesty the King of the French.

"The first professions, which, according to the example cor stantly given by your Excellency, had so handsomely taken place on the part of the officers of the English Royal Navy, and of the principal authorities and other inhabitants of Portsmouth, have been crowned in the most flattering manner by its having pleased her Britannic Majesty to grant the distinguished favour of her presence on board the vessel which bore the flag of Vice Admiral de la Susse, and these testimonials have been warmly felt by the whole Royal Navy of France.
"I come, therefore, M. Admiral, in the name of the nava" and military body at the head of which I have the honour to be placed, to request your Excellency to receive for yourself our thanks, and to express as much as possible to the Royal Navy of England, as also to the different persons who were kindly pleased on that occasion to unite in the feelings b which they have shown themselves actuated, the deeply gratifying remembrance which we shall preserve of the reception which has been given us in that port of Great Britain where the flag of your Excellency floats.

"This reception, which accords so well in every respect with the existence of the reports of the perfect harmony which I have so frequently seen manifested between the natives of the two countries, is at this time the indelible sign of the just and mutual esteem which unites them. "In congratulating myself most truly, M. Admiral, on being called to become the faithful interpreter of these sentiments, I esteem myself happy in having to add thereto the personal confidence with which I have the honour to be,

"Your Excellency's very humble and obedient servant, "Wice Admiral, Peer of France, and Secretary of State for the Navy and Colonies."

This shows what a change a few years makes in the ranks of an army. Some of these has any chance of success in Toronto (hear, hear). It was not, noble mansions, formerly state prisons, containing from eight to sixteen rooms each, were either presented to favourites, or sold to the highest bidder; so that a warder of ten or twenty years' standing, if without money or interest, had not the slightest hope of obtaining shelter within the garrison unless he paid heavy rents to his brother warder, the lucky owner, of the results of part of his little palace. For Canadian John Neilson and James Morris, Esquires. It will be seen by the above notification that the venerable John Neilson of Quebec—the "Nestor" of Canadian politicians—has had the sphere of his usefulness transferred from the As-

The elevation of Mr. Neilson to the Legislative Council is an act of just acknowledgment of that gentleman's time-hon-oured services to the State, and his experience, sagacity, and sound constitutional principles, render his "call" a valuable addition to the Canadian peerage.
