

	PAGE
Into the woods three huntmen came	406
It is very aggravating	23
It seems like a dream—that sweet wooing of old—	452
It's everywhere . . . women fair invite and please my eye	120
It's June ag'in, an' in my soul I feel the fillin' joy	209
It's whe the birns go pipin' and the daylight slowly breaks	279
I've travelled in heaps of countries, and studied all kinds o' art	107
Jest as atween the awk'ard lines a hand we love has penn'd	199
Keep me, I pray, in wisdom's way	22
King Grover at his table round	499
Krinken was a little child	216
Last night, as my dear babe lay dead	278
Last night, my darling, as you slept	231
Last night the Stork came stalking	280
Last night, whiles that the curfew bell ben ringin'	245
Lie in my arms, Ailsie, my bairn	36
Little All-Aloney's feat	308
Little eyelids, cease your winking	327
Little Miss Brag has much to say	204
Little Mistress Sans-Mercé	240
Lofty and enduring is the monument I've reared	377
Lyce, the gods have heard my prayers, as gods will hear the dutiful	368
Lyman and Frederick and Jim, one day	175
Macenas, I propose to fly	394
Macenas, thou of royalty's descent	363
Macenas, you will be my death,—though friendly you profess yourself	354
Many a beauteous flower doth spring	417
Marcus Varro went up and down	209
Mary had a little lamb	466
May the man who has cruelly murdered his sire	367
Meynheer Hans Von Der Bloom has got	114
Midnight hour! how sweet the calm	523
Misery is my lot	430
My baby slept—how calm his rest	201
My books are on their shelves again	196
My dolly is a dreadful care—	217
My father bought an undershirt	459
My father was no pessimist; he loved the things c'arth—	62
My garden aboundeth in pleasant nooks	219
My grandsire, years and years ago	482
My harp is on the willow-tree	251
My lady has a tea-gown	79
My little child comes to my knee	485