THE MESSAGE

By LOUIS TRACY

Author of "The Dings of the Morning," "The Ethel of Fortune," "The Captain of the Kencana," etc.

"Here is Rabat," he said, "and here, beyond the mountain chain, Lektava. Now, there appears to be little doubt that Captain Warden was the European who counteracted at Bel Abbas, and I am inclined to believe the north-bound caravan's account of his proceedings there. A long way south, at the very verge of a tremendous stretch of desert, we come to Timbuktu. The obvious inference is that he adopted the Sahara route as safer than the journey across Morocco, and headed that way in order to reach Nigeria, the place where his duty lies."

"Can he do it? Dare I even hope that he will pass unharmed through thousands of miles of wild country inhabited only by savages?"

Her voice broke and the sailor saw that her eyes were filled with tears. More pleased than ever, he tried to dispel her foreboding, though none knew better than he the perils Warden would have to encounter.

"Steady, Miss Dane," he said cheerfully. "He jumped the worst fence when he got away from Lektava with money and supplies. The fact that he made Bel Abbas vouches for his ability to take the rest long before he reaches the thousand-mile limit. Once there, he is practically in British territory. To put it bluntly, two months ago I didn't think his chance of being alive amounted to a row of beans, whereas today I am confident he will pull through."

"So you did not tell me everything at Funchal? Are you keeping back the less pleasing facts?"

"No, on my honor, I have given you the whole budget."

"When will it be known whether or not he has arrived in Nigeria?"

"Ah, that depends on so many circumstances. It is six hundred miles from Bel Abbas to the Niger, and there may be difficulties. May I ask you a personal question, Miss Dane? Are you Captain Warden's fiancée?"

"I thought so," sobbed Evelyn.

"You thought so? Didn't you know?"

"There was a moment when I knew whether or not he had arrived in Nigeria. The moon beamed a silvery ribbon across the dark Atlantic, and I saw the horizon. Beyond that magic path lay Africa, and her heart had bridged the void ere she was aware."

"Yes," she said proudly. "I know! Never again shall I doubt him in my mind. Oh, Captain Mortimer, if only I might tell you what I have suffered during those horrible months, when never a word came from him, and another woman lost an opportunity of taunting me with the lie that she was his promised wife!"

"You are speaking of Mrs. Laing," he supposed.

"For an instant Evelyn did not appreciate the significance of that marvelous accurate guess. Then she turned and looked at him in wonderment.

"Why do you mention her?" she cried, almost hysterically.

The sailor smiled, though his face showed some degree of confusion.

"I have done it now, so I may as well make a clean breast of it. But, mind you, I am revealing official secrets, so please forget what I am telling you. Mrs. Laing went to the Foreign Office, and claimed to be engaged to Warden. For some reason—perhaps some one there had seen you—she was not believed, and that is why I was sent to you at Funchal. At any rate, they seem to know all about you in Whitehall."

"But only yesterday Mrs. Laing pretended that Arthur—that Captain Warden had written to her, saying he was engaged on a secret mission for the Government."

"You can take it from me he did nothing of the sort. Outside the department, no one knew where he had gone or what he was doing. He even passed under an alias on board the Water Witch. There—I didn't mean to tell you that. I am a poor diplomatist, I fear, and that reminds me, I must back back to my errand. Why has Mrs. Laing come here?"

Evelyn lifted her head defiantly. Mortimer had blundered into the worst possible line of inquiry.

"She has told me repeatedly that she is in Las Palmas in order to meet Captain Warden when he returns from the Old Territory."

The man glanced around to be sure they were not overheard.

"That, at least, is untrue, because he is not there. Owing to his absence another deputy commissioner is appointed. I expect

Fashion Hint for Times Readers

A CALLING GOWN OF BROADCLOTH.

Clothes, especially broadcloth, are fashionable for this fall and winter. This stunning calling gown is built on the princess plan. The button trimming down each side of the gown is completed in the buttons from shoulder to elbow of the sleeves. These sleeves show the two material styles that is so popular in Paris at the present time—the top part, in this instance, is broadcloth, while the lower is of lace, braided with narrow stonches. Around the neck she goes a fitting of satin, and at the waist and hanging in front is a Directors sash.

SICK HEADACHE MONTREAL GIRL TRAPS BURGLAR

Awakened to Hear Him at Work, She Slips Out of House and Gets Police.

Montreal, Aug. 24.—Caught in the act, a man named Hornadine-Soly, 677 Dorel street, appeared in the Arrondissement court charged with burglary. The thief was collecting his spoils, preparatory to leaving the house, when he was arrested.

The house at the time was occupied by two girls, Miss Concidine and Miss Brewer.

It was about four o'clock in the morning when Miss Concidine was awakened from her sleep by the noise of falling glass and judging from the sound she guessed that it was the dining room window that had been smashed in. Instead of fainting as most girls would have done, Miss Concidine donned a wrapper and crept cautiously down the stairs. As she passed the dining room door, she heard faint sounds coming from the room and the door handle rattled as if somebody were about to come out of the room.

Clinging to the wall, not daring to breathe, she crouched in abject terror, and after what seemed to her a year, but was in reality only a few seconds, the noise stopped, and taking advantage of the opportunity, she ran to the front door and softly let herself out to the street.

Dreading that she might be followed by the burglar, she ran along the street, and finally came to a house occupied by Mr. Lefebvre, whom she knew. Briefly she stated her case, and he telephoned for the police. Er five minutes had elapsed Constable Rochon appeared on the scene, and together they repaired to the house, where the "Bill Sykes" was quietly plying his trade, totally unaware of his impending fate. Letting themselves carefully into the house they heard sounds proceeding from the kitchen, indicating the robber's whereabouts. He nearly fainted with surprise when the constable touched him on the arm, and advised him quietly not to resist.

He pleaded not guilty when he appeared before Judge Lanoet, and was remanded.

GREAT GROWTH OF CANAL BUSINESS

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—Canada's canal business is showing a marked increase. This growth of commerce is throwing an increase on the waterways of the country and the traffic returns to the end of July show that the total tonnage was 5,293,719 ahead of the tonnage of goods carried during the same period last year.

The greatest growth of traffic has been on the Soo canal but all of them show improvement over last year. The increase by canal is as follows: Soo, 4,869,993 tons; Welland, 181,622; St. Lawrence, 209,648; Chambly, 40,522; St. Peter's, 5,834; Murray, 39,020; Ottawa, 14,790.

The Sense of Bees

Bees have a special sense not unlike that of carrier pigeons. This has been shown by their knowledge of living. They are not guided by sight or odor, and can fly two miles from a hive and then return on a direct line with their supply of honey. This has been tested when bees have been taken two miles in a closed box and then released. They have returned on a direct line to their hive. Other tests have been made which show that the sense of smell with the bee is not strong enough for it to be guided back to the hive after a two-mile journey.

FIVE DOLLARS TO SEE MRS. BELMONT'S HANDSOME HOME

Money Raised in Interest of Votes for Women—First Stranger Across Threshold in 14 Years.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 25.—Unique among the varied events which have characterized Newport's summer resort life of many years, was the meeting yesterday at Marblehouse, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's magnificent summer home, in the interests of women's suffrage.

The meeting, which was under the auspices of the National Woman's Suffrage Association, was held in a parlour tent, pitched on the extensive lawns surrounding Marblehouse. In the centre of this tent a platform had been erected for the speaker.

Those who addressed the audience of 500 persons, of whom 200 were women, were Rev. Dr. Howard Shaw, president of the national association; Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, the venerable authoress; Mrs. Belmont and Mrs. J. Boyle of this city. Mayor Boyle also acted as chairman.

It was estimated that the receipts from the sale of tickets and souvenir cards aggregated nearly $1,500. This money will be paid into the treasury of the national association, and will be used for the purpose of advertising the cause.

Admission to the house was separate from attendance at the lecture. For the privilege of the mansion, the fee was $1.00, and for the lecture, $0.50.

To the exponents of woman's suffrage who gathered here today, was accorded the honor of being the first person, aside from servants and a few immediate members of the family, to enter Marblehouse in fourteen years. It was in 1895, on the occasion of a ball announcing the engagement of Miss Constance Vanderbilt to the Duke of Marlborough, that the last assemblage gathered under the great mansion.

HARNESSING LONG SAULT RAPIDS

Brookville, Ont., Aug. 24.—Hon. Geo. P. Graham has been warmly welcomed home. While absent the master of harnessing the Long Sault Rapids for power purposes has been of interest to the residents of Eastern Ontario, and on his return he has been the subject of a colloquy with the minister of railways and canals.

It was a big proposition. It will have to be decided from the standpoint of the Canadian people. The plans, first proposed in 1898, have been the subject of much objection at once. The departments particularly interested are the marine and fisheries, the militia and the public works. The chief engineers of these three departments were named to investigate the proposition, and to report on the feasibility of the project.

It was about four o'clock in the morning when Miss Concidine was awakened from her sleep by the noise of falling glass and judging from the sound she guessed that it was the dining room window that had been smashed in. Instead of fainting as most girls would have done, Miss Concidine donned a wrapper and crept cautiously down the stairs. As she passed the dining room door, she heard faint sounds coming from the room and the door handle rattled as if somebody were about to come out of the room.

WANT MORE MEN IN WEST

Manitoba is facing a serious situation because of the scarcity of farm help. Ten thousand men are urgently needed in the province, yet in Manitoba, out on Hartley branch, says farmers asked for 500 men and received a dozen. Grand View received twenty, though it could employ 130. In the southwest of the province thousands of acres are lying uncultivated. In some places women and children are working in the fields.

A harvester named Prowse, of Murray (N. B.), west of Brandon and is being sent home tonight.

SHOTS FIRED AT GLACE BAY TRAIN

Glace Bay, N. S., Aug. 24.—More skilled miners went into the Dominion Coal Company's mines today. Of these twenty-six arrived at Sydney from Inverness and were taken immediately to Glace Bay by train.

While this train was passing through Gardner two rifle shots were fired at the train from the neighboring woods. No one was hit. Police are on the track of the culprits.

The steamer Dominion has sailed for Philadelphia to load a cargo of coal for the Steel Company.

A vessel house on South street, Glace Bay, owned by Mr. Hilyard was burned to the ground at midnight. The origin of the fire is unknown.

BRUNET GIVES HUMOROUS TURN TO MONTREAL INQUIRY

Montreal, Aug. 24.—A humorous turn was given to the work of the Civic Royal Commission today when Rodolphe Brunet, the famous middleman for the distribution of road contracts, came into the limelight on the witness stand.

Mr. Brunet described his work as a patriotic triumph for the French-Canadian as opposed to their English-speaking fellow citizens. He declared that it was this motive which had reconstructed the roads committee and elected Ald. Giroux, of high tender fame, as its chairman.

Mr. Brunet said that for seventy-five years English-speaking people had been all the road-department contracts, and he had "battered in," thinking it was time for his French-Canadian friends to get a share.

When asked to define this more closely Mr. Brunet convulsed the court by including Ald. Dan Gallery and Turner amongst the French-Canadian element of the council, while according to him the English-speaking element was Ald. Lapointe, Lavallee and Lariviere. Despite his vehement patriotism, however, Mr. Brunet was compelled to admit that he had been quite impartial and accepted commissions from English contractors, who wanted to see their tenders approved by the council, as readily as he had taken the same from his own friends of the French-Canadian persuasion. He will probably spend some time in the witness box.

Salmon Lake, Nov. 30, 1908.

"I was troubled with indigestion, so severe that I really thought I had cancer of the stomach. I took much doctor's remedies till I was forced to seek another resource, and this was the Rev. Father Morrissy. His treatments worked miracles, until I have been entirely cured, so that now I do not look to the quality of the diet but to the quantity."

Mrs. THOS. W. WEAVER, Coal Creek, N.B., writes: "My little girl was taken ill with a very bad attack of diarrhoea. Nothing seemed to do her any good. Hearing of your wonderful medicine, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, I went at once and got a bottle, and to my great surprise, after taking a few doses, she was completely cured."

NOTICE—We wish to warn the public against being imposed on by unscrupulous dealers who substitute the so-called "Strawberry Compound" for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. The original is manufactured only by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 25 cents.

Mr. ALBERT JEFFRIES, Owen Sound, Ont., writes: "I always keep a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in the house, and would not care to be without it, as I have proved it again and again to be a never-failing remedy for diarrhoea. Whenever I have been threatened with it one teaspoonful of the 'Extract' fixes me completely."

Fredericton, N. B., Aug. 24.—City Treasurer Golding states that the amount collected in taxes this year up to August 20, when the discount expired, was slightly in excess of $46,000, or about the same as last year. The assessment for the year is $71,000 and the discount allowed was five per cent.

Mrs. H. H. Gunter and Miss A. M. Richards left for Sacramento, California, last night for this city with the body of Mrs. W. D. Richards, who died there on Sunday. They are expected to reach here Monday.

Surveyor General Grimmer, who is here this morning, announced that two investigations would be held at an early date next month in Victoria county. The investigations arise out of charges preferred by J. F. Tweeddale, M. P. P., of Victoria, during the recent session of the legislature against William Vassor, game warden, and John B. Stevenson, lumber scaler.

FOSTER AT HALIFAX ON ASPECTS OF CANADIAN NATIONALITY

Halifax, Aug. 24.—Hon. G. E. Foster addressed a large audience tonight, delivering a strictly non-partisan address on an imperial subject. His topic was Some Aspects of Canadian Nationality, with special reference to naval defence and Canada's relation to the empire.

Mr. Foster traced the marvelous development of Canada as a nation since Confederation. He pointed to the bogies, as he called them, that Canada had passed, and dwelt on the glorious possibilities of the future. Independence was laughed at. Interdependence was more like what we should strive for—interdependence, as part of great allied nations in a world-wide empire. Canada's privilege and duty to take part in the defence of the great empire was eloquently portrayed.

In closing, Mr. Foster dwelt strongly on the follies of the cry against mill taxes. The bloodiest wars of the world had occurred in the last fifty years. We must have a share in the world's military arm or be crushed by it. We must be armed or trampled upon.

"There was frequent applause. The vote was occupied by Justice Langley. A chair of thanks was moved by President Johnson, of the board of trade, and Dr. Blackard.

MARVELOUS FLIGHT OF FRENCH AERONAUT

Betheny Aviation Field, Rheims, France, Aug. 24.—A marvelous flight of thirty kilometers (eighteen and a half miles) and at a great height in a twenty-knot breeze, by Paulhan, and a new world's record for ten kilometers at the rate of 74.318 metres (forty-six miles) an hour by Blot, were the features of the aerial race meeting today. Owing to the high wind there probably would have been no flight except for the visit this afternoon of President Fallières and the members of his cabinet. The president was accompanied also by distinguished officers of the French and British armies. His presence stimulated the ten pilots to a display of prowess and the dozen machines were brought out on the field, but a majority of them were unable to battle against the wind for more than a few hundred metres.

Young Buisson-Vareille, however, with his machine reeling and plunging like a ship in a stormy sea, managed to navigate the turbulent air currents for one round. Then Paulhan, who already has won a reputation for courage and endurance, began his thrilling flight. He made the first two rounds at an altitude of 200 feet, but ascending in front of the tribune, as he centered the circle he reached a height of between 400 and 500 feet. The spectators gazed aloft in admiration, and they watched the biplane streak what seemed a dangerous angle. The machine swayed in the wind but each time righted itself. When he landed Paulhan's achievement was a wonderful exhibition of manoeuvring, and the vast crowd heaved a sigh of relief when he landed. Paulhan's achievement has made him the unrivalled hero of the meeting.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

At Portsmouth, R. I., a horse attached to a delivery wagon was so anxious to get a taste of the corn growing in a field near where he was standing that he climbed over the wall, dragging the front wheels of the wagon with him.
