

amount by $3,941,168.69, the details of which are as follows:—

Expenditure on Capital Account and on Canadian Pacific Railway	$5,519,875 59
Deduct of the year	519,961 44
Railway subsidies	416,955 80
Reduction in the N.W.T.	3,384 64
Consolidated Fund transfers, including liabilities incurred prior to 30th June, 1896, Post Office Department	682,880 52
Total	5,142,977 40
Less—Sinking Fund Investments	2,101,818 80
Net increase	3,041,158 69

Making the net debt on 30th June, 1897$261,588,596 46

For the current fiscal year, I find we have expended up to the 31st March on capital account, for railway subsidies and for discounts and charges in connection with the late loan, in all $4,508,185. To complete the year's requirements on capital account and railway subsidies it is estimated that we shall need $3,000,000, making a total of $7,508,185. In order to ascertain the net increase of our debt, we must deduct the sinking fund investments which are estimated to amount to $2,800,000 and estimated surplus of $607,000, leaving an increase in the net debt of $4,500,000 in round numbers for the year 1897-98.

Mr. OLANCY. Where are the cheers?

Mr. MACLEAN. We are sitting on them.

The MINISTER OF FINANCE. We propose that hon. gentlemen opposite shall continue to sit on those chairs for a long time yet. With regard to the fiscal year beginning on the 1st July next and ending on the 30th June, 1899, it is, of course, too early at this day to estimate in more than general terms. However, I do not think that, so far as the customs revenue is concerned, we should fall behind this year's income, which I have estimated at $21,000,000. We have to remember, of course, that on the 1st July this year the second stage of our preferential tariff will be reached, and the reduction of 12½ per cent already accrued will be followed by a further reduction of 12½ per cent, making a total of 25 per cent. The first reduction of 12½ per cent was, perhaps, not large enough to make any great change in the stream of British imports. Besides it takes time for the British merchants to understand the operation of these tariff changes, and just about the moment when he became aware of the reduction, and was prepared to deal with it, the difficulty arose with respect to the Belgium and German tariff, which resulted in the so-called preference being for a time obtained in a larger number of countries, and therefore Great Britain was not in a position to enjoy the 12½ per cent reduction as fully as we had expected and desired.

Mr. FOSTER. The difficulty arose before that, did it not?

The MINISTER OF FINANCE. No, only in the minds of my hon. friends opposite. There are no difficulties in this question on this side of the House; there were difficulties which my hon. friends opposite for years sought to remove without success, and which have been removed by this Government. I expect, therefore, that when the full reduction of 25 per cent takes place, when the preference is confined, as it will be, to imports from the mother country and from certain British colonies to which I shall refer, I expect there will be a considerable increase in imports from Great Britain, and on these imports we shall receive a smaller amount of revenue than we have hitherto received. With a view to maintaining our position as a sound one financially, so upholding our credit and guarding against deficits, it will be the part of wisdom to anticipate loss of revenue in that respect by making some increase to the revenue in other quarters and of that I will speak later on. Excise should provide at least eight and one-half million, and from miscellaneous sources, making due allowances for increase in railway receipts, from post office and interest on investments, we should receive eleven million dollars. These I estimate will give us a total revenue of $40,500,000. I am speaking now of the year beginning on the 1st of July next, concerning which, of course, our estimates will have to be of a very general character, with very little opportunities of coming to close quarters, not such opportunities as we have with regard to the current year. We have laid on the Table of the House the Estimates for 1898-99, to the extent of $39,194,000. These Estimates include two new items, one of $396,000 for the expense of the Yukon district, and another of $780,000 for the remaining expenses of the Intercolonial Railway extension to Montreal. Under our method of keeping accounts, the increased cost of operating the Intercolonial Railway has to be added to our general expenditure, even though it might be a source of profit to us represented by an increase on the other side of the account. These two new items for the Yukon and for the Intercolonial Railway, items which were not necessary in our past Estimates, but that we all recognise are necessary now, amount to $1,156,000. If we take this from the total amount of the Estimates, it will be found that the remainder, $38,158,000, is about the same as asked for in the main Estimates for the current year.
